San Rafael Will Have A Birthday Party Tomorrow

City 100 Years Old Today;
Party Set In City Hall Tomorrow

The City of San Rafael, incorporated on Feb. 18, 1874, is 100 years old today.

The centennial milestone will be marked by a birthday party in city hall tomorrow, since city offices are closed today in observance of the Washington birthday holiday.

(See also several other stories, photos in today's Independent-Journal.)

The party is a prelude to a 10-day series of events planned in May to celebrate the city's 100th birthday. The celebration will include a parade, musical review, ball, country fair, exhibits, tours and concerts.

Centennial activities will begin at 2 p.m. tomorrow in city hall as past and present city officials gather for a cake cutting ceremony.

Some officials, including keynote speakers Mayor C. Paul Bettini and Councilman John A. Miskimen, will be garbed in 19th Century clothing.

After brief speeches by city officials, Jean Kelly, program chairman of the San Rafael Centennial Committee, will cut a giant birthday cake prepared for the occasion.

Among invited guests who will be present for the festivities are former councilmen Charles E. Aby, Alfred E. Bagshaw, Louis Baar, Philip Brown, Judge Jordan L. Martini, Judge David Menary Jr., Judge Joseph G. Wilson and Carl G. Wehrli.

Also appearing will be city staff and personnel, retired city officials and spouses, and residents.

The initial centennial celebration will be followed in May with a 10-day series of events, May 17 through May 26.

The public celebration will begin with the premiere performance of "Jubilee," a Centennial musical produced by Paul and Valerie McMullen. The musical, which depicts events in the city's 100-year history, will be performed throughout the celebration.

Another highlight of the May observances will be a centennial parade in which more than 200 civic and military units will march along Fourth Street. Floats will depict San Rafael historical events.

Other activities will include a Centennial costume ball, a senior citizens art show at the Whistlestop in San Rafael, and historical displays in the San Rafael and county libraries.

Noontime concerts at Courthouse Square by school groups, a city schools music festival at the Civic Center, and a champagne reception honoring the oldest living relative of a pioneer San Rafael family, are also scheduled.

The city's newest park, tiny Beach Park on the San Rafael Canal, will be dedicated during the festivities, according to the Centennial Committee.

Also planned are fashion shows, a "Centennial Trails" tour of civic and historical points of interest, and — if parking and safety measures can be worked out — a fireworks display.

Also scheduled is an arts and crafts fair at Dominican College, tours of the college grounds, and a civic luncheon at the college's Caleruega Hall.

Mrs. Kelly said the committee's goal is to "involve every citizen of San Rafael, and to install in everyone a sense of pride and a knowledge of the history of the city in which he lives."

The Centennial Committee maintains an office in San Rafael city hall.

CENTENNIAL CAKE — Siegfried Heidtke of Little Vienna Bakery adds decorative flourishes and a happy birthday message to the giant cake with which San Rafael's official family and guests will celebrate the city's 100th anniversary tomorrow. The 50-pound cake is five feet long and 16 inches wide.

Four pounds of flour, four pounds of sugar and 120 eggs were used in the five hours of preparation. Heidtke says he will take the four layers separately to city hall and assemble the cake shortly before the 2 p.m. party.

Impeachment Vote Is Said Possible Now

House Has Sufficient Evidence, Javits Says

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Sen. Jacob Javits told top national labor leaders today the House has enough evidence available now to decide whether to impeach President Nixon.

The New York Republican met for a half-hour with the AFL-CIO Executive Council and then told newsmen the House should act by May 15 on the impeachment issue. The AFL-CIO has called for Nixon to be impeached.

"The House has a duty to act and the House should act upon the existing record," Javits said he told the labor leaders. "That is, the record before the (Senate) Watergate Committee, the record in the courts and the record of the President's statements."

Javits, who said he stopped in to visit the AFL-CIO officials while in Miami on other business, was one of three members of Congress to meet today with the labor leaders at their winter session.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., met for about 15 minutes with the labor federation's Committee on Political Education (COPE) and Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., met with the COPE group and the executive council.

The AFL-CIO council session opened amid fresh indications union members are disillusioned and discontented with the President and his handling of the economy and the energy crisis.

On the eve of the opening session, the labor federation's second largest union released a poll showing that three out of four of its responding members want President Nixon out of office, either by resignation or impeachment.

The poll also showed that only one in 20 of those answering the questionnaire believe President Nixon's economic controls curbed inflation. Only one in 10 said they think the government is handling the fuel shortage fairly.

But only one out of each five said they wanted gasoline rationing.

The 35-man AFL-CIO executive Council and its chairman, George Meany, were expected to reflect this worker discontent in their statements emanating from their 10-day meeting at the Americana Hotel.

Meany and the council have been critical of Nixon's handling of the economy since the President took office, and last November the AFL-CIO launched a campaign to impeach Nixon for his part in the Watergate and related scandals.

The 900,000-member International Association of Machinists (IAM) yesterday released results of a survey it sent to every 50th member on its mailing list. Officials said 5,000 members returned the questionnaire.

IAM President Floyd Smith said the survey showed that his members "are becoming convinced that their government is rigged for the benefit of the big corporations and the richest families."

Of the IAM members responding, 49 per cent said Nixon should resign, 23.2 per cent said Congress should impeach him, 17.3 per cent said Nixon should be allowed to serve out his term, and 8.5 per cent said he was "doing a fine job under the circumstances." The remainder had no opinion.

Behr Dropping Dam Opposition

State Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, said today he is dropping his effort to delay the controversial Warm Springs Dam project in Sonoma County.

Behr tried and failed last month to get Gov. Ronald Reagan to ask the Army Corps of Engineers to delay calling for bids on the $120 million project designed to create a huge new reservoir on Dry Creek. Reagan refused, pointing out that the Army had already spent some $30 million on acquiring 1,725 acres of land and on roads and bridges in the area.

"I took my best shot with the governor and it failed," Behr told the Independent-Journal.

Behr said the dam project also came under fire from the President's Council on Environmental Quality — which last week termed the Army's environmental impact report on the project "inadequate." The council acts only in advisory capacity and its objections won't necessarily delay the dam, Behr said.

The Army called for bids on the construction Friday, to be opened March 28 at the Corps of Engineers offices in San Francisco. The work involves an estimated $10 million worth of earth fill and concrete.

The environmental council questioned whether the Army's evaluation of cost-to-benefit is realistic, in view of Marin County's opposition to importation of more water to support more population. The council also said the Army's report left unanswered the issue of whether a fault that runs under one end of the planned dam is still active.

No Army spokesman was available today to comment.

Behr's opposition to the dam was supported in Marin County, but drew fire from Sonoma County.

Sullivan Seeks Board Of Equalization Post

Edward Sullivan, Marin real estate broker, today announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for State Board of Equalization.

Sullivan will seek the GOP nod for the District 2 seat on the board now held by Democrat William M. Bennett, also a Marinite.

In announcing his candidacy, Sullivan cited his experience as a real estate broker as making him cognizant of the property tax burden, which he said is "becoming extreme."

"I will be able to serve the district in a more realistic manner because of my background," he declared.

This is Sullivan's first venture into politics.

A resident of San Anselmo, he is an associate of Home and Land Co. in Fairfax. He was born in San Francisco, graduated from Galileo High School and attended City College of San Francisco and Heald's Business College. He is a member of the Marin County Board of Realtors and National Association of Real Estate Boards.

He and his wife and four children reside at 9 Brookmont Circle in San Anselmo.

Probe Asked Of Stories About Tapes

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) — President Nixon's chief Watergate lawyer says he will seek an investigation to determine the source of reports that tape recordings of presidential conversations may have been altered.

James D. St. Clair, summoned here yesterday by an angry Nixon, branded such insinuations as "utterly false" and said they could impair the work of a grand jury seeking to verify genuineness of the tapes.

He expressed confidence that the "authenticity and integrity" of the recordings, relinquished by the White House as evidence in the Watergate investigation, would be clearly established.

Almost as an aside, St. Clair revealed that the White House had its own panel of experts examining the tapes and that a defective part in the Uher recorder used to transcribe the tapes could have caused the 18-1/4 minute gap in the recording of a conversation between Nixon and his former chief of staff, H.R. Haldeman.

"Our technical investigation has determined that the erase marks identified by the panel of experts in the gap could well have been, and probably were, caused by the admittedly defective recording machine," St. Clair said.

St. Clair flew here hurriedly from a weekend in Boston after the Washington Post published a story saying the panel of six experts selected jointly by the White House and the special Watergate prosecutor had turned up evidence casting doubts on the authenticity of two of the tapes.

Three States Eyeing Gasoline Rationing

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Three more states moved today toward gasoline rationing systems prompted by a holiday weekend which saw many motorists spend much of their time waiting in line to fill up.

Finding an open service station was a major preoccupation of motorists in the largest cities on the East and West Coasts—New York and Los Angeles—where the gas supply situation was described as the worst ever.

John Reed Quits Race For Council

John C. Reed, a candidate for Corte Madera Town Council in municipal elections March 5 today said he is quitting the race and will support Larry P. Weingarth in what now becomes a four-man race for three council seats.

"I've decided I could help the causes of conservation better if I would help Larry Weingarth get in there in the place of Albert Kostelic," Reed said.

Weingarth and Reed finished fourth and ninth respectively in a special election in December to complete the terms of three councilmen recalled in September. Reed received 137 votes and Weingarth received 961 compared to the 1,114 to 1,246 received by three winners in the 10-man race.

The winners in that race, Jana G. Hachl, Kostelic and Joel A. Shawn, are the other candidates in the election March 5.

Motorists also had to wait in long lines outside the few gas stations open in cities in Florida, Maine, Virginia, Connecticut, South Carolina and New Jersey.

Although federal energy officials succeeded in last-ditch efforts to head off a "pumpout" strike in Oregon and Washington by service station operators who said they would exhaust supplies then shut down, plans for gas pump lockups were going ahead in several other states.

Service station owners in parts of Virginia, Pennsylvania and Connecticut turned off their pumps over the weekend to protest government regulations of fuel, prices and customer services.

Connecticut Gasoline Retailers Association director Charles Matties said that unless the federal government allocates

Hearst Preparing A Free Food Plan

HILLSBOROUGH (UPI) — San Francisco newspaper publisher Randolph A. Hearst today was preparing a plan he'll offer to satisfy demands of the kidnappers of his daughter that free food be distributed to the California poor.

Hearst, who was to announce the plan late today, said it involves "substantial amounts of money." In a weekend message from their kidnapped daughter Patricia, the Hearsts were told the Symbionese Liberation Army would accept "a sincere effort on your part" to provide the free food.

Army Gets Joyriding Copter Flier

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government today dropped criminal charges against an Army private who flew a helicopter onto the White House grounds early yesterday and turned him over to the Army for "further proceedings with the military." (See story, page 2)

Pfc. Robert Kenneth Preston, who flunked out of Army flight training, learned of the government's decision during a hearing before District of Columbia Superior Court Judge John R. Hess.

Preston stood mute during the hearing. Asked by reporters why he landed the helicopter on the White House lawn the 20-year-old private remained silent.

But asked if his aerial journey was prompted by his failure to graduate from Army Flight School, Preston replied, "could be."

Immediately after the brief court appearance, Preston was shackled to an escorting guard, led out of the courtroom to a waiting sedan and rushed away.

Military personnel accompanying Preston declined to state their destination.

Preston, a helicopter mechanic at nearby Fort Meade, Md., was pounced upon by police Sunday after a wild, unpredictable two-hour pre-dawn flight that took him buzzing over suburban communities and monuments in the nation's capital.

Pension Windfall Due For Coroner

By ERIK M. INGRAM

The shifting of Marin County Coroner Donovan O. Cooke from pillar to post at civic center may provide him with thousands of dollars in retirement income he has not earned, it has been disclosed.

By cashing in on his rapid rise and fall as director of health services, the coroner will be able to collect at least 50 per cent more pension benefits than he has paid for.

To take advantage of the situation, however, Dr. Cooke must win reelection in June and then serve at least two more years in office — thus meeting the minimum pension requirement of 10 years service.

It is common knowledge around civic center that Dr. Cooke, who has announced he will seek reelection as coroner, is looking for his retirement eligibility.

The county retirement system, like those used in other counties, bases an employee's pension on a percentage of his highest annual salary.

It operates under the assumption that an employee's payments into the system — matched by an equal amount from taxpayers — will increase over the years as his salary grows.

Dr. Cooke's case is different, however. His pension will be based on the highest salary — $33,000 — he made while director of the health services department.

STOLEN CHOPPER — Officials at the White House check out the damage on a stolen army helicopter which landed on the south lawn early yesterday amid a hail of Secret Service gunfire. Daredevil pilot of the helicopter was identified as PFC Robert K. Preston of the 6061st Transportation Squadron at Fort Meade, Md.

Chopper Thief Takes A Joyride

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A soldier who flunked out of flying school stole a helicopter and flew it straight at the White House, crash-landing in a hail of Secret Service buckshot early yesterday morning.

President Nixon and all of his family were out of Washington for the weekend.

The soldier, identified as Pfc. Robert K. Preston, 20, of Panama City, Fla., got a compliment from Dan L. Sewell, a combat-decorated Maryland state policeman who followed his two-hour aerial joyride and watched helplessly as the Huey helicopter roared in just above the 12-foot-high steel fence and came to rest 100 yards from the President's home.

"He's a helluva pilot," said Sewell. "I'd say he had quite an accomplishment."

Preston was to be arraigned today on charges of "unlawful entry" into forbidden White House air space. He is under

ROBERT K. PRESTON
Flight school washout psychiatric observation at Walter Reed Army Medical Hospital, where, according to one soldier present, he was brought in "laughing like hell."

According to Army officials, Preston stole an unarmed UH18 helicopter similar to ones used in Vietnam from Ft. Meade, Md., where he worked as a helicopter repairman after being unable to complete the final section of the flying course at Ft. Wolters, Tex.

He headed for Washington at 12:30 a.m. EDT yesterday at speeds ranging between 80 and 120 miles an hour, buzzing traffic along the highways and at one point clipping the radio aerial off a police car.

Two Maryland state troopers in helicopters followed as the chopper, at heights ranging from hundreds of feet to car-top levels, zigzagged along the Baltimore-Washington parkway. He ditched one of the police helicopters in what Sewell called "an old dog-fight tactic" and buzzed into Washington without running lights and below radar scanner levels.

Sewell said he was in "constant aggravation trying to keep an eye on him and to know where the hell he was going."

The chopper wound up at the Ellipse—a park across the street from the White House. "He then turned on all his lights and hovered five minutes at the Washington Monument grounds seven feet off the ground," said state trooper William Clark.

Sewell said the chopper then started moving toward the White House. "From my indications, his intention was to fly the aircraft directly into the White House," he said.

"As he approached the first third of the White House lawn the floodlights came on and figures appeared surrounding the yard itself. The aircraft's forward flight was halted."

The chopper was brought up short but both Sewell and Secret Service spokesman Jack Warner said the craft "appeared to land on its own." Sewell landed between the plane and the White House "as an extra precaution" and saw bullet holes the size of half-dollars that were punched by the shotgun pellets.

No one knows why Preston took the wild spree on his three-day weekend pass. "He has suicidal tendencies," said Sgt. Tony Rogers of the Metropolitan Police Department.

"From what I've heard," said one soldier shooting pool at the 661st transportation company's recreation room, "he was upset about flunking out of flight school and was going to the White House to see the President."

Maj. John Northridge, his commanding officer, said "any reason we would give would be an unfounded guess."

"He was above average intelligence and gave no indication of a mental problem," officials said. They said there was no indication of alcohol or drug abuse and Preston had no record of disciplinary action.

But Sewell raised a question of safety to the President: "If he had not harassed the citizens of the state of Maryland as he did, and had not made such a big show of it, the man could have flown directly into the White House at 160 knots (miles per hour) and there wouldn't have been anything anybody could do."

Indian Ocean Bases Opposed

DACCA (UPI) — Bangladesh Prime Minister Sheikh Mujibur Rahman said yesterday he is opposed to building any military bases in the Indian Ocean. Mujib said India and Sri Lanka also oppose construction of a British-American naval and air base on Diego Garcia island in the Indian Ocean and any other military bases along the Southeast Asian coastline.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

King Portrait Hung In Capital

ATLANTA (UPI) — A portrait of the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was hung in the Georgia Capitol yesterday, the first black ever to receive such recognition.

Coretta Scott King, widow of the civil rights leader assassinated in Memphis, Tenn., in April, 1968, unveiled the portrait by artist George Mandus.

She said the tribute to King was "in some ways more meaningful than the Nobel Peace Prize that King won in 1964 because it is... in his native city, among the people he lived and worked with throughout his lifetime."

New Cabinet

SAIGON (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu named a new 19-member cabinet today, with all its members friendly to the government and only five new faces.

An expected drastic government shakeup to combat inflation and government corruption failed to materialize.

Last Saturday, Thieu temporarily ousted the entire cabinet for what was believed to be a major overhaul.

New ministers for justice, health, education and the planning directorate were picked by Thieu, and a new position of vice prime minister for inspection was created for retired Army Maj. Gen. Tran Van Don.

Rebels Dig In

MANILA (UPI) — Moslem rebels have taken over a network of World War II tunnels near Jolo town and are holding a number of civilian hostages in apparent preparation for a long siege, rear Adm. Romulo Espaldon said today.

Espaldon said the rebels took over concrete and mud bunkers built by the Japanese during World War II and were scattered over a four-square mile area just outside the town.

He said the rebels retreated into the outskirts of the capital after heavy fighting.

Flood Disaster

SANTIAGO DEL ESTERO, Argentina (UPI) — The government declared a vast section of northwestern Argentina a disaster area today following nine days of floods that left up to 100 persons dead and 55,000 homeless.

The flood waters began to recede today, but washed-out roads and mud-coated airfields hampered rescue operations in a rain-battered 12 of the country's 23 provinces.

Authorities said huge tracts of farmland — up to 24,700 acres — were devastated and crops of tobacco, sugar cane and vegetables destroyed.

Julie Doing Well

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — Julie Nixon Eisenhower was making such good progress today that doctors at Indiana University hospital said if President Nixon made a surprise visit to see his younger daughter she might be well enough to leave with him.

Mrs. Eisenhower, 25, underwent emergency surgery Thursday for removal of a bleeding ovarian cyst. A team of four doctors examined her for 15 minutes yesterday, and described her condition as "very well."

Communist Raids

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist forces stepped up attacks across South Vietnam today in one of the most intense days of fighting in a year, the Saigon military command said.

The command reported 148 Communist raids against government installations from dawn yesterday to dawn today, but gave details on only a half-dozen of the clashes.

Pay Demand Cut

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's striking coal miners cut back their wage demands today, but still insisted on nearly twice as much as allowed under the government's anti-inflation wage guidelines.

Leaders of the miners union went before the National Pay Board today, offering to reopen contract negotiations if the government promises to grant the coal workers a 31 per cent wage increase.

The new salary request, although below the 35 per cent demanded before the walkout, was almost twice as much as the 16.5 per cent maximum allowed under Prime Minister Edward Heath's guidelines.

Auto Layoffs

DETROIT (UPI) — More than 27,000 U.S. auto workers began a one-week layoff today as industry executives predicted fewer shutdowns by mid-March if the gasoline shortage scare does not worsen.

The idled workers manned assembly lines in seven plants that turn out slow selling big cars and eight manufacturing plants that supply them.

Police Protest

BELFAST (UPI) — Police refused to make routine arrests across Northern Ireland today in a protest against the prosecution of a fellow officer under the province's tough, antiterrorist law.

A police spokesman denied the protest was a strike, but he said officers would only make arrests "in emergencies involving danger to life and limb" until exempted from the antiterrorist statute.

The protest stemmed from last Thursday's decision to try a policeman under the antiterrorist statute for assaulting a prisoner. The statute gives authorities the power to hand down sentences without a jury trial.

Mideast Peace Efforts Sputter

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The U.S. peace initiative in the Middle East appeared today to be running into trouble because of Arab refusal to lift the oil embargo.

The well-informed Israeli newspaper Davar, which often reflects the views of the government, quoted diplomatic sources in Jerusalem as saying Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger was formulating a "package deal" to get troop disengagement talks started between Israel and Syria.

But Arab Middle East sources in London told UPI diplomatic correspondent K.C. Thaler their governments have been given to understand that the Kissinger peace initiative may be put temporarily on ice unless the oil embargo is eased soon.

Saudi Arabia has shown indications of lifting the oil embargo but the chief opposition came from Kuwait, Algeria and Syria despite Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's urgings they ease up.

Complicating the situation was Russia's failure to get Syria to ease its stand on troop disengagement talks with Israel and its apparent reluctance to bring pressure on Syria to do so.

The Beirut newspaper An-Nahar reported another snag today. It said a crisis has developed in relations between Jordan and the United States involving the handling of King Hussein's scheduled meeting with President Nixon on Feb. 8 and Jordanian belief that U.S. intelligence knew in advance of a Jordanian army mutiny that broke out at that time. The Hussein-Nixon visit was postponed until later.

The Israeli newspaper said the basic Kissinger proposal involved linking a time table for the release of Israeli prisoners in Syria with specific proposals for the disengagement of their armies on the Golan Heights front.

Israel has said it will not negotiate disengagement terms with Syria, either directly or indirectly, until it gets a list of its prisoners of war in Syria and the Red Cross is allowed to visit them.

"If the Americans succeed in their effort," Davar said, "they will try to offer a new order of sequence which will assure fulfillment of the Israeli demands regarding the prisoners of war within a framework of progress on a negotiated separation of forces agreement."

It said such a package proposal was made possible by new Arab proposals drawn up at the Arab meeting in Algiers last week.

With the U.S. initiative stalled for the moment, Israel pushed ahead with dismantling its ground and air links to the west bank of the Suez Canal, rushing to meet this week's deadline for abandoning all territory seized from Egypt in October.

Israeli army sappers laid detonating charges today at a freshly abandoned Egyptian airfield in advance of Israel's withdrawal Thursday from the west bank of the Suez Canal, military sources said.

The dynamiting operation at Fayid began, they said, shortly after the last U.S. built Hercules C130 transport plane took off on an eastward course.

Youth Goes Long Way To Save Cat

ERIE, Pa. (UPI) — Mark Emchick, 11, Cleveland, Ohio, took an unexpected trip yesterday after he boarded a Penn Central freight train near his home to retrieve his pet cat.

The youth, son of Harold and Shirley Emchick, followed his pet cat onto a flatbed railroad car standing in a train yard near his home.

The train started up before he was able to get off, however and some two hours later, he found himself at Union Terminal in Erie.

Trainmaster Ralph Williams discovered young Emchick and telephoned police who took the lad to headquarters and notified his parents.

The cat jumped off the train before the freight left Cleveland.

Soccer Game Stampede Causes 48 Deaths In Cairo Stadium

CAIRO (UPI) — A panicky stampede that followed collapse of an iron fence surrounding a Cairo soccer field killed 48 soccer fans and injured 47 others yesterday, the Ministry of Youth affairs reported today.

Police said the dead fans were trampled underfoot or suffocated in what Cairo newspapers called the worst disaster in the history of Cairo soccer. Ironically it was the first major sports event in Cairo since the October War with Israel.

Part of the blame lay with a last-minute decision by the organizers of an international soccer game to transfer the game from the 100,000 capacity Nasser Stadium to the 45,000 capacity Zamalek Stadium.

More than 80,000 fans had jammed into the smaller stadium when the tragedy happened just before the scheduled 3:00 p.m. start of a match between Cairo's Zamalek soccer team and Dukla of Prague.

Thousands of fans were standing in a narrow passage between the regular spectator area and a five-foot high iron rail fence designed to stop fans invading the playing field.

As the two teams ran on to the field about 15 minutes before the kickoff, the crowd on one side of the stadium surged forward. Under the pressure the iron railings broke at three separate sections.

To escape the pressure, the fans close to the fence fled onto the field, followed by thousands of others. The match was canceled immediately while rescue workers picked up the casualties and police cleared the stadium.

Police said at one point the grandstand behind the surging crowd concrete flooring also collapsed under the pressure. They said this did not cause casualties, but fans in the affected section of the bleachers joined the stampede onto the playing field.

The Egyptian Football Federation, the Interior Ministry and the state prosecutor's office launched an immediate investigation.

Interest in the game was exceptionally high because the Dukla team played an exciting 2-2 tie with the National Sporting Club at the Nasser stadium Friday. National and Zamalek are Cairo's two best soccer teams.

Railroad Crane Operator Killed

ASHLAND, Ore. (UPI) — A crane operator was killed yesterday when four cars of a moving freight train derailed, toppling his equipment inside a tunnel in a cave-in.

W.S. Stesses of Minnow, Ore., was riding on a track-mounted crane on a Southern Pacific Railroad train when the four cars of the northbound freight derailed.

The 45-car train had just entered Tunnel 13 on the Siskiyou line near the Oregon-California state line when the derailment happened, an SP spokesman said.

The mobile crane had been used by SP crews repairing storm damage near Dunsmuir, Calif. Under union rules, the crane operator must ride on track mounted units to be sure the crane boom clears obstructions.

Cause of the derailment was under investigation.

Over 30 Years Experience In Nutrition

HERE'S HEALTH!

YOUR FEET WILL THANK YOU FROM THE BOTTOM OF THEIR SOLES!

Did you ever stop to think that a fourth of our bones are in our feet, along with about 200 ligaments and 40 muscles? And a 150 pound man, walking a single mile, puts a collective load of 132 tons on those bones, ligaments and muscles! Which says that keeping feet in shape is more important than ever, now that walking is back in style as one way to save fuel.

Going BIRKENSTOCK is a great way to cope with the energy crisis. The comfort, support and freedom designed into the sandals make them the next best alternative to walking barefoot in wet sand. And the whole body benefits. We have some beautiful new models just in from the Birkenstock factory in Germany.

FIRST 'CITY HALL' — When San Rafael was incorporated 100 years ago today, there was, of course, no city hall. So the new town government held its board of trustees (council) sessions in the second floor of this building at Fourth and C Streets, owned by J. O. B. Short. Downstairs was McAllister's Saloon.

TWIN RATE INCREASES IN CORVALLIS

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — The birth of twins occurs once every few months at Good Samaritan Hospital in this city of about 40,000. But four sets have been delivered in the past five days.

The first pair, a boy and a girl, arrived on Valentine's Day. Three hours later, another set was born, this time both boys.

Two days later, on Saturday, twin girls were born, and another pair of boys was delivered yesterday.

Stage Set For Fischer Chess Fight

PALMA DE MAJORCA, Spain (AP) — The Soviet Union has scored a clean sweep in the quarterfinals of the World Chess Championship eliminations, insuring that a Russian will meet Bobby Fischer next year for the title.

Tigran Petrosian, the world champion in 1963 and 1966, wound up the quarterfinals Sunday with his third victory over Lajos Portisch of Hungary. Their final score was 3-2, with eight draws.

The semifinals will begin in April. Petrosian will play Viktor Korchnoi, who defeated Henrique Mecking of Brazil 3-1 in the quarterfinals. The other semifinalists are Boris Spassky, the 1969 world champion who was defeated by Fischer in 1972, and Anatoly Karpov, 22-year-old Soviet prodigy.

Spassky defeated Robert Byrne of the United States in the quarterfinals, and Karpov downed Lev Polugaevsky of the Soviet Union.

Warning About Western Music

MOSCOW (UPI) — A Communist party official has warned Lithuania's young people to beware of "senseless" Western music and "extravagant" fashions, according to the Soviet-skaya Litva newspaper.

The newspaper's yesterday edition which reached Moscow today, said A. Barkuskas, secretary of the Central Committee of Lithuania, made the comments to a congress of the Komsomol (Young Communists). The congress was held in Vilnius, the capital of the Baltic republic annexed by the Soviets in 1940.

"Imperialist propaganda and anti-Soviets are constantly looking for ways to allow bourgeois ideology, Western standards of living and bourgeois morals to penetrate into our society," he said.

Double Anniversary For San Rafael Today

Today, the centennial of San Rafael's incorporation, is a double anniversary for the city, as well as an anniversary for Marin County.

On Feb. 18, 1874, Gov. Newton Booth signed the act of incorporation of the town of San Rafael, thus giving Marin County its first incorporated community.

Exactly 24 years earlier — Feb. 18, 1850 — Marin County was created as one of the 27 original counties of California, and San Rafael was designated as the county seat.

California was then not yet even a state, although a state constitution had been adopted. John C. Fremont and William M. Gwin, elected as senators, had gone to Washington to present the constitution and petition for statehood. But action was held up by the slavery issue, with southern senators opposed to allowing California into the union as a free state, lest it upset the political balance between slaveholding and free states. Not until Sept. 9, 1850, did the act of statehood pass both houses of Congress and receive President Millard Fillmore's signature — seven months after Marin and 26 other counties were created.

Accord Seen Between Pakistan, Bangladesh

LAHORE, Pakistan (UPI) — The semi-official Pakistani newspaper Nusawat said today Pakistan will recognize the state of Bangladesh within 48 hours, permitting both nations to attend an Islamic summit conference which starts here on Friday.

Bangladesh was the former east wing of Pakistan and was lost in Pakistan's 1971 war with India. Nuwar, organ of Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto's ruling party, said Bangladesh Prime Minister Sheikh Mujibur Rahman would drop his insistence on trying 195 Pakistani prisoners as war criminals.

Those 27 counties have since expanded to 58, but Marin's boundaries have remained unchanged since 124 years ago.

Feb. 18 became a significant date for San Rafael again in 1874 as the result of "home rule" agitation (largely sparked by the Marin Journal), which had resulted in an incorporation bill being introduced in the Assembly in January.

Signing of the incorporation act was followed by scheduling of the first municipal election for April 6. Five members of a town board of trustees were chosen in the election.

The five were Sidney V. Smith, who was chosen the first board president (mayor), Dr. A. V. Taliaferro, J. B. Rice, William J. Miller, and Jacob Short.

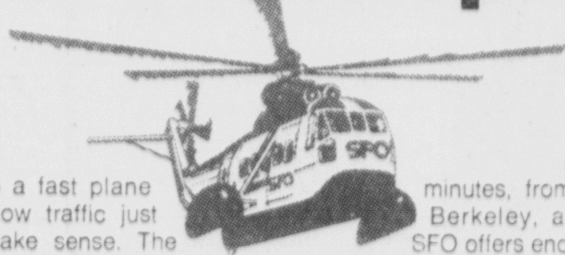

They held their first meeting April 9 to complete formation of a town government and introduce its first ordinances. Having no city hall, they met in Short's Hall — a public meeting room in the second floor of a building at Third and C streets owned by J.O.B. Short, brother of one of the councilmen. Downstairs was Archie McAllister's saloon.

Part of the deal, the Urdu daily said, was that Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Algeria would guarantee the safety of the prisoners.

Indonesian Foreign Minister Adam Malik arrived today carrying what he indicated was a solution to the problems which keep Pakistan from recognizing Bangladesh.

"I have with me the assurance of the Bangladesh government that it is willing to guarantee a solution to the problems," said Malik, who leads his nation's delegation at the Islamic summit conference which starts here Friday.

Skipper Tries To Sink With Ship

SANDY HOOK, N.J. (UPI) — The crew and passengers aboard a sinking fishing boat forced the captain into a life preserver yesterday when he apparently wanted to go down with the 51-foot charter craft.

Worldwide Beef Shortage Seen

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A worldwide beef "drought" is coming unless meat producing countries streamline their cattle raising and meat packing industries, according to Jose Saucedo Siller, president of the Mexico Meat Packers Association.

Siller yesterday told delegates at a weekend convention of the Western States Meat Packers Association that "complete industrialization" in the production of all meat and meat byproducts is needed to avert serious beef shortages.

The energy crisis is an important factor in the future cost and availability of beef, he said.

Norman Maffit, association vice president, was unwilling to speculate how high the beef price could go because of the industry's "drastic state of flux."

The captain died despite efforts to save him but the other 11 person aboard were rescued.

Leonard Salkin, a Maplewood, N.J., marina operator who aided in the rescue, said Capt. Herman Grothues, 67, "told one of the survivors he just didn't want to live. They all put life preservers on but he fought it off. Finally the mate forced it on him and one of the passengers held him."

The Leonia, N.J., captain, who skippered the Zephyr II, was pronounced dead on arrival at the John F. Kennedy International Airport medical center in New York. A passenger, Peter Thompson, 32, of Edgewater, was reported in critical condition at the Long Beach, N.Y., hospital.

The mate and the nine other passengers were treated and released at two Monmouth County hospitals after being picked up by another boat, the Falcon out of Atlantic Highlands, authorities said.

A spokesman for the U.S. Coast Guard said the boat began taking on water in the engine compartment about noon. The engine became disabled and the ship sank about 15 minutes later.

The ship's first mate, Richard Bulvid, 26, of Bayonne, said that when the ship began to sink, Grothues acted "like a typical captain. He didn't lose his cool. He was just very calm."

Bulvid said the captain didn't leave the ship, then almost submerged, until sending out a Mayday message to the Coast Guard.

Salkin and Bulvid agreed that the 38-degree water and rough seas probably caused Grothues' death.

"You hit that water and you haven't got a chance," Salkin said. "You've got about 30 seconds to survive in that water. The reason the others survived is that they've got a lot of meat on them."

Although nine passengers and Bulvid managed to swim to the Falcon, Grothues and a passenger had to be pulled from the water by a Coast Guard helicopter.

Before the ship sank Grothues tried not to excite the passengers, who had been fishing for ling and whiting, according to Bulvid.

"As a matter of fact, the passengers were below and he said, 'Fellows, want to come up we've got a little problem,'" Bulvid quoted the captain as saying.

"There are no words to describe him," Bulvid said. "He was a pleasant man. The cream of the crop."

partment for two years. He reached that peak during fiscal 1972-73 but shortly thereafter resigned the job and returned to being simply coroner-public administrator at a salary of about $17,000 per year.

While his retirement pension will be based on his former $33,000 salary, Dr. Cooke's current payments into the retirement system are based on his present $17,000 income — or about half of what they were.

He will, in other words, receive a pension of about $6,000 per year, while only paying for a pension of between $3,000 and $4,000.

County officials familiar with the retirement system said Dr. Cooke's case "is very rare." There's nothing illegal about it, just unusual, they said.

Dr Cooke was elected county coroner in 1966, after campaigning on the need for medical experience in the job and promised full-time service. Then until now he has maintained a private medical practice in Belvedere.

During his first two years in office, he was paid $12,000 annually but chose not to join the retirement system. (He has the option to "buy in" for those two years at any time).

Not until June 1969, when he was appointed head of the medical division and his salary boosted to $18,500, did Dr. Cooke decide to join the retirement system.

Two years and several pay hikes later, Dr. Cooke was named director of the consolidated health services department and his salary was pushed over the $30,000 mark, reaching its high of about $33,000 in fiscal 1972-73.

Last year, his department was merged with welfare and probation under the health and human services superagency headed by Welfare Director Betty L. Presley.

The consolidation, supported by Cooke, followed months of internal dissent and controversy in his department. He resigned as county supervisors approved the consolidation.

His resignation brought two other changes. His coroner's salary was pegged at slightly more than $17,000 by county supervisors and his job description in the county budget was changed to read "Half time" by the county administrator.

Had Dr Cooke remained simply coroner-public administrator, his current salary would be $16,000 based on pay raises given other elected county officials over the last eight years.

House Vote Seen On Impeachment

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI)—An American Civil Liberties Union official predicted yesterday that the House of Representatives will vote to impeach President Nixon.

The executive director of the Washington State ACLU, Lauren Selden, said the House would "have no choice but to act, or the people will elect a new set of representatives to do the people's business."

Selden said a Roper poll commissioned by the ACLU showed that 44 per cent of the public favors impeachment and 45 per cent opposes it.

Drinking Party Ends In Stabbing

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A 35-year-old apartment manager was stabbed to death last night during a drinking party involving two men and a woman.

The victim was identified as Joaquin Heredia.

Police said Heredia was stabbed after reportedly making a pass at the other man's girlfriend.

Booked on suspicion of murder was Daniel Armenta, 24, the woman's identity was not released and she was not held.

Speed Readers Lose Something

NEW YORK (UPI)—Most students taking a recent speed-reading program tended to lose comprehension as their speed increased, a California State University professor of psychology reports.

Writing in the December issue of Psychology Today magazine, Dr. Richard D. Graf said his study of 31 students showed their memory average dropped one-third as their reading accelerated.

"Many of them appeared to read three times as fast as they had before," Graf said. "When they took their comprehension tests, though, their comprehension scores suffered. It made no difference what sort of literature they were reading."

Berkeley Man Thought Drowned

A Berkeley man was swept off some rocks while fishing yesterday near Muir Beach and apparently drowned, according to Marin County sheriff's deputies.

A deputy said that no trace was found of Vernon Lucero, 31, who was fishing with his brother, Louis E. Lucero of San Pablo, at Pirate's Cove about one mile south of Muir Beach at about 11:30 a.m. when the wave struck.

A Coast Guard spokesman said helicopters searched the area for about two hours and found nothing.

New Long-Range Bomber Asked

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. George S. Brown called yesterday for a new long-range bomber.

"The new long-range bomber is needed more than any other new weapon," Brown said in an interview in U.S. News and World Report.

Brown said American defenses are good, but that the Vietnam war delayed modernization. "We set aside modernization during the Vietnamese war, and that was a long time. The forces are smaller today, but they're terribly effective," he said.

Briton Purchases Hitler Pictures

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—An unidentified Briton paid $2,800 during a weekend auction for a photo album bulging with 390 personal pictures of German dictator Adolf Hitler.

The album, one of only three in existence, was bought by a London man who paid another $1,000 for several dozen other unmounted photos of the German Fuehrer believed to have been taken by his personal photographer.

Officials at the Sotheby-Parke Bernet auction house said the winning bid was teletyped from London yesterday.

School Review Of Calendar Set

School calendar for 1974-75 will be reviewed by Tamalpais High School District trustees when they meet tomorrow at 8:30 p.m. in the Redwood High School faculty lounge.

The proposed calendar does not include a week-long winter "ski vacation" which trustees discussed at their last meeting.

The regular meeting will be preceded at 8 p.m. by a closed session. Trustees will hear charges against district personnel and will meet with their negotiator concerning upcoming salary negotiations.

Man Arrested On Check Charge

A San Francisco man was arrested yesterday by police in that city on a Sausalito police warrant ordering his arrest for writing bad checks.

Robert James Cusano, 23, was booked at Marin County Jail on suspicion of writing a check on a closed account and was held in lieu of $5,000 bail.

According to Sausalito police, the warrant was issued in August 1973 after Cusano wrote a $700 check on a closed account at a Sausalito art gallery.

Talk On Energy Is Set Tomorrow

Alternate energy sources, including nuclear, solar and geothermal energy, will be discussed by the Marin chapter of the California Society of Professional Engineers tomorrow at 8 p.m. in room 120 of the College of Marin Science Center.

Professional engineers from industry will appear at the public meeting to discuss energy conservation and alternate energy sources.

The meeting will be preceded by tours of the college's science facilities at 7:30 p.m.

Mount Etna Quiet After Explosions

CATANIA, Sicily (UPI)—Mount Etna has ended its latest eruption but a series of mild earthquakes has begun shaking Europe's tallest volcano, a team of volcanologists said today.

The scientists said the flow of lava and explosions that belched brimstone and ashes 500 feet into the air have stopped. The last two fingers of lava formed Saturday morning flowed 1,200 feet, they said.

OBITUARIES

Jean A. Clarkson Dies At 78

Funeral for Jean A. Clarkson, an active member of several Marin senior citizen groups and nominee for most outstanding senior citizen of Marin in 1970, will be tomorrow at 3 p.m. in the Harry M. Williams Mortuary, San Rafael.

Mrs. Clarkson died Friday at Ross General Hospital after a short illness. She was 78.

Mrs. Clarkson was a native of Michigan and was reared in the Pacific Northwest.

She was a locksmith, learning the trade from her husband, the late Carl Clarkson. They operated a shop in San Francisco for 20 years. She went to work for Carl Bunther of San Rafael in 1968.

She was a summer resident of Marin, starting in 1938, and became a permanent resident in 1959. She lived at 605 North San Pedro Road at the time of her death.

Mrs. Clarkson was vice president of the Gay Seventies senior club and a staff member of the Marin Senior Coordinating Council at the time of her death. She also served as historian of the San Pedro Swingers, which became the Gay Seventies.

For 10 years she visited the sick and needy as a deacon of the Presbyterian Church of Santa Venetia and provided meeting places at the church for senior groups.

She also took many residents of Marin senior housing projects to the market in her own car.

She was a member of the Rosecrucians, an international organization, and the San Rafael Goldenaires.

She is survived by a sister, Clarie Semmes of Warrington, Ore.

Memorial contributions are preferred to the American Cancer Society.

more gasoline to parched states, at least a statewide and possibly a nationwide gas strike could occur.

The government and service stations are on a "collision course," he said, and unless the problems are solved "something's got to give."

Thomas Anderson, executive director, of the 5,300-member Pennsylvania Service Station Dealers Association, said plans were going ahead for a statewide strike by next weekend.

The latest states to move toward their own version of the "Oregon plan" gas system of odd-even day rationing based on the last number of license plates, were North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia.

North Carolina Gov. James E. Holshouser, Jr., called for support of the voluntary system which went into effect Monday so as to avoid a stiffer program.

South Carolina Gov. John C. West said he would announce Tuesday a decision on implementation of a voluntary plan.

So far, variations of the Oregon plan have been in operation in eight states—Oregon, Hawaii, Washington, Maryland, New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania—and the District of Columbia.

Gas Attendant Victim Of Attack

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI)—Robert Link, 27, was pumping gas for a long line of cars when a motorist with four women passengers tried to cut into the head of the line.

Link told police that when he continued working on the car at the pumps, the male driver punched him and the four women joined the attack.

The attendant said he sprayed gasoline on the attackers, who then jumped into their car and sped off.

J. F. ERBA

Joseph F. Erba, longtime Petaluma resident and a retired butcher and musician, died Saturday at a Petaluma hospital after a long illness. He was 59.

Erba was born in Santa Cruz, and had lived in the Petaluma area 40 years. The family home is at 526 Western Avenue.

During World War II Erba worked as a fireman at the then Two Rock Ranch Army station. After that he became a butcher and owned and operated a butcher shop on Western Avenue.

He also was an accordion teacher and had his own orchestra at one time.

He was a member of the Musicians Union, the Butchers Union, the Italian-Catholic Federation of Retired Persons.

Erba's wife, Armada, died in 1972.

He is survived by two sons, Donald Erba of Novato and Eugene Erba of Davis; a daughter, Carol Petersen of Sonoma; two sisters, Anna Mangili of Stockton and Marie Matis of Los Gatos; two brothers, Bautista Erba of Santa Cruz and Sylvester Erba of Los Gatos, and nine grandchildren.

Mass of the Christian Burial will be offered at 11 a.m. Wednesday at St. Vincent's Church in Petaluma. The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Parent Funeral Chapel. Entombment will be in Calvary Cemetery.

The family prefers contributions to the Heart Fund.

ELTON SIDES

Graveside service for Elton Sides, retired seaman in the Merchant Marine, will be tomorrow at 4 p.m. at Cypress Hill Memorial Park in Petaluma.

Sides, 73, died Thursday in a boating accident on Bodega Bay.

Sides was born and reared in Farmersville, Tex. He had lived in California for 26 years and in Sonoma County for 14. In Petaluma he resided at 523 Upham Street.

He was an Army veteran of World War I and a member of the American Legion Post No. 28 in Petaluma.

He and his wife, Galina, married in Shanghai, China, in 1940 and lived there for eight years. They came to San Francisco in 1948 and moved to Petaluma in 1960.

Survivors include his wife and a son, William Sides of Forestville.

Visitation at the funeral home will be until 3 p.m. tomorrow.

G.F. METCALF

Funeral for George F. Metcalf, retired dairy employee, will be tomorrow at 2 p.m. at the Parent Funeral Home in Petaluma.

Metcalf, 74, died Thursday in a boating accident on Bodega Bay.

He was born and reared in Oklahoma. He had lived in Sonoma County for seven years and in California for 15. He resided in Petaluma at 1014 B Street.

Metcalf was a retired transportation manager for Foremost Dairy Co. in Petaluma.

He was a World War I veteran of the Army.

He had been a member of the Watertown Masons, the Consistory of Santa Rosa, the Zarah Shrine of Minneapolis, the World War I Barracks No. 199 of Petaluma and the Modern Woodmen of the World.

Survivors include his wife, Stella Metcalf of Petaluma; three stepsons, Harry Elliot of El Cajon, San Diego County, John Riewerts of San Francisco and Errol S. Riewerts of Texas; two sisters, Mrs. Clara Higgins of Ceres, Stanislaus County, and Mrs. Bessie Barr of Florida.

Burial will be private at Cypress Hill Memorial Park in Petaluma. The World War I Barracks No. 199 will conduct a service tonight at 8 p.m. at the funeral home.

FRANCIS P. McKERNAN

Francis P. McKernan, father of Francis J. McKernan of Novato and a resident of Nazareth House in San Rafael for the past five years, died yesterday in a local hospital after a lengthy illness. He was 77.

McKernan was born in Ireland and was a graduate of the Royal Military Academy at Sandhurst. He also attended the Royal Cadet School in India and served as a captain on the northwest frontier of India with the Punjabi Regiment before coming to the United States.

He married his late wife, Rosaleen, in India, and the couple came to San Francisco about 1924. For a time McKernan worked as an accountant and then during the 1930s became a federal correctional officer working at McNeil Island Penitentiary and at the federal prison in Tucson, Ariz., where he retired about 15 years ago.

He returned to the Bay Area after retirement and came to Marin to live at Nazareth House with his wife about five years ago. She died four years ago.

McKernan was a member of St. Benedict Oblate and the Sequoia Art Group.

In addition to his son, McKernan is survived by a sister, Sister Mary Philip Neri of Ireland, and four grandchildren.

Mass of the Christian Burial will be at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday at Nazareth House. The Rosary will be recited there at 7 p.m. tomorrow. Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery.

The family prefers memorial contributions to Nazareth House.

ROBERT C. PERRY

Funeral for Robert C. Perry, brother of Fred Perry of San Rafael, will be held at 10 a.m. tomorrow in the Patterson and O'Connell Chapel in San Mateo.

Perry died Thursday after a brief illness. He was 63. He was born in Sweetwater, Tex.

He was a longtime telephone company worker, and was a member of the Telephone Pioneers of America. He also was a member of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks Lodge No. 1112 of San Mateo. The family home is in San Mateo.

In addition to his brother, he is survived by his wife, Helen Perry; a daughter, Patricia L. Millsap of Redwood City, and a son, Robert Perry of San Mateo.

Burial will be in Skylawn Memorial Park. The family prefers contributions to the American Heart Fund.

ERNEST M. SULLIVAN

A Mass of the Resurrection for Ernest M. Sullivan of San Rafael will be offered at 11 a.m. tomorrow in St. Ignatius Church, San Francisco.

Sullivan died Saturday in a local hospital after a brief illness. He was 83.

He was born in San Francisco, and was graduated from Golden Gate School of Law. He was in the laundry business most of his life. He moved to San Rafael six years ago.

He is survived by two daughters, Marianne I. Colombo of San Rafael and Catherine F. Dougherty of San Francisco; one son, William J. Sullivan of Sebastopol, a sister, Ruth Carlew of Carmichael, nine grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. today in the Carew and English chapel, San Francisco. Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery, Colma.

LOIS TRYDE

Memorial service for Lois R. Tryde, a resident of Marin since 1957, will be Sunday at 4 p.m. at the Unitarian Fellowship of Marin church in San Rafael. Funeral and burial will be in Waseca, Minn.

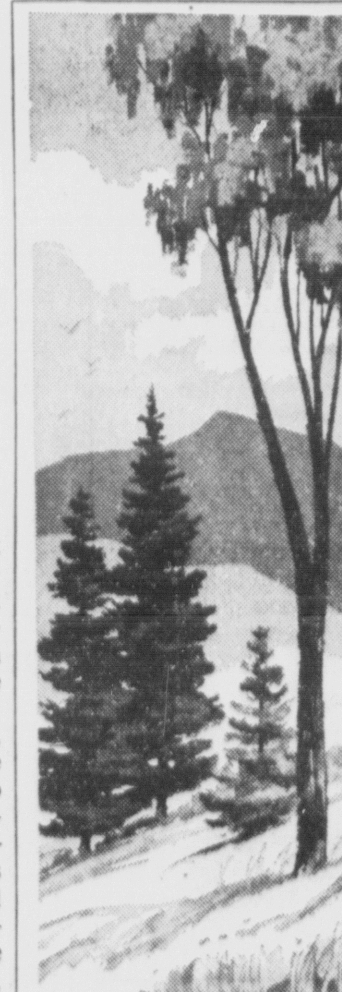

Mrs. Tryde was found hanging in her home Friday, according to the Marin County Coroner's Office, and died Saturday at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael. She was 47.

Mrs. Tryde was born and reared in Waseca. She was a graduate of the University of Minnesota.

She was a school teacher in Washington and Oregon before marrying her husband, Erik, in Reno in 1956.

They lived in San Francisco where he was a civil engineer before moving to 671 Barbary Lane in Terra Linda in 1957.

Survivors in addition to her husband are three children, Dana, Jill and Chris of San Rafael; her mother, Helen Hodgson of Waseca; two sisters, Doris Gilleland of St. Paul, Minn., and Peggy Horner of Waseca; and a brother, Robert Hodgson of Council Bluffs, Iowa.

The familer prefers no flowers be sent.

ALICE RIPLEY

Private funeral was held Saturday for Alice B. Ripley, a professional musician for 60 years.

Mrs. Ripley died Friday in a Novato hospital after a short illness. She was 81.

Mrs. Ripley was born and reared in La Junta, Colo.

She began traveling throughout the country playing piano and organ as a young woman.

She married the late Emmett R. Ripley, while on a musical tour in Chicago.

They moved to Glendale, Los Angeles County, in the 1920s where Mrs. Ripley continued her musical career. She was musical director of several Christian Science churches in southern California and had an early-morning radio program for many years.

Mrs. Ripley had lived in Belvedere with her son, Edward L. Ripley, for the last year.

Survivors in addition to her son are a daughter, Mary Ruth Leicester of Glendale, eight grandchildren, and one great-grandchild.

ELMER HANSON

Funeral for Elmer B. Hanson, a 50-year resident of San Rafael, will be held at 11 a.m. tomorrow in Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

Hanson died in a local hospital Saturday after a brief illness. He was 84.

Born in Sweden, he was a retired teamster, and a member of Teamsters Union Local No. 856 of San Francisco.

He is survived by a son, Frank L. Hanson of San Rafael, and three grandchildren.

Burial will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

MARIE MITCHELL

Funeral for Marie Mitchell, mother of Evelyn McColgan and June Day of Corte Madera, will be held at 11 a.m. tomorrow in the Daphne mortuary in Corte Madera.

Mrs. Mitchell died Thursday in a Hayward convalescent hospital after a lengthy illness. She was 68.

Born in Hutchinson, Kans., she moved to San Francisco about 50 years ago.

She also is survived by two grandchildren.

Burial will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

H.J. CORNEPS

Herman John Corneps, 76, longtime San Rafael resident, died Saturday at a convalescent hospital in Newman, Stanislaus County, after a short illness.

Corneps was born in San Francisco and grew up there. He moved to San Rafael about 40 years ago. The family home is at 33 Redding Way.

Corneps was head shipping clerk for Tilley Manufacturing Co. in San Francisco for many years before retiring about 11 years ago.

He is survived by his wife, Pearl; a son, Don Crisanti of Crows Landing, Stanislaus County, and four grandchildren.

Funeral will be at 10 a.m. Wednesday at Keaton's Mortuary in San Rafael. Entombment will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery. The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the mortuary.

EVELYN GIBSON

Evelyn M. Gibson, lifelong resident of Petaluma, died yesterday at the age of 80 in a local convalescent hospital after a long illness.

She was the widow of Dell

Gibson, poultry production worker who died in 1954.

She is survived by a son, Willard Gibson of Santa Clara, two grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Mass of Christian Burial will be offered at 9:30 a.m. Thursday at St. Vincent's Church in Petaluma, followed by burial at Golden Gate National Cemetery. The Rosary will be recited tomorrow at 8 p.m. at the Parent Funeral Chapel in Petaluma.

The family prefers donations to the Hanna Boys Center.

BAMA FOSTER

Bama Foster, mother of Rev. Albert W. Foster of Petaluma, died yesterday in a Sonoma County convalescent hospital after a lengthy illness. She was 90.

Mrs. Foster was a member of her son's United Methodist Church in Petaluma. She was born in Thomasville, Ga., and was graduated from a music college in Georgia.

She also is survived by four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

The funeral will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the Parent Funeral Chapel, followed by private burial in Cypress Hill Memorial Park.

CIVIC GATHERING — San Rafael townspeople, dressed in their Sunday best, gathered around the steps of the old Marin County Courthouse for a civic celebration in the early part of this century. The courthouse dominated downtown San Rafael for more than nine decades. Countless parades swung by its portico while innumerable rallies and fairs were held on its steps and surrounding lawns.

San Rafael's Courthouse Landmark Almost Century

By DOROTHY GARDINER

Almost a century of history went up in flames the night of May 25, 1971 when the old Marin County Courthouse was destroyed in a fire set by two teen-agers.

The courthouse, a San Rafael landmark for more than nine decades, had served as the seat of county government from 1873 to 1962. It lost its status with the 1962 opening of the $4.7 million Marin County Administration Building at the new Civic Center west of Santa Venetia.

Seven years later, in 1969, the old courthouse was completely vacated when its courts and jail were transferred to the $11.8 million Hall of Justice at the Civic Center.

But during its days the old courthouse was one of the best known and busiest public buildings in the Bay Area.

Criminals, vagrants and Saturday night drunks were jailed within its walls. Famous and obscure criminal and civil cases were tried within its paneled courtrooms. Countless marriage licenses were issued over its counters. County business was transacted and taxes collected within its offices and Marin's destiny and future decided in its supervisors' chambers.

For generations colorfully uniformed, high-stepping paraders had swung by its wide portals. Its wide tree-lined lawns had been the scenes of countless rallies and also were used by a multitude of organizations for exhibits and fairs.

From the courthouse steps Marin had given a rousing farewell to its World War I doughboys as they marched down

Fourth Street to the Union Depot, embarking on the first leg of a journey that would carry them to the trenches in France.

It had been here that, according to the eyewitness account of a longtime resident, that a gang of hooded horsemen calling themselves "knights of liberty" assaulted and terrorized a suspected German sympathizer during that war.

Local County government had been born almost 70 years earlier when Marin was designated one of California's original 27 counties and San Rafael named its county seat on Feb. 18, 1850.

Five months later (on July 22, 1850) that government convened for the first time when judicial officers who governed local communities rode across dusty trails to San Rafael to elect a three-member court of sessions to govern the county.

Dr. James A. Shorb, a 49er and one of two physicians who settled in San Rafael during the gold rush, was elected to preside over the court. James Black, a Nicasio and North Marin cattleman and onetime Mexican alcalde, and George Milewater of Sausalito were named associate justices.

Early meetings were held in the abandoned Mission San Rafael Arcangel buildings which then probably stood a few yards north of where the courthouse one day would rise.

Around 1858 the county paid Timothy Mahon $5,000 for the adobe hacienda at Fourth and C streets which had been built in 1844 by the late Don Timoteo Murphy. County officials converted the former two-story home into a combination courthouse and jail.

This building, razed in 1872, remained county headquarters until the courthouse on Fourth Street, between A and Court streets, was erected in 1873.

On Feb. 14, 1872 the Board of Supervisors ordered the issuance and sale of bonds for purchase of a site and construction of a courthouse. Bonds totaling $52,250 were sold on March 26 of that year.

Many locations for the new Civic Center were suggested (including sites at Nicasio, Ross Landing and Olema) before a pasture known as the Heuston Block located in San Rafael at Fourth and A streets was purchased for $12,000.

San Francisco contractors A. G. Fitzpatrick and John Cox were awarded a $51,000 contract to build a two-story Corinthian-styled structure. The building was designed by architects Henry Kenitzer and Edward T. Raun.

Construction was well underway by Aug. 3 when the cornerstone was laid at a ceremony conducted by officials from both the Marin and California Grand Masonic lodges.

Six months later (on Feb. 24, 1873) the doors of the courthouse were opened to the public for the first time as 500 splendidly garbed men and women from throughout the Bay Area arrived to attend a party hosted by Marin Lodge No. 200, Independent Order of Odd Fellows.

According to the Marin County Journal "all the rooms on the main floor were thrown open" as couples quadrilled. Nearly 400 sat down to a lavish supper.

The next month county officials moved into the new headquarters which housed Marin's courts, county offices and jail.

Up until executions were transferred to San Quentin Prison some two decades later, condemned felons were hung on gallows, at first outside and later inside the building.

First major addition to the structure was the Hall of Records, erected between Nov. 8, 1905 and May 4, 1908 at a cost of $25,523.

The original tower and dome were removed in 1928 because of "trouble with leaks" and 20 years later the building was again enlarged by the addition of a $400,000 wing on the A Street side of the property.

In 1957-58 a three-story concrete and steel annex costing $512,000 — which many felt ill-matched to the classical, colonnaded structure — was added onto the eastern side of the courthouse.

This annex survived the 1971 fire but was demolished last year to make way for a parking garage for 264 automobiles and an eight-story office building now under construction on the courthouse property.

The $6 million project by McKeon Development of Sacramento is scheduled to open in April.

Paroled Doctor Seeks License

ELDORADO SPRINGS, Mo. (UPI) — Dr. R. Bernard Finch, who was convicted of murdering his wife in California in 1959, says he is confident of regaining his medical license.

Finch, who moved to this Missouri town after his parole from prison in 1971 at the request of residents needing a doctor, commented after the weekend announcement he had passed a state medical licensing examination.

"I am very, very happy about passing the examination," Finch said. "I don't care what the grade was. (He scored 77.2 points, with 75 needed to pass.) I've been out of medical school for 31 years. Ask any doctor who's been out for 31 years and see if they can pass it."

The Missouri Board of Registration for the Healing Arts, which was forced by a court to let Finch take the licensing exam, said it would deny his license no matter what his test score until an appeals court rules on the case.

FIERCE FINALE — Nearly a century of local history went up in flames on the evening of May 25, 1971, when the Marin County Courthouse was destroyed in a spectacular fire set by two teen-aged boys. The building had been abandoned since 1961 when its courts and sheriff's department moved to the newly completed Hall of Justice at the Marin County Civic Center.

Guerrillas Call Off Execution Of Colonel

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Guerrillas stayed the execution of a kidnapped Argentine army colonel today after military sources denied knowing the whereabouts of two missing guerrillas.

A communique from the People's Revolutionary Army (ERP) sent to the newspaper Cronica said they were satisfied that the army had met their demands and that they would not proceed with the threatened execution of Col. Jorge Ibarzabal.

Ibarzabal was captured in an ERP raid on an army tank garrison Jan. 19. The base commander and his wife were killed in that attack along with one soldier and one of the guerrillas. Two other guerrillas disappeared, the outlawed guerrillas said.

Military sources put out word to newsmen Friday that the army was not holding the two missing rebels, and police have declined to comment. The ERP charged the two men were captured following the attack, although their capture was never announced.

The ERP, which considers itself at war with the government of President Juan D. Peron, gave the ultimatum on Ibarzabal's life in a clandestine news conference Friday.

The leftist newspaper El Mundo published a letter Saturday purportedly from Col. Ibarzabal in which he pleaded with the army to "assume the responsibility indicated or I will pay with my life for deeds for which I am not responsible".

The guerrilla group is also holding another army colonel, Florencio Crespo, kidnapped Nov. 7, and American executive Victor Samuelson, kidnapped Dec. 6.

Samuelson's company, Esso of Argentina, has been ordered by the ERP to distribute $10 million worth of food and other goods to the poor as ransom payment.

Two Skindivers Rescued After 24 Hours Trapped In A Cave

HALF MOON BAY, Calif. (UPI) — Two skindiving sailors from Warren, Mich., were rescued cold and hungry yesterday from the back of a waterfilled cave where they had been trapped by crashing waves for 24 hours.

"When the waves came in they covered the whole entrance. It was really scary," said Donald Brinkman, 18, a seaman stationed at the Navy's electronics warfare school at Treasure Island.

Brinkman and Kenneth Mueller, 18, a sailor from the data systems school in San Francisco's Mare Island were walking along Martin's Beach, five miles south of here, Saturday when they spotted the cave and decided to swim with snorkeling gear and explore it.

They didn't realize the current was so strong and weren't able to swim out of the 100-foot-long cavern.

A third sailor, Kevin Travis, 19, also from Mare Island, ran for help and Half Moon Bay cafe owner David Wampole, 36, notified authorities and then headed back to the cave.

However, the pair got stranded by a high tide and they had to be rescued by the San Mateo County Sheriff's special disaster team. Travis was lifted up a cliff by a cable and Wampole was picked up by helicopter.

Rescuers then tried unsuccessfully to enter the cave, but gave up about midnight Saturday. They waited until low tide yesterday afternoon before trying again.

Using a makeshift raft of two life preservers and some buoys, the rescue team floated the contraption into the cave. When they pulled the makeshift raft out both men were aboard but a strap broke and Brinkman was flung back into the cave.

It took three more tries before he was finally pulled to safety.

Russia Announces Missile Testing

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union announced today it will carry out three weeks of mid-Pacific missile tests starting tomorrow and warned all ships and planes to stay clear.

The test area is several hundred miles northwest of Midway Island.

Brinkman told rescuers the pair huddled together on top of the highest rock in the back of the cavern.

They were both taken to Chope Community Hospital in San Mateo and treated for exposure, scratches and bruises. One rescuer, skindiver Gary Burns, a sheriff's deputy, received a bruised toe when he was thrown into the surf by a wave.

100 Years Of Home Rule For San Rafael

One hundred years ago today, Gov. Newton Booth signed the bill making San Rafael an incorporated town.

Twenty-four years earlier to the day, when California was divided into 27 counties, San Rafael had been designated a county seat. It was then, as it was to remain, the principal community of Marin County. But until this date in 1874, it was an unincorporated community, although the seat of county government. It had no home rule.

A NEWSPAPERMAN from Connecticut was largely responsible for the drive for incorporation. In 1873, editor-publisher Simon Fitch Barstow began beating the drums for incorporation in the columns of his Marin Journal. That fall a town meeting was held, which overwhelmingly endorsed the idea. A bill was introduced in the legislature in January, and made its way quite rapidly through both houses and to the desk of Governor Booth.

Simon Fitch Barstow and the other incorporation advocates were convinced that San Rafael could prosper more and develop better if it had home rule. That was what incorporation was all about.

The first town board was elected on April 6 in an election which saw two tickets in the field but a turnout of only 183 of what the Journal reported as 600 registered voters — a preview of low turnouts in subsequent city elections in San Rafael and the cities incorporated later in Marin.

The five trustees elected — Sidney V. Smith, Dr. A. W. Taliaferro, J. B. Rice, William J. Miller and Jacob Short — had to start from scratch in providing San Rafael with local government. At their first meeting, held April 9 in a hall above a saloon, they appointed a town clerk, treasurer, and marshal.

At the same meeting, they voted to prepare an ordinance "for prevention of animals from running at large in the town" — and promptly drew the first of many protests from citizens that would be heard at city council meetings during the next century. "Have we become such a large town that such a measure is necessary?" demanded someone in the audience. It was another preview of things to come that the first protest should be against a "leash law."

FROM THOSE small beginnings grew home rule in San Rafael. The size of the city government today would astonish and probably appall those five men who sat down in the hall above Archie McAllister's Saloon to adopt the first local ordinances.

But home rule has not grown apace. There are now many more restrictions by state and federal governments impinging on city self-determination than there were a century ago. And in Marin, we even have a continuing tug-of-war between city and county over their sometimes overlapping roles.

Home rule, like freedom, is not something that can be won and then forgotten. It requires constant renewal. But in San Rafael — as in the 10 other cities in the county which have incorporated since — its value is self-evident.

The city we have today would not be possible without local city government. We owe a debt to Simon Fitch Barstow and the others who agitated for home rule 100 years ago, and to the five trustees who got it started. It is worth keeping alive — for at least another 100 years.

White House Anti-Spy Efforts Jail Only Its Own Spies

The administration's antispies record, measured by results, is poor.

The government's case against Daniel Ellsberg was going quite well when the administration blew it by the break-in of his psychiatrist's office. The judge had to throw the case out of court, not because Ellsberg was necessarily innocent but because the administration was guilty.

Internal spying in the White House brought no punishment. Top-secret papers were lifted from the files of the National Security Council, improperly distributed to the Pentagon, and some leaked to the press. Intolerable, said now Sec. of State Henry Kissinger. But nothing seems to have been done about it.

The White House "plumbers" were supposed to catch the spies. But they didn't jail any; rather, most of the plumbers were jailed or indicted.

Hardly great success!

LEON JAWORSKI BLUNDERS. Even admirers of the Watergate special prosecutor — and there are many — think that he made a serious mistake by making out-of-court comments on the trustworthiness of former White House counsel John Dean as a witness.

Unless Jaworski has a strategy deeper than one can perceive, his statement of "Meet the Press" was imprudent, and it was, perhaps, even more imprudent to give a clean bill of health to Dean on the issue of perjury.

Dean's admitted acts and his sworn testimony raise questions, and Jaworski sought to resolve them outside the judicial process.

NIXON'S BIG-SPENDING BUDGET. It is not only the biggest in U.S. history — more than $300 billion — but the president stated that if the economy requires it he will be ready to "bust the budget" whenever necessary.

Many are surprised at Mr. Nixon's apparent "new" philosophy. But it is not entirely a new Nixon stance. In 1960 Mr. Nixon, running for the president against John F. Kennedy, pleaded with President Eisenhower to pump money into the economy in order to arrest the 1958-59 recession. But Eisenhower refused, and Mr. Nixon felt this lost him the election.

Evidently this time Mr. Nixon is prepared to go to unconservative extremes to fulfill his promise: "There will be no 1974 recession."

SOME FACTS ABOUT DEFENSE. For the first time in 10 years, the defense budget does not include any funds to support combat operations in U.S. forces anywhere in the world.

The defense share of the whole federal budget is 27.2 per cent and is 5.9 per cent of the nation's gross national product — lowest in 15 years.

Total military manpower, including civilian personnel, is at the lowest level in a quarter-century.

Counting military personnel, civil service and industry employment, more than three million people have left the Defense Department since 1968.

PEKING ARRANGING ANOTHER PERIOD OF VIOLENCE? Not violence abroad but violence at home. The government is not so much concerned to export revolution as to keep its own at fever heat.

Through the government press, Chairman Mao is calling for a cultural revolution and is saying, in effect: "Let's have another one while I am still with us."

The cultural revolution of 1966 to 1969 made war on the ruling Communist Party because Mao believed it had grown cautious, conservative and lazy.

The targets this time seem to be the philosophy of Confucius; Lin Biao, the late defense minister; Leonid Brezhnev, and the aging Chiang Kai-shek. The young Red Guards, who overdid it the last time, will be kept in the background.

Mao is understood to feel that the Chinese Communist revolution is slowing down and that things need stirring up.

IS TAIWAN UNDER THE GUN? Apparently not. The word out of Peking is that China doesn't intend to do anything to embarrass the United States and that there will be no military move against Taiwan.

ERNEST B. FURGURSON: NASA Windmills

WASHINGTON — Now and then common sense manifests itself in the federal bureaucracy, and we boggle. We do a double take, wonder what the catch is. Like today:

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration, the spearhead of our technological advance into the future, has disclosed that it is working to perfect a device that may cut a worthwhile slice out of the energy shortage. In use, it would decrease our electricity needs and thus our coal, oil and gas requirements.

It is not a supercalifragilistic device off a space vehicle, although some of those should prove useful in the energy mess, too. This is, in fact, a machine that has been in use by man since before the Magna Carta was issued by King John, 759 years ago come June. It goes by the common name of windmill.

THE CHORUS of I-told-you-so's from environmentalists and back-to-nature enthusiasts is duly entered in the record. But let it rest there unamplified, please, for fear it might make the scientists pout and put them out of the mood to proceed in other similarly common-sensical directions, such as toward solar power.

Actually, what NASA has in mind is a refinement and miniaturization of the old Dutch windmills with 60-foot sails, and of the familiar many-spoked windmills that were used to pump ranch water and still stand over much of the American West.

The prototype it is working on at the Langley Research Center in Virginia looks more like an oversized eggbeater than any windmill you ever saw. It has two thin, curved blades mounted on a vertical shaft, and stands about 18 or 20 feet tall overall.

NASA says it will spin in the least little breeze, and crank up fast enough to turn a generator that will provide the energy for a normal single-family house. Its initial cost would be from $500 to $1,000, depending, of course, on volume of production. (Realize that this is the space agency talking, and, by past standards, anything that costs it a mere $1,000 should cost the average bicycle mechanic about $4.95 to produce.)

WITH THE UTILITY companies standing in line for rate increase on top of rate increase, and with the cost of every kind of fossil fuel on a drastic upgrade, the average householder should be able to save enough to pay off the cost of a rooftop windmill in a few years, even by NASA's estimate.

Alone, or especially in combination with solar collectors to heat water and even the house itself, such machines could take the edge off the crisis almost as quickly as the decision to go ahead with them is made — by the government, the manufacturers, the utilities and, of course, the consumer.

There is the rub. The utilities are certain to do two things: First, spend millions to prove that any energy not produced by them will never work, and then cry and sue because their monopolies would be challenged by such small-scale free enterprise.

By now, however, we should have learned something about the vast advertising campaigns of the energy companies.

THE PROBLEM with getting the things into use may lie in large part with NASA itself, because it is used to thinking too big. It seems unsatisfied merely to take the Encyclopaedia Britannica's word for it, when the good book said in 1942, "At the coast and in exposed hilly districts there should be no hesitation in adopting wind power to supply electricity. Even in ordinary inland parts there are very few districts where a suitable site cannot be found. Thus, for isolated districts wind power may be adopted for generating purposes with every assurance of reliability and economy."

NASA already is dreaming beyond that. It is talking of using windmills to produce hydrogen gas from river water, compressing the gas and storing it for use during windless periods, and so on and on.

Which is just fine. But when the news at the top of Page 1 is that the utility company's rates are up by nearly 13 per cent in the past month alone, I would opt for an interim presidential directive to NASA:

Starting tomorrow morning, get on with the windmills.

Then we can play Buck Rogers the day after.

Taxpayer Association Wants Study Of Ferries

In view of the costliness of the proposed ferry system, together with the amount of well-founded opposition and controversy, we feel it is imperative that all facts, figures and statistics be brought out in the open before any further ferry commitments, toll or tax increases take place. Based on the information known to date, it is possible we cannot afford ferry boats. Let's find out once and for all.

The Marin County Taxpayers Association formally endorses the suggestion that Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post make an impartial, thorough survey and report on the Golden Gate Bridge, Highway and Transit District transit service costs. This should include a detailed breakdown between buses and ferries, existing and proposed, with a comparison of costs per passenger carried, practicability, etc.

They're All Out Of Step But Jones

With great interest did I read Warren Jones' statements on his general plan for San Rafael.

He made it quite clear we are just not going to get a plan we want, but only what he wants us to have. It is obvious that everybody (our mayor, planning commissioners, citizen advisory committee members, our city planning staff as well as city administration) are all out of step except Jones himself.

I must, however, agree with him when he states "we are out of luck." Plus $79,000, I may add.

More Buses Needed, Not Costly Ferries

I ride a bus to and from work every day because I have no other means of transportation.

Every day more people are riding the bus because it is becoming too expensive to drive. And now with the increase in bridge toll, no doubt more people will be riding the bus.

Instead of building a big and beautiful and expensive ferry terminal and buying big and beautiful and expensive ferry boats, can't the Golden Gate Transit District see it in their pocketbook to buy a few more buses? And improve on what they have now?

If for no other reason just the comparative price of one ferry and one bus leads me to think that someone is making a little money on the side. Quite a bit in fact. And in part it is my money and that makes me very angry.

The money to be spent on this ferry system is public money, I believe. I am a member of the public and I don't want the money spent on ferry terminals. Or ferries.

Puppy's Death Proves Snail Bait Danger

I wish to publicly commend the Marin County Veterinary Emergency Clinic for the concern and help we received on Feb. 5.

Our 10-week-old puppy had evidently gotten into a neighbor's yard and eaten some snail bait pellets. The clinic did everything they could but our puppy died. I'm asking your help to inform people that snail bait is available in powder or meal form that is less likely to be eaten by small animals or children.

Even though I feel deep sorrow for the loss of our puppy, I am very grateful it wasn't our 20-month-old son.

Youthful Writer No Friend Of Prandis

Re: your article on the Prandis of Jan. 28, "Jail Is Not a Place for Juveniles." I would like to say that from my experiences with the Prandis your article did not do justice to their innate quality of brutalizing the young, their total misconception of juveniles, and their compassionate failures at amateur psychology. When I was 13 in 1966 it was that dear Mrs. Prandi who offered me food and shelter in the palatial estates of Juvenile Hall for aiding and abetting a run-away. I was also allowed to take my best friend to criminal charm school with me under the same law as we happened to be the last ones that saw this girl. Both my friend and I were at a loss as to how to do anything but laugh at the shrewd detective work of Mrs. Prandi.

I would also like to thank Mr. Prandi for putting me on probation three years later for being a five-hour runaway. It did marvels for my head as I was placed in a boarding home at the expense of my college insurance that I didn't like and now cannot afford even junior college without sacrifice.

I would also like to thank them for the fine treatment I received for six months in Juvenile Hall for beyond parental control and truancy and then the year following in Napa State Hospital it took to shake the fear from me while attempted murderers were set free in two months.

Again I would like to thank the Prandis for taking away the burden of raising and supporting a teen-ager from my parents

Hitchhiking Should Be Encouraged, Says Writer

I am a hitchhiker, not actually by necessity but by belief. My belief is in conservation, social communication, travel and as many other defenses of hitchhiking as I should think anyone would need.

Sure it is that hitchhiking can be dangerous. I have been in perilous (to the mind and body) positions hitchhiking. But I've been in similar positions at other times, sometimes willfully. Perhaps, then, there should be some restrictions on hitchhikers, as well as on drivers, as there are restrictions on drinkers, smokers, traders, everywhere. Someone can always get burned.

But to me hitchhiking is good and as such should be encouraged, not discouraged. It should be developed as a mode of transportation, not to mention community interaction. Doesn't a fuel shortage amidst freeways packed with one-passenger cars indicate anything of the sort to you?

The reason for this letter is the recent discouragement of hitchhiking at freeway entrances in San Rafael. I mean it is now practically legally impossible to get out of that city, north, south or east. And like it or not San Rafael is the destination hub-bub of Marin County. "No stopping or standing" signs are a new one on my idea of constitutionality. Is the city just trying to get more cash?

Instead of fencing in and blocking up a hitchhiking area perhaps some trouble should be extended toward opening up and sheltering that spot. Make it easy on the poor hitchhiker. I say, each one is assuming you as a driver that much (his or her share) gas . . .

ANDY BALE

San Anselmo.

(Prohibition of hitchhikers from freeway approaches conforms to a state law passed in 1972 as a safety measure because of the frequency of rear-end auto crashes when one driver would slow down to pick up a hitchhiker as others were accelerating to enter the freeway. — Editor)

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

Feb. 18, 1964

Senate and House conferees decided to eliminate from a tax cut bill a provision to allow income tax deductions for political contributions.

Butter for 69 cents a pound, extra large eggs for 47 cents a dozen, and prime rib roast for 84 cents a pound were advertised in the Independent-Journal by Scotty's Market.

Feb. 18, 1954

President Dwight D. Eisenhower asked Congress to ease atomic secrecy restrictions to permit cooperation with other nations in developing atomic energy uses.

George W. Lewis of Sleepy Hollow, big-time race track figure, pleaded guilty to a federal charge of evading $433,769 in income taxes for 1947 and '48.

PAUL E. PETERZELL

County Transit District Playing Games With Tax Hike Scheme?

Marin County's transit officials, both elected types and the staff they hired, are about to ask property owners to put 20 cents more on their tax rate to finance improved bus service.

The staff's proposal so far, however, is flawed. It not only provides no additional county money to the Golden Gate Bridge District, but proposes to take back county gasoline tax revenue that now goes to the bridge district. Both are contrary to past assurances by the county that it would increase its payments to the bridge district for transit as soon as Marin voters raise the property tax rate.

Unless some accommodation is made with the bridge district, the Metropolitan Transportation Commission — which decides who gets gasoline tax money — almost certainly will rule in favor of the bridge district. The losers will be the public, which needs better transit and hardly can care about feuds between the two districts.

WE ARE CONVINCED the bridge district officials are right when they argue the county does not pay its fair share for transit services it gets. County officials apparently felt the same way when they promised to pay more.

Some suspicion is abroad that the county staff views the tax rate hike as a chance to build its own empire. Others say old enemies of the bridge district are at play.

Little time is left to settle the issues, if the tax increase is to have a chance on the June 6 ballot. Responsible officials will act quickly, leaving behind those who want to play games at the public's expense.

QUIP OF THE WEEK: S. Robert Politzer, informed that Joseph L. Alioto will open a Marin headquarters, quickly observed, "There will be a slide show on California missions."

Alioto's campaign workers also heard rude noises when they went to open the headquarters space they had rented in San Rafael. The noise came from workers for Assembly candidate Michael Wornum. Seems the landlord rented the same space to both.

The problem was solved, however, when the landlord canceled both leases. Both groups are out hunting new quarters.

WE TELEPHONED the Golden Gate Bridge District office the other day to arrange a photograph of new 75-cent toll signs being readied for erection at the end of the month. We were too late, however; the signs were made months ago. That's confidence.

THE SIZE OF HIS new district stretching from the Golden Gate to the Oregon border — has forced Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, to add a conventional gasoline tank to his car. It was converted long ago from gasoline to propane, with the senator paying the $450 conversion cost himself.

It's too far between propane supplies along the North Coast, however, so he will add a second tank so he can switch to gasoline so he won't get stuck in the wilderness.

WORTH SAYING AGAIN

Let us be thankful for the fools; but for them the rest of us could not succeed. — Mark Twain.

Indignation boils my blood at the thought of the heritage we are throwing away; at the thought that, with few exceptions, the fight for freedom is left to the poor, forlorn and defenseless, and to the few radicals and revolutionaries who would make use of liberty to destroy, rather than to maintain American institutions. — Arthur Garfield Hays.

Plenty Of Gasoline In Nevada (If You Find Some To Get There)

There is a simple solution to the part of the energy crisis concerning the availability of fuel for cars.

All the driver of the horseless carriage must do is move to Mina, Nev.

That's right. Fuel is plentiful at all hours for the person traveling late at night as well as for the early morning commuter.

There is no limit on how much you can purchase. Take 10 gallons to fill your small economy car or buy 25 gallons for your luxury liner.

You seldom have to wait in line behind other motorists filling their tanks, and there is still plenty of the friendly service on which stations prided themselves before waiting seconds had to spend every waking second manning the pumps.

OF COURSE MINA (population under 1,000) isn't a practical commute for most Marinites since it is in the middle of Nevada. And there is only one gas station in the community.

But just as there is plenty of gas in Mina, there is plenty of gas along the way to the Silver State, and that is particularly important to the many Marinites who trek over the Sierra for skiing or recreation.

A trip up the skiers' yellow brick road, Interstate 80, shows quite a different picture from the rat race we have all come to accept in seeking gas here in our home county.

Many stations are open along the way, and once you arrive at the ski country there is enough fuel available for your return trip.

Coming back down I-80 late Sunday night (between 10 p.m. and midnight), I counted more than a dozen stations open with-in sight of the freeway.

OTHER GAS STATION NON-SENSE: In a San Rafael station last week I had finally reached a gas pump and waited about five minutes for an attendant to begin fueling my car. When asked what the holdup was (he was filling the gas tank for a pretty young girl) he told me to "fill it yourself." Service with a smile?

Frustration of the week occurred for a friend when he waited in line for about 20 minutes, finally reached the gas pumps and was told the last of the premium gas had been pumped five minutes before he arrived.

And the stations' signs announcing that they have run out of fuel are worth a chuckle after you have recovered from the shock. One San Rafael station announces in block letters a foot tall, "NO GAS." Scrawled at the bottom of the sign is an afterthought, "Sorry."

Gasoline Allocation Shift Planned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration, pressing on both the domestic and international fronts for a solution to the energy situation, is preparing changes in gasoline allocations at home but doesn't expect an immediate end to the Arab oil embargo.

Deputy energy chief John Schwill said yesterday the government, in an effort to end "intolerable" waiting lines at gasoline stations, will announce tomorrow a 1 to 2 per cent shift in allocations so "those areas of the country that are really experiencing acute shortages" will have more fuel.

But he did not say where the increased allocations would go, only that "they are going to some of the larger metropolitan areas where we're seeing lines forming that are intolerable."

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, after yesterday's meetings with three Arab diplomats, said "we won't have anything to announce for some time" on ending the boycott.

Kissinger was to meet today with Egyptian foreign minister Ismail Fahmy and Saudi Arabian foreign minister Omar Sak-kaf.

Yesterday's meeting, he said, involved the "whole range of Middle East problems" and the oil embargo "was not the principal purpose of these meet-ings."

Sawhill predicted the effect of the reallocation move would be felt at service stations "very quickly . . . in no more than a week."

Sawhill was interviewed on ABC's "Issues and Answers." The reallocation move came one day after the Federal Energy Office announced that half the nation's 216,000 service stations will be allowed to raise their price by 1 cent a gallon.

Z. D. Bonner, the president of Gulf Oil, however, attacked the penny hike as too little and predicted the gasoline shortage—now estimated by the FEO at between 15 and 20 per cent—would rise to 25 to 30 per cent by April 1.

Bonner also said he regretted consumers were preoccupied with the penny a gallon gas increase "when four months have gone by since the Arab intervention and really not one thing has been done about the energy crisis."

Bonner was interviewed on CBS' "Face the Nation."

Sawhill, however, refuted Bonner's prediction of a 25-30 per cent oil shortfall.

He said the FEO was sticking by its 15-20 per cent estimate. "If the embargo ends," he said, "the shortage is going to be significantly less."

An end to embargo, U.S. officials said yesterday, appears to hinge on what Kissinger can do to solve the current dispute between Israel and Syria, which in part involves whether Syria will release Israeli prisoners taken during last October's Arab-Israeli war.

The officials said Kissinger might be required to perform the same kind of function he did in arranging the Israeli-Egyptian troop disengagement agreement.

In other energy developments: Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., predicted a tight Senate battle over the much-edited, much-delayed emergency energy legislation President Nixon asked for last fall. The Senate has set a vote on Tuesday to determine whether the measure should yet again be sent back to a joint conference committee with the House.

An FEO status report said that at least 10 east coast power plants have converted from use of scarce oil to the more abundant coal at the request of FEO director William E. Simon.

Inflation-Plagued Japan Tough With Business

By ELIZABETH POND

TOKYO — Prices are finally going down in Japan — but the business and government leadership is still running scared.

Item: On Feb. 12 Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka met with 22 presidents and vice presidents of Japanese newspapers to listen to complaints about high prices and to promise to do his best to cope with them. This was the first such meeting since prewar times, the chief cabinet secretary told news-men.

Mr. Tanaka is scheduling similar meetings with TV and radio representatives, then with labor representatives.

ITEM: A few days earlier Mr. Tanaka held an unprecedented mass meeting with 85 top business leaders to warn them to hold prices down — or else risk a new tax on "profiteering," search of company premises, and restrictions on raising equity capital and stockholding in other companies.

Item: The president of General Oil Co. has just resigned following disclosure by a Communist diet member of a company memorandum of last November secretly raising kerosene prices higher than cost increases. The new president has announced that any windfall profits will go to consumers.

Item: The Fair Trade Commission recently called on oil companies to cancel their December agreement to increase prices in excess of cost increases — and their agreement to cut refined oil output. The FTC also raided the offices of 16 major paintmakers and associations a few days ago on suspicion of a price-fixing cartel.

ITEM: A recent government study of industry shows a huge gap between cost and price increases in last year's June-to-December period. Plastics rose 7.6 per cent in cost, but 65.3 per cent in price; synthetic fibers 9.4 per cent in cost, but 52 per cent in price; organic chemicals, 9.8 per cent cost, 49.6 per cent price; cement, 10 per cent cost, 32 per cent price.

Item: On Feb. 12 the Agriculture Ministry instructed beancurd retailers to cut the prices of various kinds of beancurd by five to 10 yen per package. The

Treasury Department To Leave Protection Issue Up To Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Treasury Department has announced it will end Secret Service protection for former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, but still says President Nixon has the authority to order protection for those he chooses.

Comptroller General Elmer B. Staats, head of the General Accounting Office, a congressional watchdog on administration spending, said Friday in a letter to Treasury Secretary George Shultz there was no legal basis for continuing protection for Agnew since he resigned Oct. 10.

Staats ordered the protection of Agnew discontinued by mid-night Sunday.

Asked if the decision was made because of Staats' ruling,

Water Conference Reset For April

The Marin Water Conference, originally scheduled for March, has been postponed to April 27 in Guzman Hall, Dominican College, San Rafael, according to the Marin Water Conference Committee, which is planning the affair.

A tentative schedule of topics includes water and growth, alternative water sources for Marin, and the future of Marin and water.

a Treasury spokesman replied "no comment."

He did say, however, "the Treasury believes there is authority for the President to order protection for other individuals."

Treasury officials said surveillance would be discontinued as soon as possible, but the midnight deadline might not be met because of the procedures required to remove the agents.

They said "there will be no attempt to recover the cost" of the protection, but that any equipment at Agnew's home that can be used again will be removed.

The decision was apparently made after Shultz conferred with White House officials on Sunday. An informed source said the Treasury Secretary was spending the weekend in Florida and had been in contact with White House officials.

Agnew, with Secret Service protection, has been staying at the home of entertainer Frank Sinatra in Palm Springs. He is said to be working on a novel about Washington politics.

Stowaway Boy Given Ticket To Bay Area

CASTRO VALLEY (UPI) — Jerry Verzi mailed a passport and an airline ticket to his stowaway son in England yesterday and remarked, "That'll be an awful lot of allowances at $2 a week."

That ticket cost $300.

His son, Steve, 13, vanished with only $4 in his pocket Wednesday night after some unpleasantness at school and popped up Thursday night at his aunt and uncle's home in Warrington, England.

He had boarded a plane at San Francisco International Airport, acting as if he had a ticket, slipped out of London's Heathrow Airport by dodging through swinging doors and hitchhiked the rest of the way.

The first word his family received was a cable from England. "Steve is fine. Call Kitty."

"We couldn't believe it," the father said. "Imagine thinking your son is somewhere around the corner and then finding out he is 7,000 miles away."

Asked by telephone for an explanation, the son replied: "I just wanted to come back ... that's all." The family had visited England two years ago.

Wanderlust started for the insurance man's son at a school basketball game Wednesday. Coaches had called the father saying Steve had been giving them "a little lip" and asking that he be taken home.

But by the time the father arrived the son had vanished, leaving behind him this note to his principal: "Nobody understands. I'll be back in a couple weeks."

Verzi said he "figured he was hiding out at a friend's house" but by Friday was ready to call the Contra Costa County sheriff's office when the cable arrived.

Steve reached England with $1.50 still in his pocket and the father said he bet the other $2.50 was spent on hamburgers.

"If I wasn't so relieved to hear his voice, I would have chewed him out then and there, but we were just so thankful he was okay," the father declared.

Son Of Top German Red Is Reported A Deserter

BERLIN (UPI) — The West Berlin newspaper B.Z. said today that Michael Danelius, 19-year-old son of Gerhard Danelius, head of the Communist party in West Berlin, has deserted from the East German army.

Party Headquarters in West Berlin said Danelius was not available for comment.

"Newspapers report all kinds of things," a party spokesman said.

The B.Z. said the son was absent without leave from his "People's Army" unit in the province of Thuringia.

"Although the authorities of the German Democratic Republic have begun a widespread search for him, he has not been found," the newspaper said.

The newspaper said he has not turned up in the West and it is believed he has made his way to Czechoslovakia.

The newspaper said the son did not keep jobs the father got for him in West Berlin with communist organizations and was sent to East Germany to join the army in the hope the army would straighten him out.

WARNING — Former Yippie leader Jerry Rubin (in a 1972 photo) has warned the Symbionese Liberation Army that killing Patricia Hearst could launch a crackdown by right-wing elements in American society.

Rubin Sees Danger Of Right-Wing Move

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Former Yippie leader Jerry Rubin has warned the Symbionese Liberation Army that killing Patricia Hearst could launch "a right-wing crackdown" in the United States and "destroy the moral credibility of the left."

Rubin, one of the Chicago Seven defendants, made his views known in an open letter published yesterday in Randolph A. Hearst's San Francisco Examiner.

The plea for mercy came at the end of the letter in which he blamed the SLA's terrorism on government oppression and violence in the nation and said the SLA was "using in new ways old Yippie tactics of revolution through the media."

Rubin attacked the SLA for killing Oakland School Superintendent Marcus Foster. He said the killing of the popular black educator helped white racists.

He called the 19-year-old Miss Hearst "The innocent victim of politics in Vietnam, the black ghettos and the prisons supported by her father."

"The kidnapping of Patricia Hearst has even made a sympathetic figure out of Randolph Hearst."

"If you kill Patricia Hearst you will be outraging human beings everywhere," he wrote. "You will set off a right-wing crackdown—find the SLA!—that will endanger the very people that you say you are fighting for."

"You will destroy the moral credibility of the left. You will be committing suicide for yourself and your ideas."

"Fight for all you can get for the people from your temporary position of power leverage, and then release Patricia unharmed," Rubin advised.

"Treat her with such love and understanding that she comes away from you respecting and digging you. Win her over as an ally to your cause."

"Under no circumstances harm her. That would be a crime outside the boundaries of any revolutionary morality."

In his explanation of the SLA actions, Rubin said the "left in general is freaked out by the Symbionese."

"When mass movements collapse as ours did in the early 1970s, and the problems of oppression remain and even get worse, hopes die and terrorism appears," he said.

"The anger of the dispossessed in America reaches desperate proportions. A few figure out what they can do, even if alone, to directly challenge an immoral ruling class."

"The incredible fanaticism expressed in a willingness to kill and die is a completely new development in America on the left," Rubin said.

Patriot Award To John Wayne

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (UPI) — Actor John Wayne, described as "a man in love with his country," today received the George Washington Award from the Freedoms Foundation.

Wayne, 66, received the organization's top annual award during ceremonies at nearby Valley Forge Military Academy.

Wayne, winner of the Academy Award in 1970 for his performance in "True Grit," won the award for his debut album, "America, Why I Love Her," which Freedoms Foundation President, Gen. (Ret.) Harold K. Johnson said contained expressions of "proud and unabashed patriotism."

YEVEGENY YEVTUSHENKO

Yevtushenko Says Reading Is Canceled

MOSCOW (UPI) — Poet Yevgeny Yevtushenko has accused Soviet authorities of cancelling a reading of his works because he defended exiled writer Alexander I. Solzhenitsyn.

The 40-year-old poet, considered a literary rebel in the 1960s but an "establishment" poet in recent years, issued a statement yesterday saying he was the target of "cruel and unusual punishment."

Solzhenitsyn, in perhaps the last words he wrote on Soviet soil, urged fellow Russians against cooperating with official lies. A Solzhenitsyn essay circulating in Moscow said authorities pressured Russians every day into accepting falsehoods.

The essay, titled "Live Not By Lies" and dated Feb. 12—the day before his ouster, said Soviet citizens weren't "sufficiently matured" to "march into squares and shout the truth out loud."

Yevtushenko said his troubles began when he sent a "sincere, confidential" telegram to Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev last Tuesday expressing concern over the arrest of Solzhenitsyn earlier in the day.

The Nobel Prize-winning writer was expelled the next day after a long official campaign against his latest book, "The Gulag Archipelago," an expose of Soviet prison camps and secret police.

Yevtushenko said the Soviet Writers Union called him in after he sent the telegram to Brezhnev. "In the conversation my actions were termed unworthy blackmail," he said.

He said the writers group "proposed that I should make a public condemnation of Solzhenitsyn, but I refused." He said a union official expressed "doubt about my political face."

The poet said Soviet authorities then cancelled a nationwide radio and television broadcast of his works last Saturday in "the beginning of an attempt to discredit my poetry as a whole."

Yevtushenko said he disagreed about "many views" of Solzhenitsyn, but he attacked Soviet authorities for banning "The Gulag Archipelago."

"Truth is being replaced by suppression, but suppression is a lie," he said.

Avalanche Kills One, Injures Six

VALEMOUNT, B.C. (UPI) — A mile-wide avalanche thundered down a remote Rocky Mountain onto a group of skiers yesterday, killing a Montreal man and injuring six other persons.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police (RCMP) said 40 holidaying skiers, airlifted to the mountain by helicopter, were on the slope on 8,000 foot Mica Mountain when the upper layer of snow fractured near the top of the 3,000 foot ski slope.

The skiers were split into groups of ten, each with a guide and all equipped with radio locators, police said.

Solzhenitsyn Goes Shopping

ZURICH (UPI) — Alexander I. Solzhenitsyn, fortified with a permanent Swiss visa, went shopping again today to buy more material to continue his writing in exile. He also visited the onetime residence of V. I. Lenin.

Solzhenitsyn, 55, expelled by Moscow Feb. 13, rode into downtown Zurich to purchase a photo-copying machine. He was accompanied by his Paris publisher Nikita Struve and a woman interpreter carrying a blue hot water bottle.

"Mr. Solzhenitsyn suffers from headaches and needs a cold pack on his head," she said.

The exiled Nobel Prize winning author is staying at the home of Zurich lawyer Fritz Heeb. Struve said when he arrived at the Heeb home shortly after 9 a.m. that Solzhenitsyn may have a statement to make on leaving the house.

But when the writer emerged in his usual long brown overcoat and fur hat he got directly into a waiting taxi without any comment.

He has several times displayed annoyance at the attention he is getting from the press and today was little different. Eight carloads of newsmen and photographers chased after the cab, which first took Solzhenitsyn to an office equipment store on Heinrichstrasse.

Solzhenitsyn after buying the photocopying machine then walked to the Kantonal Bank where he was joined by Heeb. He remained inside for 90 minutes. Heeb said Solzhenitsyn had financial business to transact and would stay at home in the afternoon working.

"He is dealing with his affairs and getting manuscripts in order," the lawyer said. "He is always working on manuscripts."

From the bank Solzhenitsyn walked to No. 14, Spiegelstrasse, the old, five-story building where Lenin lived from Feb. 21, 1916, to April 2, 1917, when he stayed in Zurich before going back to Russia to lead the revolution.

Solzhenitsyn was unable to enter the building because it is being renovated but he sat on a railing outside for five minutes.

An Amnesty International poster was stuck to the wall of the house, showing a man bound and gagged and saying, in German, "Freedom for all political prisoners."

Solzhenitsyn then lost his temper again with two French photographers, whom he told Saturday they were worse than the KGB.

"Leave me alone. I also want to live," he shouted at them.

Retired Officers' Wives Will Hear About Psychic Awareness

M. Kathryn Carment of Los Altos will speak on psychic awareness Wednesday at the Marin County Retired Officers' Wives Club noon luncheon at the Pathfinders Tearoom at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

Mrs. Carment is the director of the School of Parapsychology, Education and Awareness in Los Altos. She has assisted doctors in medical analysis in Washington and Virginia and has participated in research on parapsychology in cancer therapy. She does corporate consultations and has assisted police forces in missing persons problems.

JAYNE GARRISON will report on her work and study in Africa Wednesday at the noon luncheon meeting of the Soroptimist Club of Marin County at the Pepperwood restaurant in San Anselmo.

A student at College of Marin, Miss Garrison participated last summer in the work study program, Crossroads Africa. The Soroptimist Club helped finance her trip.

MONDAY WILL be "Sweetie Pie Day" in honor of George Washington's Birthday and Valentines Day at the Sunny Hills Bargain Box in San Rafael.

A homemade cherry pie will be given away to a shopper every 15 minutes.

GLENN CLAPERT of Fairfax will give a demonstration in Indonesian cooking for members of the Marin County Alumnae of Alpha Chi Omega sorority Wednesday at 11 a.m. at the home of Mrs. Warren Lockhart in Novato.

Mrs. Peter Van Alvea of Greenbrae is reservations chairman.

Dishes prepared will be served for lunch.

NEW MEMBERS will be welcomed at a luncheon of Bay Area Feminineers, wives of members of the Structural Engineers Association of Northern California and the American Society of Civil Engineers.

The luncheon will be given at the Airport Marina Hotel in Burlingame Wednesday, with the social hour set for 11:30 a.m., and luncheon to be served at 12:30 p.m. A fashion show is planned, with members modeling.

Mrs. L. H. Daniels is chairman.

Attending from Marin will be members Mmes. Harold Engle and Richard Gould, San Rafael; Michael Praszker and Samuel Seifert, Mill Valley; Leslie Graham, Belvedere; and Henry Lutge, Greenbrae; and new members Mmes. Richard Harding, and Robert Muyo, San Rafael; Charles McFadden and Rex Elder, Tiburon; Eugene Miller, Mill Valley; Douglas Moorhouse, Belvedere; and Etienne Rolin, San Anselmo.

MINA CAULFIELD and Mary Collier will lead the workshop, "Cultural Perspective on Parenthood," Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at Woman's Way, 412 Red Hill Avenue in San Anselmo. The workshop is the fifth in a series of Motherhood Workshops sponsored by Woman's Way.

Alternatives to traditional child rearing and anthropological concepts of the family will be investigated.

Mina Caulfield received the Ph.D. degree in anthropology from the University of California at Berkeley and did field work in the West Indies. She teaches anthropology at California State University, San Francisco.

Mary Collier is a master's degree candidate in anthropology at CSU, San Francisco, and is student teaching at College of Marin and San Rafael High School. She is a staff member of Woman's Way.

THOSE ATTENDING the Parent-Teacher-Student Association of the Mill Valley Middle School at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday will have a chance to participate in an art in action program after the business meeting.

Arts and crafts activities offered to the students, will be available to parents, who can try their skills with the assistance of the students.

PIERRE CARDIN was the first French women's wear designer to invade the men's wear field in the United States with designs such as this leisure suit with canvas jacket and pants and exaggerated leather trim and built up shoulders. Other French designers — Givenchy, St. Laurent, Cerruti and Marc Bohan — are following Cardin's lead.

U.S. Shores Invaded By French Designers

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — The first French invasion of note was in 1966 when William the Conqueror crossed the English channel and clobbered King Harold II in the Battle of Hastings. The second invasion of note is 1974 — the shores of the United States are swarming with French men's wear designers.

Pierre Cardin has been here for years, but now we have Yves Saint Laurent, Givenchy, Nino Cerutti and Marc Bohan of the House of Dior. Waiting in the wings are a dozen more including the House of Lanvin which expects to bring in a line next fall.

All are noted women's wear designers, perhaps inspired by Cardin's enormous success in the United States, where his designs, translated into wearable American shapes and sizes by the genius of midwesterner

Don Robbie, sell from Maine to California.

ROBBIE HAS forsaken Cardin for Saint Laurent and has the fall collection ready of clothing billed as a fresh and elegant collection of "deluxe menswear to have fun in."

There is a feeling of the old Hollywood about the designs. They have been updated but you can wear them with the feeling the suit is something Clark Gable would have worn.

"The most important fashion point is the golf jacket detailing in the sportswear," Robbie said. These details include buckled flaps on each side of the waist, half belts in the back, occasional pleated backs like the bi-swing backs of the 30s.

There are many nostalgic fabrics in suits, including sharkskin, the favorite when Hollywood was in its zenith. A CAPT. MAXINE (Micki) King gestures and uses a public address system while coaching the Air Force Academy's diving team. The 29-year-old winner of a gold medal on the three meter board at the 1972 Olympics in Munich is the first woman administrative officer in the history of the athletic department at the 4,000 cadet academy.

Olympian Teaches Diving To Cadets

By K.C. MASON

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (UPI) — Capt. Maxine "Micki" King has proven her courage in competing under difficult circumstances, and she has kept her sense of humor against 4,000-to-1 odds.

Captain King, known as "Sky King" to the cadets she coaches on the Air Force Academy Diving team, knows becoming an Olympian takes lots of practice and even more determination to try, try again.

The 29-year-old winner of the gold medal on the three-meter board at the 1972 Olympics in Munich said: "I'm more deeply involved in athletics as a 'has-been' than I was when I was a competitor. I get an equal amount of satisfaction in coaching and watching the fellows improve. I use them as a replacement for my own achievements and feel lucky I can fill the gap left by withdrawing from competition."

Captain King also is the first woman administrative officer in the history of the athletic department at the 4,000-cadet academy. As the assistant business manager of the department, she handles everything from selling programs at football games to scheduling events for nonrevenue sports such as baseball, wrestling, swimming and diving.

SHE SAID something amusing happens every day, but the men don't treat her any differently because she is a woman.

"I don't want them to act different because of me," Captain King said. "Diving and athletics should be a release from their school work and I don't want them to feel inhibited. They don't hide their emotions if they mess up a dive."

"I'm immune from women's liberation problems such as equal pay because of my career in the Air Force. I get paid the same as men with the same education, qualifications and rank. The Air Force is good about that."

Why the Air Force? "It was the right place at the right time sort of thing," Captain King said. "As a senior in college at the University of Michigan it was easy to drift along and not worry about my future."

"When I graduated in 1966, I knew I wanted to go to the Olympics but knew I had to work to subsist. The Air Force came to me, stationed me where I could get the best coaching and agreed to be my sponsor. I had a job and a valuable, responsible career and at the same time could continue my diving."

THE DIVING for Micki started at the Pontiac, Mich., Young Womens Christian Association, when she was in her early teens.

"I entered my first competition when I was 15," she said. "That's kind of late by today's standards but soon I was practicing two or three times a week. Michigan diving coach Dick Kimball kept her going in college."

"By the time I was 18, I was in two-a-day practices and learning all the fives I needed to become a national competitor," he said. "My first title was on the 10-meter platform at the National AAU championships in California my junior year."

Then came the international events.

"I was 24 years old at the 1968 Olympics in Mexico," she said. "That wasn't young age wise, but I was totally new to such a huge and magnificent event. That kind of wows you and it's easy to get wrapped up in the splendor and not compete well."

"IN MUNICH, there wasn't anything to surprise me and I wasn't snowed."

Miki showed her courage at the Mexico City events. She made her last dive in the finals with a broken arm.

"I was going into my second to last dive when I miscalculated a take off and struck the diving board with my arm and broke it," she said. "I wasn't able to pull my last dive off very successfully and so dropped from first to fourth place."

Captain King said her trainer and coach knew her arm was broken but let her finish anyway.

"I had been training for it since I was 18 years old," she said. "That's a number of years to dedicate to something and it never occurred to me not to dive. The Olympic caliber in an athlete means you don't give up when you're that close."

She laid off a year before deciding to train for the Munich games.

"I found that I missed not diving and that I still had a lot of diving in me," she said. "It just killed me to watch meets so I decided I didn't just have to watch."

THE DETERMINATION paid off with her gold medal in 1972.

Micki is now one of four women instructors at the academy — the other three teach languages — and said her Air Force job still makes her happy.

What about women cadets at the Academy?

"I think women being enrolled in the academy is a way off-perhaps two or three years," she said. "There is no way that one or two girls are going to get in and be students but they might make it in the size of a squadron (100).

"It would be an interesting development to say the least but I think there would be problems adjusting. The guys here have different goals in life other than marriage and family. Any wishy-washy girl who comes here looking for a husband just isn't going to make it."

Greenbrae Physician Finds Women Are Africa's Hope

By PAT BALMES

Dr. Katherine Leicester of Greenbrae worked at the Friends' mission hospital in Kenya, East Africa, from 1969 to 1973 where she gained an understanding of Africans and their way of life.

The 75-year-old retired physician, dressed in a Uganda woman's garb, gave a talk and slide show about her East African experiences on Thursday for the United Presbyterian Women at the First Presbyterian Church in San Rafael.

"The hope of Africa is its women and schools," she said in an interview at her apartment. The internist mentioned the "five wonderful midwives" who worked well with her at the Kaimosi Friends Hospital and taught her their medical techniques.

The women provide a vast pool of intelligence and know-how; and, some are becoming leaders. The women have more intelligence and mechanical ability than some of the men, she said.

A common athletic event at fairs is a tug-of-war between a team of men and a team of women, and at those she watched, the women always won, she said.

Prime Minister Jomo Kenyatta is making an effort to educate women to give them independence if they are widowed or have their husbands divorce them because they have no children, she explained. Women prisoners are taught beading, silk screening of fabrics and jewelry making using seeds, beads, copper and aluminum, she said.

The other hope for Africa is improved education, which is bad now, according to Dr. Leicester. The teacher may be only a grade ahead of the students. Teaching is by rote. Discipline is stern but rarely necessary because the students feel fortunate to be in school, where they learn hygiene, English and some sense of responsibility.

At best they are only educated to the level of a second rate office clerk, she said.

Marinites At Mardi Gras Ball

By JOAN LISETOR

Sweatsuits seemed to be the rule rather than the exception as more and more men entered the Grand Ballroom lounge at the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco wearing them Saturday evening.

They were accompanied by women in leotards, and they mingled with a smattering of others in costume and many in formal wear in the lounge, where cocktails were served as a prelude to the 1974 Mardi Gras Ball.

The ball culminated several weeks of fund raising by five candidates for queen and five for king as a benefit for the Child Development Children's Hospital. Chairman of the ball, sponsored by the Little Jim Club, was Mrs. Paul N. Duggan of Belvedere, who wore an enormous black and white Southern Belle hat, designed for her by Ed Caton of San Anselmo.

Caton's sister, Martha, was a part of the sweatsuit and leotard gang, along with a contingent of Marinites, including Messrs. and Mmes. David Heldt, Benjamin Wells and William Hynes.

The group of friends, involved in a woman's spa business soon to open in San Francisco, took a second place in the costume judging. First prize went to a group performing an exorcism, complete with a devil, men dressed as nuns, women as priests and a cardinal, who performed the rite on a young girl being wheeled through the parade on a bed.

Nearly 500 guests were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bowman of Ross, dressed in Indian costumes, the Charles Eberles of Belvedere as mimes, and in conventional formal attire, Mr. and Mrs. David Dooley of Mill Valley and sponsors of the ball, Dr. and Mrs. Richard Leonards and Mr. and Mrs. Peter K. Maier.

Sitting on thrones as dancing followed the dinner and parade were king and queen of the Mardi Gras, J. Edward Fleishell of San Francisco and Mrs. Stephen Martin of Hillsborough. Mrs. Philip Presber of Belvedere was a member of the royal court.

Independent-Journal, 13

to noisy civilization after working in the serene, rural Western province of Kenya, Dr. Leicester told of her struggle to get to Africa.

Several agencies had refused her offer because of her age before the Quakers accepted her, she said.

"It was a joy to find the African people had faith in me because I was old and that I was really needed," the physician said, adding that the Africans, who have an enormous respect for age, liked her gray hair.

Upon arrival at Kaimosi Friends Hospital, she was advised to observe for six months before making suggestions.

"You could get nowhere at all with these people if you tried to impose your logic on them, unless you could reach one or two. Otherwise, teaching nutrition, for instance, would be a total loss," she said.

The doctor could not even get the people to come back for their second and third shots of a series. Many children died because the parents would not bring them in until they were almost dead, she said.

The hospital was better than most mission hospitals, she believes, but there were no screens and some babies contracted malaria right in the hospital. Animals walked in and out among ward patients.

Many patients had never seen a bed and they or their kinfolk slept on the floor. Once the dam broke and there was no water in the hospital for a week, she said.

"There never was a day that someone did not die," the doctor said.

DURING ONE six month period Dr. Leicester was the only doctor in the 80 to 95 patient hospital. The internist of necessity became a general pracitioner and even had to do major operations.

"You are a doctor; you don't run away. I prayed for God's help," she said.

When Dr. Leicester first arrived at the hospital, the women delivered their babies in the wards or the tiny delivery room, she said, adding that a midwife delivered a woman of triplets and named them Katherine I, Katherine II and Leicester.

"My idea was to work myself out of a job by teaching the Africans," she said.

Jotham Maloya, who had been trained by the British Medical Corp for 14 years and was as high as an African medical person could be without a medical degree, was the best doctor she ever met, Dr. Leicester said.

"He showed compassion for patients which the other doctors and nurses did not. He was gentle, not pompous. He would straighten out sheets and comfort the patients. He was the only one who would help with anything approaching psychiatry," said Dr. Leicester.

THE HOSPITAL had a good well-baby clinic, a prenatal clinic and a family planning clinic. The staff hoped that the patients who came would circulate their knowledge back in the villages.

The mission compound, including the hospital and school which extended from nursery school through teacher education and had an industrial and agricultural department, served 375,000 Africans in a 50 mile radius.

There was hunger. The Africans' wealth is cattle, but they never eat one until it dies. They raise nothing but food, never flowers or pets, she added.

Dr. Leicester had bought a bush baby in Mombasa and the mission children, in groups of six came to see the caged pet in the doctor's room.

"Finally one little boy asked, 'How do you cook it?' And he was one of the lucky ones," she said. Then Dr. Leicester felt guilty, realizing that she was spending more in a week on the monkey's vitamins and food than was spent on a child in a month, she said.

"I almost never heard a child weep," she said. "They have no toys; by the time they are five or six they are tending a real baby and cooking on three stones."

Most Africans are deeply religious, and their faith and trust sustain them, she said.

Seventy five per cent of the population is under 15 years old with a 45 year life expectancy, cut short by accidents, injuries and disease, she said.

"The fact that the life span is short saves them from overpopulation. We would save the starving babies, the little ones with defects, wondering if we were doing them a favor. You cannot withdraw your help," the doctor said of her work.

THE PEOPLE suffered from malaria, parasitic intestinal worms and severe malnutrition. However they have enormous strength and good teeth. If a car went off the road, strong young men would appear from the bush and pick it up with smiles.

Dr. Leicester was warned that if she accidentally hit someone, not to stop because the bush people might retaliate, but to go directly to the police. Africa can be a lawless land because of poverty, she said, but at the same time Dr. Leicester received universal kindness, she said.

"I would rather be poor in Kenya than in San Francisco," she remarked, "because I noticed at a wedding that poor guests were treated with exactly the same courtesy as the rich."

When Dr. Leicester was invited to her cook's home she was seated with the men as an honor. The room was wallpapered with newspaper pictures. The Africans love beautiful things, she said.

"Now I find it hard to throw something away, knowing how the Africans would love to have it," Dr. Leicester said.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Father Wonders How Children Would React To A Sex Change

DEAR HELEN:

I am a "man" who for a long time now has wanted to become a woman. I've saved enough money for the operation, and I know I'm strongly motivated, but I have the added problem of two children nearing teen-age.

When I was 17, I married, trying to "cure" myself. My wife ran away with what she called a real man, leaving me to care for our babies. She said I was better at it than she was. I love those kids — Michael and Dora — and I've done a good job of raising them. But I want to be their mother, not their father. I'm not a homosexual. Ever since I can remember, I've felt, and looked, female. I'm now 31. I can't wait any longer.

Will the sex change turn my children away from me? They are aware of my femininity, which I can't really hide, and we have a very close relationship. Because I'm an artist and designer, associating with many varied personalities, they take my traits as natural.

I could move to a different city, and perhaps no one would know — except the children. I've only heard of one sex change where children were involved, and this was a woman who became a man. His children adjusted well, I'm told.

Would there be a chance for mine to avoid traumas if their father became their mother? — TRAPPED IN THE WRONG BODY

DEAR TRAPPED:

Why don't you ask the children? They're old enough, and I'm sure aware enough to understand the problems of a transsexual. Since they've been brought up to associate with many varied personalities, the "shock" may be much less than you think.

But first, contact one of the three U.S. universities which perform sex change surgery (University of Minnesota, Stanford University and Johns Hopkins University). A doctor there will give you more specific information on how to proceed.

As you probably know, candidates, after careful screening, face almost a year of counseling (and treatment with female hormones) before they undergo the irreversible operation. Within that year, your children will also be counseled. Since they're accustomed to your mothering instincts, they may adjust with little trouble. And why not, once the change is proved a needed transformation which will let you become the person you want to be? — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Last night my 15-year-old brother-in-law gave me a very unbrotherly kiss and then confessed he had fallen in love with me. We were at my in-laws' home where we visit every week. I broke away and made excuses to leave soon afterwards, but I haven't told my husband, and don't know how to face this.

Ronnie is a quiet boy who doesn't have a girlfriend. I've always tried to be especially nice to him as I felt he needed a big sister (I'm 24) and now I'm wondering if this is my fault.

How do I cool it and still keep my close relationship with my husband's family? — DIANA

DEAR DIANA:

Ronnie's crush on an "older woman" is a perfectly normal experience on the road to growing up. Let him know you understand, even though you "care for him in a different — sisterly — way." And tell him, perhaps about the time you fell hard for a male teacher... just before you got your first boyfriend.

It might help if you'd get Ronnie together with a girl his own age. — H.

Got a problem? An adult subject for discussion? A fun idea? You can talk it over in her column if you write to Helen Bottel, c/o the Independent Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

A Walnut Bake With Curried Fruit

Looking for a tasty go-with for ham, pork, lamb, venison or poultry? Drain liquid from a one-pound can of pear halves, one-pound can of peach slices and 20-ounce can of pineapple chunks.

Meanwhile, melt quarter cup butter with three-quarters of a cup packed brown sugar and three-quarter teaspoons curry powder. Add half cup coarsely chopped toasted walnuts.

Arrange fruits in a shallow casserole and spoon curry-walnut mixture over all. Bake at 350 degrees about 45 minutes. Serve hot.

Exercise Tones Muscles, Fights Flab

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN
Distributed by the Register and Tribune Syndicate

(Sixth in a series of 15 articles.)

Life rewards enthusiasm, the will to win, and the self investment which makes winning possible. Therefore, it is sad that so many women take for granted, as signs of aging, conditions they could have avoided and do not have to endure.

For instance, overweight! The average woman gains weight as she grows older, but this does not mean that it is unavoidable or recommended.

It happens because metabolism slows down, physical activity decreases and most people fail to compensate for this by cutting down on their caloric intake. It all adds up to a lot of unwanted pounds which not only ruin the figure but are hazardous to health, pep and happiness.

I have already told you one way in which exercise can help you lose weight comfortably and successfully. It burns up some of the calories you consume. However, that it not only reason for making regular exercise a part of your reducing program. It tones the muscles and is therefore preventive to the flabbiness which sometimes follows a loss of many pounds too rapidly and without exercise. Also, it is the only way you can spot reduce or build up measurements.

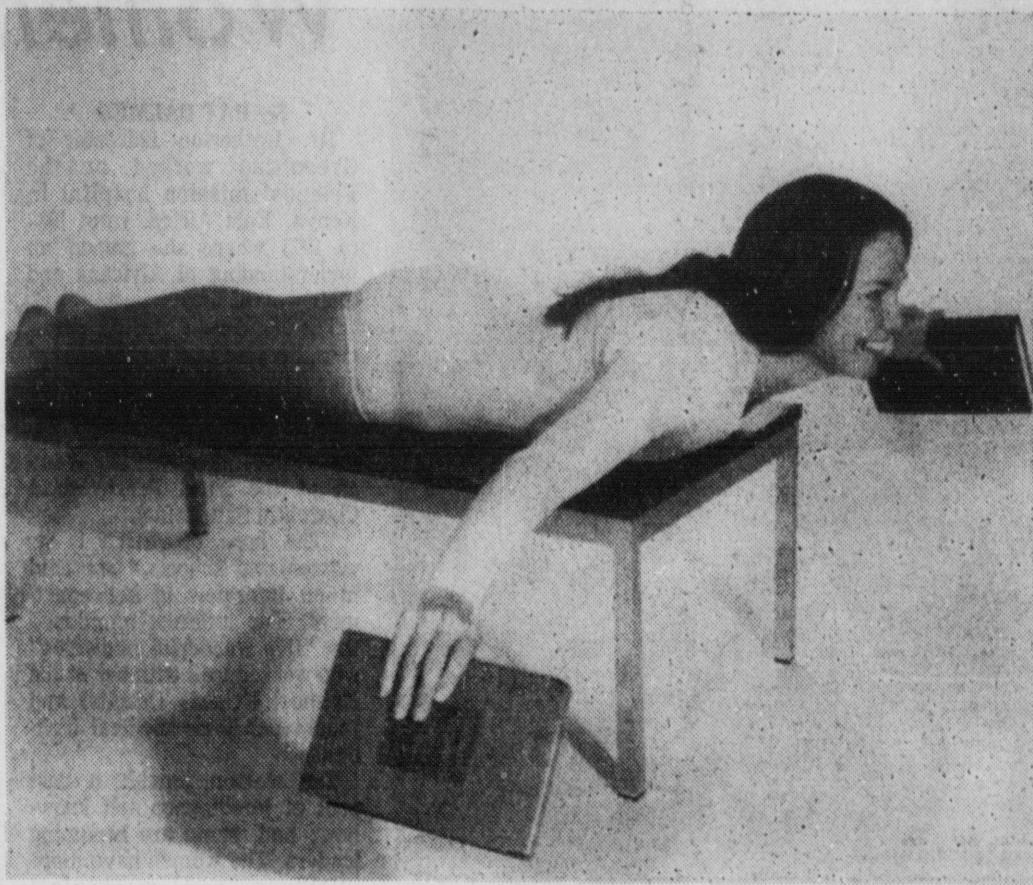

THE HEALTH benefits from regular exercise are great. It strengthens the heart and improves the entire vascular system. It is thought to lower blood cholesterol. It can banish chronic fatigue and constipation. It will also loosen up stiff joints and make you brighter and life more vibrant. Do exercise but heed these warnings.

Before starting, obtain your doctor's permission. Your heart and blood pressure should be checked. Start in slowly with a few exercises and do them only a few times at first. Increase the number of exercises and the number of times gradually. Otherwise you will be discouraged by extremely sore muscles. You will probably have some soreness, anyway, but this will soon disappear.

Stitchery Faire Forms Available

Exhibit forms and information for the fourth annual Stitchery Faire will be available in art and needlecraft stores throughout Marin and the Bay Area by March 1, the committee has announced.

The Stitchery Faire will be held May 4, 5 and 6 at the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley by the Planned Parenthood Auxiliary of Marin, according to Susan Bowman, press chairman.

brown tweed suit with an orange overplaid had four patch pockets, and a pleated back. The pants were pleated and straight with a narrow waistband. Another suit jacket was quite short with a plain back and four flapped pockets. A double-breasted shirt with very wide lapels had only two buttons. Fabrics included Harris tweed, whipcord, flannel.

TWO OF THE Paris designers are in the Hart Schaffner and Marx stable — Nino Cerutti who designs the Society Brand line and sportswear for Gleneagles, and Marc Bohan of the House of Dior. Cerutti is really Italian but has made his fame with his boutique in Paris. But then on the other hand, Cardin was born in Venice.

As an HS and M executive put it, "The Dior collection offers that advanced fashion created with taste and elegance for the worldly man who regards his dress as an extension of his personality."

That translates into suits selling for $175 to $275.

Hubert Givenchy showed his collection in New York late in January. They were clothes with a French accent but translated into American since American men seem to have wider shoulders and deeper chests than Frenchmen.

ance of members of the school's art faculty.

JOLLY ROGERS Chapter of the Children's Home Society will have its annual membership event with a fizz brunch and art show will be held at 11 a.m., tomorrow at Peacock Gap Country Club.

Several prominent Bay Area artists will be showing work, according to Mrs. O. Phillip Baker, membership chairman. Her committee also includes Mmes. Douglas Ascher, invitations; Michael Berge, reservations; James Winter, hospitality; and Stan Wisnes, Richard Miller and James Kean, art coordinators.

Mrs. Thomas Burford, assisted by Mmes. James McConnell and Noel McCarthy, will discuss the expanding programs of CHS. In addition to its adoption and counseling services to unmarried parents, CHS, a child welfare agency is gradually going into child care centers, child-parent counseling, therapeutic foster homes and group home services.

"THE ROLE of Screening and Investigating Officers in the Juvenile Justice System" will be the program for the meeting of the Marin County Juvenile Court Auxiliary meeting at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Held at the Civic Center Board of Supervisors chambers, the panel of speakers will include Jim Scanlon, screening officer; and Nancy Boggs, investigative officer for the Juvenile Court. The board of the auxiliary will meet at 9:30 a.m.

THE WOMEN of St. Francis Episcopal Church will be guests of the retiring and incoming boards at a luncheon following communion at 10 a.m., Wednesday, in Collins Hall, of the Novato church. A social hour will precede the luncheon at 10:30 a.m. Mrs. Richard Brown is chairman of the luncheon.

THE ANNUAL membership luncheon of the Fairfax Guild of Sunny Hills will be held at noon Wednesday at Peacock Gap Country Club in San Rafael.

Mrs. Wayne Boone, president, will welcome guests. Mrs. Reginald Hammond, vice president, is chairman of the event. Other new guild officers this year are Mmes. Hayes Culpepper, recording secretary; Hugh Gallagher, corresponding secretary; Robert Caturegli, treasurer; Perry Withers, Bargain Box chairman; Ronald McCamish, Grape Festival booth; and Keith Yetter, publicity and fund-raising chairman.

Borders Emphasize A Deeper Look

Many of the spring, 1974, fashions call on borders to give them dimension.

More often than not these borders are embroidered, using miniprints in florals, figuratives and geometrics.

BERT TRUAX
Trumpet Soloist

JEAN MITCHELL
Symphony Cellist

Orchestra's 3rd Concert Feb. 26

The Marin Symphony Orchestra conducted by Sandor Salgo, will present its third concert of the season at 8 p.m., Feb. 26 at the Marin Veteran's Memorial Building.

Guest soloists will be Bert Truax of San Anselmo and cellist Jean Mitchell of Mill Valley. Truax, 19-year-old trumpeter, was the 1972 winner of the Marin Symphony Memorial scholarship. He was with the Marin Youth Orchestra for eight years and has appeared as guest soloist with the Youth Concert Series of the San Francisco Symphony and the Napa Symphony. He is now studying at the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia.

He will perform "Prayer to St. Gregory" by Hohvanes and "Concerto for Trumpet" by Albiononi.

Jean Mitchell has been the principal cellist with the Marin Symphony Orchestra since its first concert in 1952 and a member of the San Francisco Symphony since 1957. She played with the Houston Symphony for two years. She is also a member of the Marin Arts Quartet.

For this concert she will play the cello solo in "Don Quixote" by Richard Strauss. Appearing with her will be her husband, Lucien Mitchell, principal violist of the Marin Symphony and Charles Meacham, concertmaster.

Also included on the program is Ginastera's "Variations for Orchestra."

Trial Set For Former Nixon Aides

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former Nixon cabinet officers John N. Mitchell and Maurice H. Stans go on trial in federal court tomorrow, accused of trying to get favorable treatment for a millionaire in return for a campaign contribution.

Mitchell, former attorney general, and Stans, former commerce secretary, are charged with obstructing justice, conspiracy and perjury. They are the first cabinet officers indicted in 50 years.

The indictment filed last May alleges the defendants attempted to get favorable treatment for millionaire financier Robert L. Vesco, by the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC), in exchange for a secret $200,000 cash contribution to President Nixon's re-election campaign.

Sore Throat Cancells Maria Callas Concert

NEW YORK (UPI) — The director of the Metropolitan Opera Guild came to the top of the lobby stairs just as an orange crayon sign announced the cancellation.

"Maria Callas is unable to appear," Dario Soria announced an hour and one-half after the diva's "New York comeback" was to begin at Carnegie Hall Sunday night. "The doctor has forbidden her to sing. She has asked me to express her deep regret at not being here."

"I want my money back," shouted Julia Durcek, a voice student and one of 3,800 persons left out in the cold by the cancellation. "She did the same thing in Hamburg. She did the same thing in London. I could have gone away for the weekend."

"She's not sick, and if I get my hands on her, I'll kill her," Miss Callas, 50, noted for her temper as well as her temperament, had to cancel because of a "low-grade fever," according to Dr. Louis Perrish.

Oldster Is Still Scout At Heart

EAGLE GROVE, Iowa (UPI) — At 94, Howard Schoonover of Eagle Grove says he is still a "Boy Scout at heart."

Schoonover, a Spanish-American War veteran, contends he was the first scoutmaster west of the Mississippi River. "West of New York for that matter," he adds.

Schoonover organized Boy Scout Troop, Eagle Troop 1, in Eagle Grove in 1910 — the same year the Boy Scouts of America organization was formally incorporated. A year later, he was officially recognized as the scoutmaster.

Teachers Turning More Political

NEW YORK (UPI) — A spokesman for the National Education Association (NEA) says his organization hopes to collect $2.5 million from teachers to spend on the 1974 congressional elections. The spokesman, Damon Weber, NEA's assistant director, was quoted as saying in the current issue of "Learning" magazine.

"We've broken through the psychological barrier. Teachers were afraid of politics; they thought it wasn't professional. We're convincing them that everything in education is politics: what you teach, how many kids are in your classroom, what you're paid. The natural progression is teachers as supporters, then workers, then candidates."

Commuter Program Will Be Explained

Residents of Glenwood, Loch Lomond, Peacock Gap, Country Club, Villa Real and the Harbor Estates areas of San Rafael may learn about a commuter club bus program sponsored by the Golden Gate Bridge District at a meeting at 7 p.m. Thursday in the San Rafael High School cafeteria.

Carl Natvig, a representative of the bridge district, will explain the service under which charter buses and amenities are provided by the district to groups of commuters who form clubs.

MUSIC REVIEW

'Modern' Songs Set The Mood

By VERA M. OLMSTED

Performers often make a token bow to the 20th Century by including on their program one selection labeled "modern music."

Last night two members of the Dominican College faculty, baritone Walter Martin and pianist Ted Blair, gently led the audience into the unknown wilderness of contemporary vocal music with a recital of art songs, all written in the last half century.

Their program, held at Angelico Hall, encompassed a wide range of styles and moods, and by the end of the evening should have dispelled any preconceived notions listeners may have had about the starkness and inaccessibility of much contemporary music.

The songs performed were written by a representative group of composers from Schoenberg to Ben Weber, 1908 to 1946. Extreme avant-garde techniques were missing and the stress all evening was on the lyric and more immediately appealing side of the literature.

Recognizing the lack of knowledge and the trepidation with which many people approach such music, Martin wisely prefaced each group of songs with a short description of form and content, translating the text where necessary.

Luigi Dallapiccola's "Rencessvals" (1946) and "Chansons Gaillardes" (1926) by Francis Poulenc were outstanding by virtue of the musicianly interpretation by the performers and the beauty of the compositions themselves.

Dallapiccola is the best-known Italian 12-tone composer. In "Rencessvals" he combined this compositional technique with Latin lyricism to produce a work in which the tender passages are particularly affecting.

Martin has a very pleasing and warm bass-baritone voice. It is resonant and mellow in the low register, and light and limpid on top. He had a real feeling for the sweep and design of this music.

Most contemporary music requires great skill and dexterity from the accompanist, as more is needed here than just a cushion of support. Blair brought to the partnership a nicety of interpretation and phrasing, and the ensemble work between the two performers was consistently good all evening.

Poulenc's "Chansons Gaillardes" brought in some humorous relief. These somewhat ribald songs are tonal, melodious, and completely beguiling. Martin was in his element, vividly characterizing the amusing text.

Other songs performed were by Schoenberg, Berg, Bartok and Ben Weber. They were interesting and well done, but occasionally suffered from a certain monotony, more the fault of the music and German text than the performance, although the high tessitura in Weber's songs gave Martin some trouble.

The enthusiastic reception given the two performers by the small but dedicated audience seemed to confirm that the trip through the wilderness had been successful.

UC Budget Review Is Delayed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A legislative committee plans to delay its review of the proposed University of California budget until UC President Charles Hitch explains a policy regarding employees' freedom to talk with lawmakers.

The policy has been denounced by some teachers' groups as an attempt to intimidate employees and discourage them from communicating with state legislators.

John Mockler, consultant to the Assembly Ways and Means subcommittee on education, said the panel will refuse to consider the UC budget until some explanation is offered for the controversial policy.

The UC directive to its employees states, in part: "Meeting of staff members with federal or state officials in regard to specific programs which do not, or do not appear to, involve official representation of the university shall be reported by the staff member to the president."

The policy was denounced as "improper" by Paul Goodman, Northern California vice president for the University Council of the American Federation of Teachers.

He said the policy was an attempt to "discourage, and, indeed, intimidating university employees from communicating with members of the legislature, even when acting in an unofficial capacity as citizens and as representatives of employee organizations."

Cyril Magnin Due Honor At Meeting

Cyril Magnin, chairman of the board of Joseph Magnin stores, will be honored as "outstanding retailer of the decade" at the California Business Education Association, Bay Section, conference March 2.

The day-long conference of business educators will be held at the College of Marin campus in Kentfield.

Elizabeth Gatov, former treasurer of the United States, is the featured speaker.

Discussion topics will include new careers, career trends and how business can help the teacher.

Accord Wipes Out India's U.S. Debt

NEW DELHI (UPI) — The United States and India today signed an accord that wiped out India's $3.2 billion debt to the United States.

The debt, a major irritant to Indo-U.S. relations, was a product of U.S. economic assistance to India over the past two decades.

The money, which has existed only on the account books of the Indian and American governments, amounts to about 20 percent of all India's monetary currency.

"Thank you very much," said Secretary M.G. Kaul of the Indian Finance Ministry with a smile as he accepted a symbolic check for 16,640 million rupees ($2.2 billion) from U.S. Ambassador Daniel Patrick Moynihan.

Under the agreement India will use the rupees for its own development during this country's fifth five-year plan which begins April 1.

The other $1 billion worth of rupees will be retained by the United States in an interest-free account and used to finance future U.S. government expenditures in India.

The complex pact, worked out during six months of negotiations, was initiated last Dec. 13 and then taken before the U.S. Congress by Moynihan in January.

The approval of Congress was not necessary for the implementation of the accord.

Bomb Blast Kills One, Hurts Three

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — A bomb exploded on a downtown street today killing one person and injuring three others, police sources said.

Apparently the bomb exploded accidentally and may have been in the possession of the dead man, identified as Alejandro Giovenco Romero, the sources said.

Story Of San Rafael Started With Franciscan Friars

They Planted A Cross To Found The Mission

San Rafael's story began 157 years ago when four Spanish Franciscan friars planted and blessed a cross in a wooded wilderness to found Mission San Rafael Arcangel.

San Rafael's story began 157 years ago when four Spanish Franciscan friars planted and blessed a cross in a wooded wilderness to found Mission San Rafael Arcangel.

During the mission's next 44 years — before the original buildings disappeared in 1861 — three nations and a republic would fly flags over its adobe walls. A Mexican pueblo, an American frontier town and later a city would be built on its gardens and grounds. And the county government of Marin would be born within its crumbling walls.

Today St. Raphael's Catholic Church, a parochial school and a mission chapel built in 1949 stand on a site thought to have been occupied by the original mission, while the heart of downtown San Rafael stretches across its former orchards and fields.

Epidemics of illness among the Indians and Russian interest in colonizing California were the reasons for the mission's founding on Dec. 14, 1817, as a hospital that was "asistencia," (subordinate) to Mission San Francisco de Assisi (Mission Dolores.)

It was the 20th of 21 missions built by the Franciscans along the California coast, beginning in 1769 at San Diego. The 21st, Mission San Francisco Solano in Sonoma, was completed in 1823.

A hospital was needed for Indians from Mission Dolores who were dying in San Francisco's cold, damp climate.

Meanwhile, the Spanish government — claimant to California since 1594 and its first colonizer 175 years later — had grown fearful that Russia was planning to settle Northern California.

Cause of the concern was the founding of a Russian trading post at Fort Ross and an outpost to the south on Bodega Bay.

As a result, the new Mission San Rafael Arcangel was to be mission wine — considered the finest in California.

Many of the padres — like Father Amoros — were much beloved by their Indian converts. When he died in 1832, after 13 years of labor on their behalf, Father Amoros was laid to rest by his weeping charges.

The year 1822 marked a large change for Mission San Rafael. Spain lost California after Mexico's successful war for independence. At the same time, the mission received its independence when it was granted full mission status and set free from Mission Dolores.

Years of dissension between friars and the Mexican military ensued, culminating in 1834 when the Mexican government secularized and closed the Franciscan missions in California.

The friars — who had come to an unexplored country to help the Indians — were ousted.

Mission San Rafael was the first of the 21 missions to be affected by the government ruling. Secular priests from Zaca-teca, Mexico, were sent to Northern California.

Placed in charge of San Rafael was Father Jose Mercado, a man of violent temperament who was extremely jealous of his right to rule over the mission Indians with an iron hand.

Father Mercado had no desire to trifle with insubordinate Indians. When a group of Indians scorned his efforts to convert them, he sent an armed band of his neophytes out after them. The neophytes attacked the unarmed band and killed many of the helpless Indians.

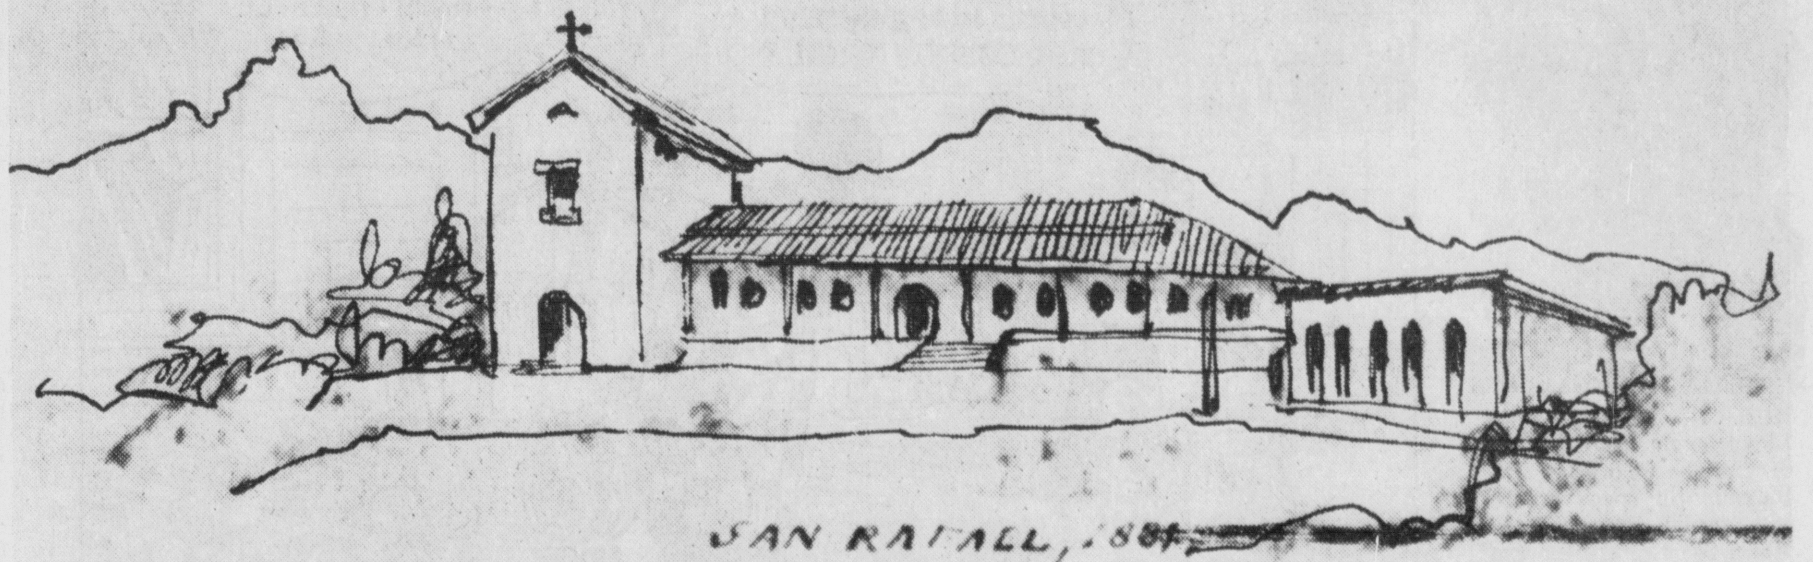

Word got back to the authorities who angrily removed Mercado from the mission post.

During the following years the mission Indian population wandered away. The buildings became home and headquarters to lay-administrators and alcaldes (mayors) sent to protect the property.

Despite these precautions, livestock, furnishings, plants and wines were removed from the mission property.

The secular priests said Mass in the chapel and early settlers rode miles by horseback and wagon for baptisms, weddings and church celebrations.

In 1837 a 37-year-old Irish-born hunter, Timoteo Murphy, was named the mission's third MISSION BEGINNING — Even though San Rafael was founded as a mission community in 1817 by Spanish Franciscans, no one later knew exactly what the original Mission San Rafael Arcangel looked like. This pencil sketch administrator and agent for Marin's 1,400 homeless Indians.

The enterprising and popular Murphy moved the Indians to a 57,000-acre land grant in the Nicasio Valley and succeeded in protecting and improving their standard of living until the American occupation a decade later.

Murphy probably lived at the mission until 1844 when the government gave him a 22,000-acre land grant of his own that extended from today's Marinwood across San Rafael and onto Santa Venetia, Peacock Gap and Glenwood.

That year he moved into San Rafael's first home — a two-story hacienda built at today's Fourth and C streets.

Visitors continued to use the mission buildings.

During the 1846 Bear Flag rebellion, Capt. John Charles Fremont billeted his men in the ruins and later, when California was annexed to the United States after its war with Mexico, American soldiers camped there.

At this time California was being run by a military governor and a legislature convened by a constitutional convention in Monterey in 1849.

The following February, the legislature named Marin one of California's 27 original counties. And on July 22, 1850 — less than two months before California's admittance to the Union as a free state — local government was born in a room in the crumbling mission.

It was here, in the midst of a tiny frontier town, that a three-man court of sessions cut the new county into four townships — South Saliato (Sausalito), San Rafael, Novato and Baulinas (Bolinas), issued the first business licenses and opened a jail.

The mission buildings continued to deteriorate as San Rafael grew into a thriving village. In 1861 the ruins were bought by carpenter James Byers, who razed them for salvageable timbers.

In the late 1860s, St. Raphael's Parish Church was built on the old mission site. Destroyed by a fire in 1919, it was immediately reconstructed and enlarged and remodeled in recent years.

In 1949 a Mission Chapel was built with funds donated by the Hearst Foundation and the City of San Rafael at the urging of the Marin County Historical Society.

Over the years, this chapel has become a popular tourist attraction, drawing between 50 and 75 visitors a day.

OLD MISSION BELL — This bell, used more than a century ago to summon Indian neophytes to prayers, work and meals, today hangs (along with other bells from old Mission Rafael Arcangel) in the rack at the entrance of the mission replica built in 1949. This bell, cast by the Holbrook Foundry in East Medway, Mass., was probably acquired in 1831, 43 years before the town's incorporation.

Recreational vehicles and campers which are 80 or more inches wide are prohibited from driving in the fast lane of freeways, Capt. William S. Bloomer, commander of the California Highway Patrol in Marin, warned today.

He said that many of the vehicle's drivers appear to be unaware of a new law which took effect Jan. 1 so violators presently are only being warned about violations. He said that beginning about April 1, however, those not obeying the law will be cited.

Purpose of the law is to eliminate visibility impairments and potential left-lane snarls.

Witness Thwarts Attempted Robbery

Two men were arrested last night after an observant witness thwarted their attempt to rob an Ignacio supermarket, according to police.

Novato police said that William David Ayers, 26, of 1507 Quail Drive, Petaluma, and James Robert Lopaka, 35, of 129 Montego Key, Novato, were spotted by a Novato woman as they were trying to open the door to a cashier's office at the Pacheco Plaza Safeway store at about 7 p.m.

After she notified store employees, the men left and fled by car.

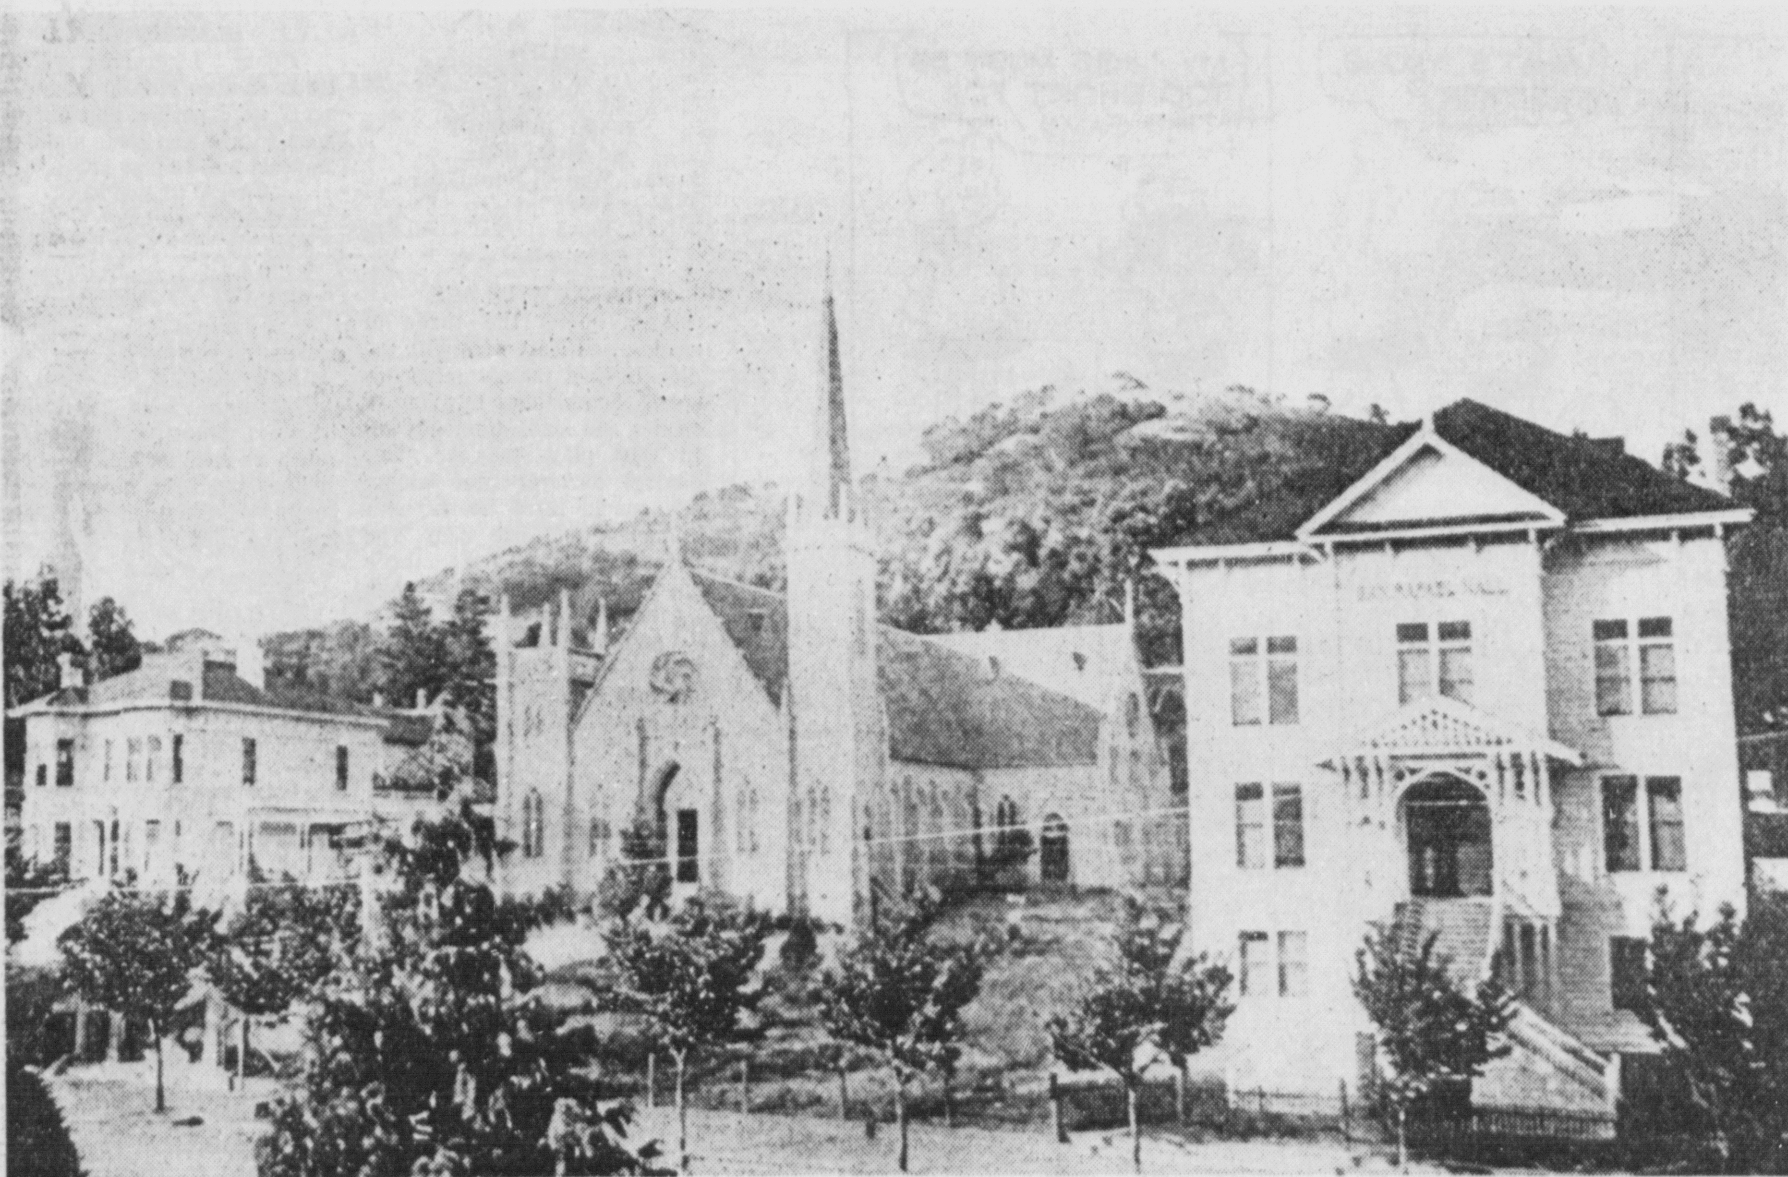

Outside the store, police said they found dumped in the bushes a revolver and a paper bag containing a ski mask, cloth bag and a pair of gloves. Using an auto license number supplied by the witness, police traced the men to their homes where they were arrested.

The two were booked at 5 a.m. at Marin County Jail on suspicion of armed robbery, burglary and conspiracy. They were being held until bail could be set.

Gromyko Arrives

ROME (UPI) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko arrived Monday on an official four-day visit which will include talks with Italian leaders in Rome and Pope Paul VI in the Vatican.

MISSION SUCCESSOR — After the original Mission San Rafael Arcangel buildings vanished in the second half of the 19th Century, a gothic Catholic church, and a parish hall were built on the former mission grounds on Fifth Avenue facing A Street. Following this church's destruction in a 1919 fire, today's St. Raphael's Church was erected on the site.

Ice Cream Store Robbery Trial Ends In Hung Jury

By GEORGE NEVIN

A Marin Superior Court jury on Saturday was unable to reach a verdict in the case of two men charged with armed robbery and assault with a deadly weapon and a new trial date will be set tomorrow.

Despite an unusual Saturday deliberating session lasting nine hours, the jury could not decide on the guilt or innocence of Raymond McFarland, 31, and James William Frisby, 24.

They are charged with robbing Swensen's Ice Cream store of $200 Oct. 27, then shooting a 17-year-old high school student who chased their car.

Jurors announced themselves deadlocked 10 to 2 on the assault charge and 7 to 5 on the armed robbery count, with the majority in both cases favoring conviction.

For Judge Henry J. Broderick, who presided over the seven-day trial, it was the second case in a row to end in a hung jury.

Jurors in the case of Caroline Janice Maxwell, charged with stabbing her father last October, likewise could not reach a verdict on Feb. 4.

Star witness against McFarland and Frisby was H. Eric Newlin of San Anselmo, who testified he chased the pair from Swensen's, then was shot twice by McFarland near Hutchinson's Quarry east of Highway 101.

During the jury's two and half days of deliberation, testimony from several of the trial's 17 witnesses was read back, including most of Newlin's testimony.

Turks Arrest 27 Gls Found Smoking Hash

ISTANBUL (UPI) — Police have arrested 27 U.S. Army privates found smoking hashish at a beach campsite over the weekend, narcotics authorities said today.

They said the soldiers were from the Incirlikair military base near Izmir, Turkey, but were on leave and camping on a beach in Southern Turkey at the time of their arrest. Police, acting on a tip, raided the campsite and found the soldiers smoking hashish in their tent, they said.

Both Turkish and U.S. authorities withheld the soldiers' names pending completion of investigations.

Impeachment 'Exercise' Report Due

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A source close to the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment inquiry has said the inquiry staff is expected to give the full panel an "academic exercise" report later this week concluding President Nixon can be impeached for offenses other than criminal violations.

That means, the source said, Nixon could be impeached for orders to subordinates to commit illegal acts or abuse of power in addition to any criminal offenses.

But he called the staff's month-long research an "academic exercise."

The report is basically a rehash of what has been published previously, he said. The committee's 38 members will make their own individual determination of what constitutes an impeachable offense.

One Congressman on the committee, Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Tex., has said he does not think the report will be very helpful because it duplicates a lot of material already published.

Its effect, however, is expected to vary widely among committee members who will decide sometime this spring whether grounds exist to send articles of impeachment to the full House for a vote.

The House leadership has instructed the committee to determine what constitutes an impeachable offense—a disputed definition because the Constitution only defines the grounds as "treason, bribery or other high crimes and misdemeanors."

An indication of the impact the report should come Thursday when the two top impeachment lawyers, Special Counsel John M. Doar and GOP Counsel Albert E. Jenner, are questioned by committee members at a public session.

Jenner already has told the GOP members he believes Nixon can be impeached only for indictable crimes and for specific orders to subordinates to commit illegal acts.

"Whether Doar and Jenner agree will be very persuasive," said Rep. William L. Hungate, D-Mo., a senior committee member. He added that the report's impact probably will depend more on what it concludes not to be impeachable offenses than what it deems impeachable offenses.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

The Favorite Nephew Is Given A Lesson On Deschappelles Coup

The other day my favorite nephew climbed on my knee and asked "Uncle, what is a Deschappelles Coup?" I blushed and tried to change the subject, but he insisted. After all, I finally decided, this was not the sort of thing for him to be learning from the other boys. So I drew him a diagram of this hand:

South dealer North-South vulnerable
NORTH	EAST
♠ 7 4 2	♠ A 8 5
♥ 9 3 2	♥ 10 8 7 4
♦ K Q J 7 3	♦ A 6 5
♣ A 5	♣ K 9 3

♠ Q J 6 3	♠ K 10 9
♥ 1 6 5	♥ A K Q
♦ 8 2	♦ 10 9 4
♣ J 10 8 4	♣ Q 7 6 2

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♦	Pass
1 NT	Pass	3 NT	All Pass

Opening lead — ♣ 3

TAKES WITH ACE

West opens the three of spades, and East wins with the ace. If East tamely returns a spade, South takes the king of spades and leads diamonds until East plays the ace. This assures declarer nine tricks: one spade, three hearts, four diamonds and one club. The defenders can take three spades and one diamond while all this is going on.

"And here is your Deschappelles Coup," I screamed, since my nephew had already fallen asleep — and so had my leg.

"At the second trick, East must return the king of clubs." "That's a Deschappelles Coup — leading that king?" asked my nephew.

"Sure thing," I told him proudly. "Pretty nifty, eh?"

DEFEATS CONTRACT

When my nephew just sniffed, I explained that the king of clubs forces out dummy's ace. Later, East refuses the first two diamond tricks but wins the third. South gets only two diamond tricks. He wins two clubs, one spade, three hearts and the two diamonds — a total of eight tricks.

"That's what you think," my nephew objected. "Suppose South lets East hold the king of clubs at the second trick."

PLAN HOUSE

"Pooh," I retorted. "East leads another club to dummy's ace." As I pushed him off my knee I gave him some matches and told him to play house.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:

- ♠ A 8 5
- ♥ 10 8 7 4
- ♦ A 6 5
- ♣ K 9 3

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

This hand with 2½ quick tricks is almost, but not quite, worth an opening bid. To put it another way, you have only 11 points — a couple of points less than you need to bid.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Physical, Emotional Ailments Often Related To Occupation

The occupation of a man or woman may adversely affect health, especially when the office or plant is dusty, dirty, noisy, risky, or generally unpleasant. On-the-job hazards may create physical and/or emotional ailments.

Unionism, insurance plans, and pensions make it difficult for a worker to change jobs, even though he knows he would be happier and probably live longer doing something else. In this respect, security deters many from changing jobs, trying something different, or just quitting when they have "had it."

MANY "ILLS" are blamed on a person's occupation even though he spends only 40 hours a week on the job. Very little is said about what he does at home or while traveling to and from his place of business. All too often he is safer at work than at home, and this goes for the boss as well as the cleaning woman.

Heads of medical departments know it is easier for an employee to blame the company for injuries, bronchitis, heart attacks, and hernias. The source of the trouble is never questioned among those who develop disabilities known to be caused by the hazards associated with certain working conditions.

Management, workers, and union officials are interested in whether shift work, night work, or interrupting a normal pattern of working influences health, sleep, digestion, and longevity, etc.

ACTUALLY, THERE is very little objective evidence, for example, that shift work continues for any length of time significantly affects health in terms of sickness, absence, or mortality. Temporary changes in sleep or eating routines may occur when starting a new shift especially when the worker is unable to adapt to the changed rhythm of life imposed by shift work.

Considerable research is being done on circadian rhythms. One conclusion reached as a result of these studies is that it takes time to adapt biochemically to night work even though the body adjusts to changes in temperature and sleep patterns within a few days.

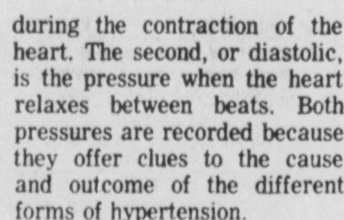

Industrial physicians also are aware of the feeling of isolation and boredom of workers confined to a single operation on the assembly line. It often leads to loss of attentiveness and productivity, increased absenteeism, and general discomfort. Dr. Van Dellen answers questions on medical topics by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902. Telephone inquiries will not be answered.

ACCIDENTAL OVERDOSE
S.S. writes: Is any permanent harm done to a child of 5 who was given an accidental overdose of a sedative?

REPLY
No, not if the child remains consciousness. This is remarkable considering the temporary effects of overdosage in the brain, nervous system, heart, and lungs. During severe poisoning, the most delicate reflexes may disappear and one or more lobes of the lungs may collapse.

BLOOD PRESSURE
H. T. writes: Why are two readings necessary to record the blood pressure?

REPLY
The systolic reading denotes the pressure in the arteries

Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

during the contraction of the heart. The second, or diastolic, is the pressure when the heart relaxes between beats. Both pressures are recorded because they offer clues to the cause and outcome of the different forms of hypertension.

SOUND SLEEPER

Mrs. M. C. writes: I have the opposite of insomnia. When I sleep, I hear nothing — fire engines, doorbells, or phones. I've been this way for 30 years. Before the birth of my baby, who is now 18 months old, I was told not to worry because if he even turned in his crib I would be at his side. This never has happened. Now I would like more children but my husband refuses. He says he can't work all day and be up all night taking care of the babies. I see his point of view and wonder if there is anything to help my problem.

REPLY

Your husband could wake you up. Why not consult an electronics engineer who may be able to amplify the sound in the baby's room.

INCREASED WAISTLINE

E. A. writes: What would cause the waistline to increase three inches in three years?

REPLY

The middle-aged spread is a common cause. Fat tends to accumulate in this area, even in skinny people. The entire abdomen may enlarge from fluid, ovarian cysts, or glandular disorders. Examination would be needed to determine the cause. Meanwhile, send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on exercises that benefit this particular area.

GOITERS

G. writes: Is an inward goiter more serious than an outward goiter?

REPLY

No. However, the inward goiter is more difficult to recognize and may press on other structures in the neck.

SWOLLEN THYROID

H.C. writes: I have a toxic thyroid and have been treated with iodine without success. The gland is quite swollen and I have difficulty breathing. The doctor wants to give me some other medication. Would it be better to have the thyroid gland removed? I am very nervous and have lost quite a bit of weight.

REPLY

This condition is treated successfully with drugs or via surgery. The choice depends upon your age, the size of the gland, and how toxic you are. Surgery is usually advised when the gland is enlarged and in young people. This question is too serious to answer in a newspaper because firsthand information is needed to make the decision.

MENTAL ILLNESS

A reader writes: Is it true that 67 per cent of the people in the United States are mentally unbalanced?

REPLY

No, and should the percentage get that high we might be forced to redefine normalcy.

Legislators Get Extra Pay

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Four Sacramento legislators collected $23,580 in expenses last year from funds intended mainly for colleges who live away from home, say the state controller's records.

The Sacramento Union said yesterday the 1966 expense fund law does not differentiate between legislators who represent areas of Sacramento County and those who have to travel to the capital to attend sessions.

The four legislators and the amounts collected over their uniform $19,200 salaries were listed as Sen. Albert Rodda, $5,419, and Assemblymen Edwin Z'berg, $7,239; Leroy Greene, $7,080, and Walter Powers, $6,454.

Vets Pension Cuts Criticized

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania today called for legislation to restore cutbacks in veterans' pensions. He said he was "alarmed and astounded" to learn that the new 11 per cent Social Security increase will result in a decrease in veterans' allowances. "Some of these people who were trying to live on little more than $200 a month anticipated an increase when the Social Security benefits were raised," Scott said, "but now they're being told their veterans' pensions will be cut, leaving them with less than they had before the Social Security increase."

Philippine Visit

MANILA (UPI) — Prince Juan Carlos of Spain arrived today for a four-day visit designed to renew nearly 400 years of historic and cultural ties between the Philippines and Spain.

THE UNEXPLAINED

By ALLEN SPRAGGETT

English Inventor Of Black Box Considered Both Great, Fraud

As scientists increasingly probe the mysterious frontier where mind and matter meet they inevitably will rediscover the work of a great pioneer named George de la Warr.

Until his death five years ago, de la Warr was one of England's most unusual men. Both his friends and his foes, and he had plenty of both, called him an "enigma."

His boosters, who included people like writer Jean Cocteau and humanitarian Albert Schweitzer, considered him one of the most audacious thinkers of his time.

His detractors said he was a fraud, a fool, or a crank.

De la Warr, an electrical engineer by training, made outlandish claims which he called "paraphysics" — the physics of the 21st Century. His critics called them black magic.

George de la Warr said he had discovered how to bypass time and space. He invented strange devices called the Black Boxes, by which he claimed he could diagnose a person's diseases anywhere in the world from a drop of his blood. De la Warr also said he could "treat" the person from bloodspot.

Moreover, he claimed to have created a "camera" that photographed objects anywhere in the world, and even the past and the future.

Incredible? Of course. But many thoughtful, perceptive people came to believe that these claims merited at least careful consideration.

On a visit I made to the de la Warr Laboratories in Oxford, England, the controversial man talked about his research.

He showed me the Black Boxes, curious machines encased in black leather, ranging in size from a portable model to a monster that looked capable of taking over the world.

De la Warr told me matter-of-factly about an experiment in which he said he had photographed a woman who was in South Africa while he was in England.

"I put a spot of her blood in the Black Box and held in my mind the clear thought: This woman's physical condition," de la Warr said. "And we got this picture."

What he showed me was clearly the image of a very young fetus. "The woman said she couldn't possibly be pregnant," chuckled de la Warr. "but of course, she was."

Such a story takes some believing, and a peek inside the Black Box didn't make it any easier. It was a jungle of wires with a rubber band and a bar magnet thrown in. There was, I noted, no power source, no battery or plug-in. Obviously, then, I said, the thing couldn't work.

"Oh but it does," de la Warr corrected me. "It runs on thought. You see, my devices are simply mechanical extensions of the operator's psychic perceptions, as the telescope and microscope are of his visual perceptions."

In one important test of his claims, de la Warr was challenged by a prominent surgeon provided a drop of the patient's blood and the time of the operation but no further information.

At the designated time de la Warr got a photograph in his lab of what appeared to be a testicle with a piece of wire through it. The astonished surgeon confirmed that he had removed a diseased testicle from the patient after first inserting a silver pin through it.

As a result of this test, Walker, Hunterian Professor at London's Royal College of Surgeons, became a strong supporter of George de la Warr and wrote: "He should be given a knighthood without delay."

Another converted skeptic was Dr. E.W. Russell, director of Oxford University's soil science laboratory, who set up an experiment to test de la Warr's claim to be able to improve the growth of a selected cabbage patch at a distance of 25 miles by using only his Black Box and a photograph of the patch.

Elsie Hall, a social worker, will talk about the problems of the older or handicapped person. Other topics will include the skill of listening, initial contact and conversation.

Prince's Ship

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — Prince Charles, the 25-year-old heir to the British throne, is a communications officer aboard a Navy frigate that is expected to pull into San Diego for seven days next month.

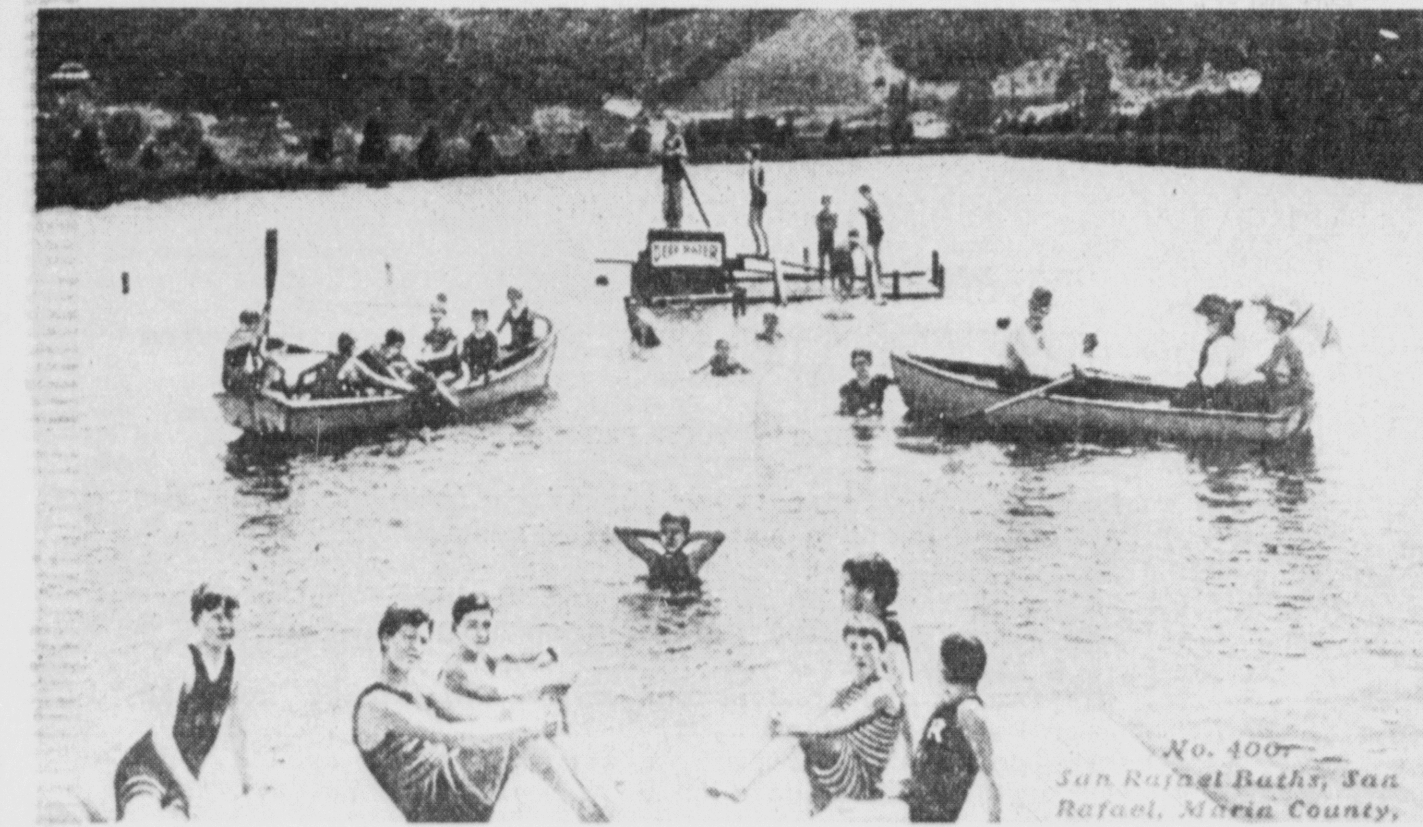

ONETIME OPERA HOUSE — This historic structure on the south side of Fourth Street near D Street now houses shops, stores and apartments but when it opened 96 years ago, it was San Rafael's first opera house where notables, including the great actor Edwin Booth, "trod the boards" to the delight of the townspeople. Built in 1878 by pioneer banker and developer Upton M. Gordon and known for years as Gordon's Opera House, its second-floor theater area later became the city's first movie house.

SOCIETY SPA — During the late 19th and early 20th centuries San Rafael's gentler residents joined travelers from around the world in tennis matches, dances, card par-

CANAL SWIMMING — Youngsters swim, row and soak up the sun as three of their elders (right) take a leisurely boat ride in the waters of the San Rafael Canal around the turn of the century. The San Rafael Baths opened in the western basin of the Canal in the early 1900s. Later this area was filled and developed and is now crossed by Second Street and Lincoln Avenue.

EARLY PARADE — Even though Fourth Street was scarred by excavation work, a group of stalwart paraders followed a horse-drawn float down the right side of the thoroughfare to commemorate Labor Day in 1909. From its earliest years San Rafael always loved its parades.

San Rafael Entertainment Center During Early Years

In the years before California's gold rush the pueblo of San Rafael became an entertainment center annually attracting throngs of Mexican Californians who came to celebrate St. Raphael's feast on Oct. 24 with fiestas of bullfighting, gambling, drinking and merry making.

In 1848 when Marin and California were taken over by the United States, the old Spanish-style celebration survived, grew in exuberance and took on the trappings of the Old West.

Two decades later when the frontier town emerged as a suburban bedroom for San Francisco's wealthy, the fiesta was banished. But the village continued on as one of the Bay Area's popular resorts and playlands.

It all began in 1845 when Alcade Don Timoteo Murphy, a Mexican land grantee who owned nearly 22,000 acres from today's Ignacio to the San Rafael shores of San Pablo Bay, decreed that St. Raphael's feast day be observed with a fiesta.

The pueblo's sparse population exploded each year as thousands came from as far away as Mexico and San Diego for the celebration, according to an account of early day San Rafael newspaperman James H. Wilkins.

In later years the fiesta took on a secular cast, as "all the gamblers from California and other states made San Rafael their mecca," and the village was flooded with Mexican silver dollars.

Fourth Street became a Rialto lined with gambling wheels and roulette wheels and men gathered in saloons playing faro, monte, chuck-a-luck, red and white rondo and twenty-one.

Saloons never closed their doors and music blared across the small settlement until dawn.

During the day vaqueros dressed in brightly colored shirts, dark pants, high boots and spurs, jumped horses across high hurdles, lassoed cattle and galloped down the main street plucking handkerchiefs from the ground. But the main attraction (until it was abolished in 1868), was the bullfight, held in an arena built in the early 1850s on the site of today's Albert Field.

Beef and sheep driven into town were slaughtered for an annual giant barbecue. It was held in a large orchard near the old mission at today's Fifth and Loutens. The men manned the pits and the women cooked and stuffed tortillas over open fires.

After the revelers had their fill of whiskey, wine and food, and gambled away their dollars, they climbed on their horses or into waiting boats to begin the long trek home.

In the late 1860s when the village emerged as a suburb for San Francisco's wealthy and the number of women residents began to increase, the fiesta was modified to match the changing times.

In 1872 arrangements for the celebration "more in accord with a Christian civilization" called for political rallies for Presidential candidates Ulysses S. Grant and Horace Greeley, a barbecue, dancing parties and a supper served at the Sheppard House on C Street.

As the village evolved into a "typical 19th Century small town" parades, salt water bathing, amateur and professional theatricals, balls, dances, picnics and hayrides became popular entertainments.

In 1878 Upton M. Gordon built Gordon's Opera House on Fourth Street between C and D. Gordon came to California in 1852 from Pennsylvania and was a bartender at McAllister's saloon before becoming a developer and banker.

At the opera house notable actors, including Edwin Booth, "trod the boards" and amateur actors performed for the delight of the townspeople.

Political rallies following torchlight parades through the dirt streets convened here and school commencements later were held in the second story rooms.

In the early years of this century, Gordon's Opera House became San Rafael's first movie house — the Lyric Theater. By 1908 the rival Palm Theater, advertised as Marin's "only fireproof theater" was operating on the opposite side of Fourth Street.

Later the Lyric, renamed the Star, became a popular nickelodeon where youngsters, including former Marin County Superior Court Judge Carlos Freitas, watched their first silent films and vaudeville shows.

George Sargent opened the second Lyric Theater now the Great Store later on the north side of Fourth Street between A and B. In 1920 Max Blumenfeld built the Orpheus Theater next door.

Gutted by fire, the Orpheus was rebuilt and reopened in 1931 as the Rafael Theater.

After the advent of "talkies" in the early 1930s, the Blumenfelds built the El Camino Theater on the northwestern corner of Fourth and Loutens — a building now occupied by the J.C. Penny Company.

Many of the silver screen's early day silent movies had been filmed in Fairfax and San Rafael's Sun Valley where pioneer movie makers made films before Hollywood became the movie capital of the world.

From the beginning, gambling had been a major diversion for local men who gathered in great numbers in upstairs rooms, hotel lobbies and later at games run by the Chinese on C Street, where, it is said, many a ranch was lost on the turn of a card.

The gentler residents gathered at the luxurious Hotel Rafael at Grand and Belle to play tennis, dance, play whist and join paper chases that were modified hunts.

From the time Timoteo Murphy raced across the hills with his hounds, the town's men had been hunters. Far into this century youngsters stalked rabbit and quail on San Rafael Hill and larger game in the ravines in Lucas Valley.

When this century was still young and gay the wealthy and elite flocked to the Marin Golf and Country Club, (off San Pedro Road) where, following the Second World War, the Country Club or Golf Tract was built.

Here they dined, swam in an indoor pool at the Clubhouse, and golfed on a nine-hole course.

For years the railroad brought carloads of Bay Area residents to picnic and play at William Tell Coleman's Laurel Grove (today's Bret Harte and Picnic Valley). The tourists also came to Schuetzen Park (site of the Motor Movies on Bellam Avenue) which some tried to rename California Park during the First World War.

Many of these picnickers became residents after the 1906 earthquake and fire that destroyed San Francisco.

A roller skating craze struck the city after the turn of the century. A rink opened at Third Street near Loutens Place. Another soon sprouted on C Street. A third was built near Gerstle Park but later destroyed in a fire.

In 1914 the city erected a $31,380 Municipal Bath House on the banks of the San Rafael Canal at today's Second Street and Lincoln Avenue.

Here townspeople and Olympic greats such as San Rafael's Eleanor Garatti swam in a 100 by 40 foot concrete pool filled with unheated water taken from the nearby canal.

The bath house, built over the city's oldtime outdoor salt water baths, flourished until the depression when the city fathers decided to close it.

The building, later used by the H. C. Little Burner Company was destroyed in a spectacular fire in June, 1949.

San Rafael's Marinista Parlor of the Native Daughters of the Golden West revived the October Fiesta in 1934 that for the next 16 years drew throngs of visitors to watch colorful parades marching down San Rafael streets.

A HEARTY LOT — San Rafael residents who splashed and swam in the City of San Rafael's Municipal Bath House, built in 1914 on the bank of the San Rafael Canal near today's Second Street and Lincoln Avenue, were a hearty lot indeed. The 100 by 40 foot concrete pool was filled with unheated salt water taken from the Canal.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Court's Views On Sexual Loss

There are some things better than sex, and there are things worse than sex, but there is nothing just like sex.

The law can't put a price on it when it is lost.

Joe's young wife is seriously injured in an auto accident. He sues for the loss of her services and gets their value. She gets damages for her injuries, pain and suffering, and for her future care. But the accident also left her with brain damage that drops her mentality to that of a child.

Husband Joe asks the court to award him for the loss of consortium — the loss of married companionship. That was a right long ago recognized as common law.

But in 1960, the California Supreme Court changed this rule, saying there is no right to such recovery. At common law a wife had no right to sue for consortium if her husband was so injured. The law makes no distinction between husband and wife — both are denied the right.

If the wife had been killed, the court would have allowed damages for the loss of his companionship and social contact with his wife. Same right to a widow. But no such recovery is allowed if the spouse is injured and lives.

In most other states, there is a right to collect for the loss of consortium. Most states make no distinction between the rights of husband and wife; both can recover.

In a recent New York case, Pete was in an elevator accident, paralyzing him from the waist down. Pete sued. So did his wife, for loss of consortium. She pointed out that her husband would spend the rest of his life as an invalid. "The failure of the elevator company caused a radical change in this marriage," said her attorney. The wife got damages for loss of consortium, and loss of love, companionship affection, society, sexual relations, solace and other personal aspects of the marriage.

Other courts recognize that when either husband or wife suffers a disabling physical injury, both parties to the marriage suffer. Each should be able to recover for his individual loss.

Rightly or wrongly, California courts fear that allowing an award for consortium would result in double damages. They believe such awards would be based on conjecture and speculation. The California Supreme Court said that if damages should be allowed, the legislature should pass a law allowing such recovery.

Influence Of Tars' Garner

By DAVE DEL GRANDE

Wil Garner affects a basketball game even when he's on the sidelines.

Evidence: Garner scored 27 points and Bill Donnellan added 18 to lead College of Marin to a 100-81 win over Camino Norte Conference foe Solano College Saturday night before about 500 fans in Kentfield.

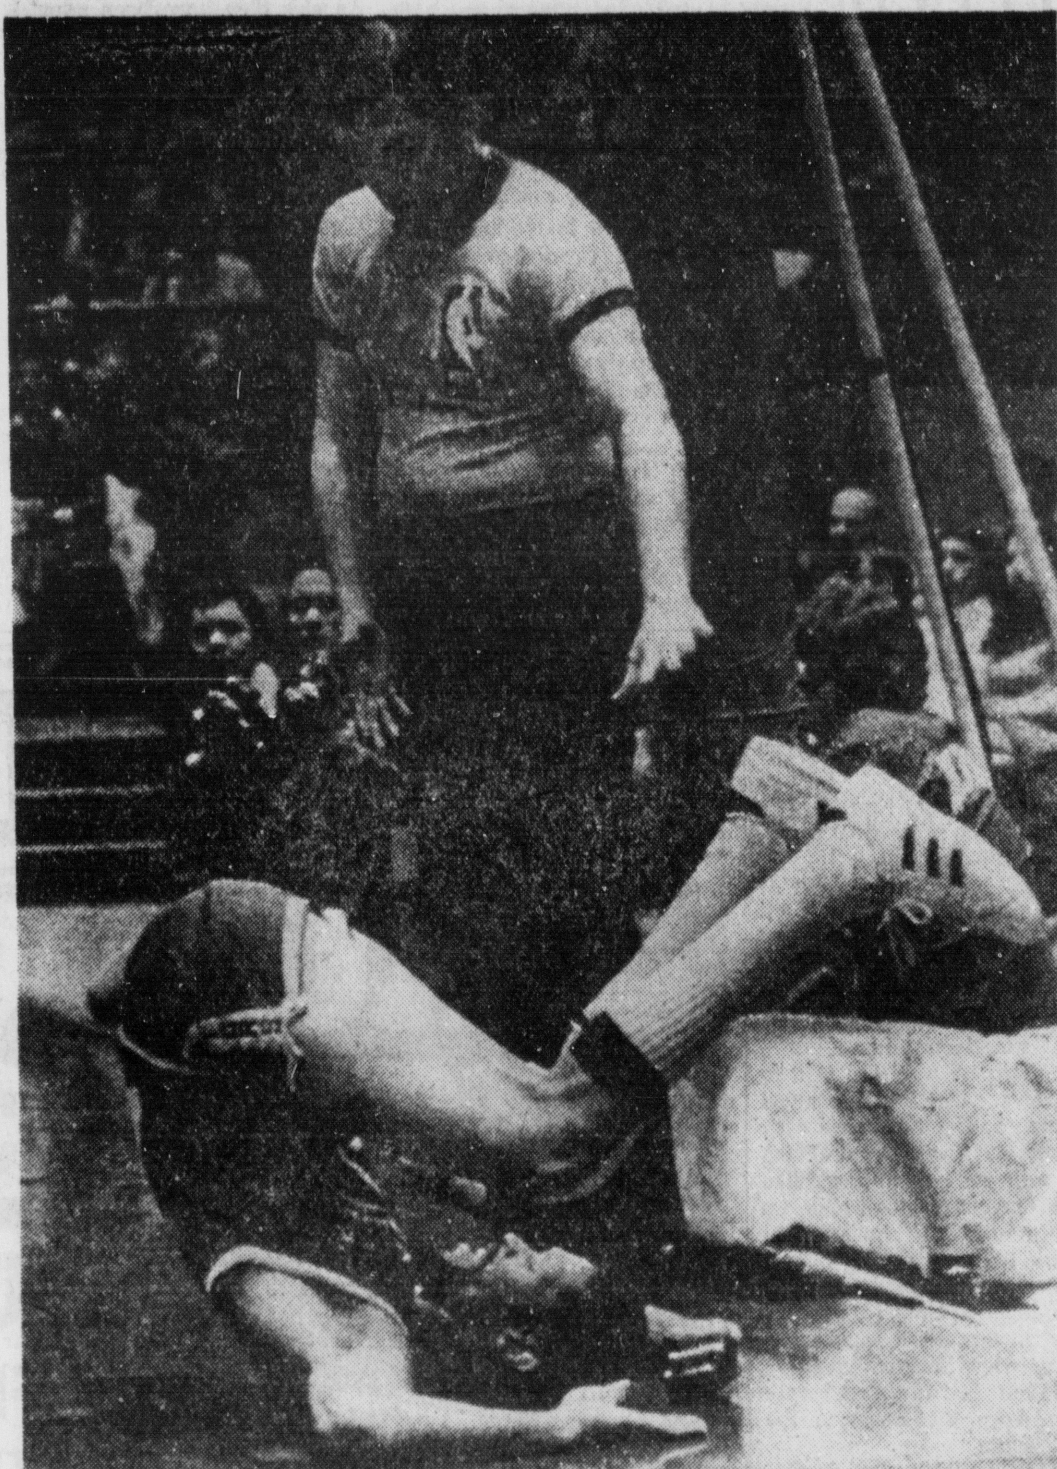

Garner, whose total led all scorers, produced his first 12 points in the opening nine minutes to guide the Tars to a 27-14 lead. One minute later, though, Garner was forced to the Tar bench with his third foul and the complexion suddenly began to change.

At the same moment that Garner left the game, Solano inserted freshman Willie Daniels. For the next six minutes, Daniels led his now inspired Falcons on a 16-3 scoring spree by scoring eight of his team high 23 points. And after the teams traded two baskets, it was deadlocked at 34 apiece with four minutes left in the half.

But the last four minutes was strictly Tar domination. Started by the rebounding of Harry Norman, who led all rebounders with 13, and John Channell, several successful Marin fast breaks ended up in a 19-4 spurt over the four minutes.

On the offensive end of the breaks, superior ball-handling and passing by Len Smith assisted the accurate shooting of Donnellan and Jared McFerrin into scoring most of the 19 points.

As the second half started, baskets by Norman and Garner stretched the Tar lead to 57-39, and thereafter, they never led by less than 15. In this half, Tar coach John Panagakos substituted freely and for the game, See TARS, page 30

COLLEGE BASKETBALL

UCLA Collapse Is A Puzzler

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The mysterious collapse of the UCLA basketball team in its two weekend games in Oregon overshadowed some other puzzles for Coast basketball fans. How come Seattle is still a co-leader in the West Coast Athletic Conference and how come Nevada-Las Vegas isn't?

UCLA absorbed its first back-to-back defeats in nearly a decade when Oregon's unsung Bruce Colderen hit 12-of-14 shots in a 56-51 upset Saturday afternoon, a few hours after Oregon State had taken the top-rated Bruins 61-57.

USC, meanwhile, beat Oregon 76-61 Friday night and Oregon State 60-53 to move into a tie atop the Pac-8 with 7-2 records.

Both the Bruins and Trojans figure to dispose of Washington and Washington State this weekend in Los Angeles and it could all get down to the final UCLA game at USC with the loser heading for either the National Invitational Tournament or the new runnerup tournament in St. Louis.

Stanford, meanwhile, looked sharp downing Washington State 72-51 in Pullman Saturday night while Cal lost 86-78 to Washington. The Cards are at Washington tonight and Cal calls on Washington State.

The West Coast Athletic Conference winner gets a bye in the first round of the National Collegiate Athletic Association tourney.

Both University of San Francisco and Seattle showed why they are co-leaders at 9-1 Saturday. The Dons downed Nevada-Las Vegas 83-71 even though they played without injured star Kevin Restani. Howard Smith took his place and hit 21 points and Nevada-Las Vegas Coach Jerry Tarkanian commented he looked like a better player than Restani. The loss was the fourth in WCAC play for the favored Rebels and doomed their title hopes.

On Saturday night, Seattle, still only 13-9, won another

WCAC squeaker when by beating Loyola 69-63. Rod Deline had 16 to lead Seattle, which won by one point in overtime over Pepperdine Friday night when Frank Oleynick hit a long shot at the buzzer. In other WCAC play, Pepperdine downed St. Mary's 72-67.

Long Beach State now probably has to rate as the Coast's best team after flattening Fresno State 62-45 and Los Angeles State 95-68 in remarkable styles. Brothers Roscoe and Clifton Pondexter led the 49ers, now 20-2.

But games against ineligible Long Beach will not count in the standings to determine who makes the NCAA tourney. UC Santa Barbara and Los Angeles State are 5-2 not counting their losses to the 49ers. UOP is 4-3 after edging San Jose State Saturday while Santa Barbara took the non-league 62-49 win over Westmont and lowly San Diego State upset Fresno State, now 3-5, 80-78 on the Bulldogs court behind Don Anderson's 27 points.

Stanislaus State took its first Far Western Conference loss, 83-81 to Chico State. Hayward State nipped Humboldt State 87-85 while Sonoma State won still another two-point verdict, 86-84 over San Francisco State and Cal Aggies beat Sacramento State 81-71.

In other games Saturday night, Gonzaga beat Boise State 75-63. Willamette took Whittworth 92-67. Linfield beat College of Idaho 84-69. Oregon Tech edged Oregon College 83-79. Central Washington beat Southern Oregon 82-79. Claremont nudged Caltech 72-64. Biola defeated Los Angeles Baptist 72-55. Pacific Lutheran defeated Lewis and Clark 76-59. powerful U.S. International took Cal Baptist 63-61. Whittier dumped Occidental 89-79 to stay atop the SCAC. Point Loma defeated Southern California College 85-71 and powerhouse Azusa downed Cal Lutheran 94-72.

Notre Dame No. 1, Coach Phelps Says

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — Coach Digger Phelps revealed today that he rated his own Notre Dame basketball team, with a 20-1 record, No. 1 in the nation, and had a clear cut reason for doing so.

"I rate us over North Carolina State," he said, "because they lost to UCLA at St. Louis by 19 points, on a neutral floor, and we lost to UCLA in Pauley Pavilion, their home floor, by 19 points. Then we beat UCLA once."

The Bruins, a top-heavy favorite for their eighth consecutive national title, had been No. 1 all season except for the one week after the Irish ended their 88-game winning streak on the Notre Dame floor.

Notre Dame was rated No. 1 for that week but the following Saturday the Irish lost at UCLA and the Bruins returned to the No. 1 spot. However, last weekend UCLA lost to both Oregon State and Oregon, their second and third defeats this season.

Phelps rated his own team highly too because "we've had a hell of a year on the road, and that's the sign of a good team."

"We've won at Kansas, Indiana, Ohio State, against Kentucky, in New York, Philadelphia, and Saturday we ended South Carolina's home court winning streak at 34 games."

The Irish could get another shot at UCLA in the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament, if both teams make it. "They've got to win their conference," Phelps said. "They've got to win over Southern California to get in."

BEARD IS KEY

Warriors Become Solid Title Threat In West

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Golden State Warriors have turned into a solid threat to win the National Basketball Association's Pacific Division championship and Coach Al Attles credited consistency and development of a playmaking guard Butch Beard with the turnaround.

The Warriors handed the Chicago Bulls a 108-105 licking yesterday, only the third defeat in the last 16 games and the seventh at home in 34 games for the Bulls. It was the first win for the Warriors over Chicago in five games this season.

"We've been playing with consistency since the All Star break," Attles said, "and we're playing better as a unit. Then Butch is doing what we have to have."

"He did an outstanding job against the Bulls and anybody looking at his statistics, nine points in 42 minutes, might not see that. But we need leadership and it doesn't have to come from only one position. Butch is doing it."

Attles said numerous early season injuries had hampered the Warriors and forced him to use players in unaccustomed roles, but with the return of Clyde Lee, the Warriors now have a starting lineup which can play as a unit and each player knows what he has to do.

"We're letting everybody do what he does best," Attles said. "Now we've got Rick (Barry) looking at the basket and Clyde and Cazzie (Russell) can play in their role. Somebody that isn't responsible for rebounding doesn't have to become a rebounder."

Nate Thurmond was the Warriors' leader yesterday, both in points with 31 and rebounds, and Jeff Mullins caged 27 points against the Bulls. Nate didn't play Saturday in New York and

A Familiar Ending For Sonoma Quintet

By PAUL DWORIN

The scene was changed, the plot was a little different, but the end result was the same. No, it wasn't a play. It was a basketball game.

For the second time this season, Sonoma State College rallied dramatically Saturday night to beat visiting San Francisco State, 86-84, in overtime and clinched at least a tie for the Far Western Conference crown.

Earlier this month in San Francisco, the Cossacks overcame the Gators on a basket by Dan Heien with four seconds remaining in regulation time for a 72-70 victory.

The win over San Francisco Saturday, its 13th in a row this season and 22 straight at home over the past two years, gave Sonoma (9-0) a three-game conference edge over University of California, Davis (6-3).

This means that the Cossacks need to win just one of their three remaining games to earn their second consecutive FWC title outright.

Things looked bleak for Sonoma in the first half Saturday, as it made just nine of 29 field goal attempts while the Gators were blistering the nets at a 64 per cent clip.

But the Cossacks relied on their old standby, the free throw line, and sank 17 of 20 attempts to finish the first half with a 42-35 deficit.

After intermission, however, the Cossacks came out running and took advantage of numerous Gator fouls to grab the lead at 63-62 with 6:35 to play.

From that point on, the lead was frequently exchanged until Sonoma forged ahead 76-74 with 30 seconds left and had possession of the ball.

The Cossacks lost it, though, which gave Darrell Jackson an opportunity to knot the score at 76-all with 11 seconds left. Bill Belander had a 20-foot shot attempt with four seconds remaining to win the game for Sonoma but missed.

In overtime, the Cossacks went ahead early and never trailed due to key basket by Bob LeBrun and two Jim Bristol free throws.

Sonoma coach Bill Trumbo felt that the difference in the game, besides Sonoma's 34 out of 42 foul shooting, was turnovers. San Francisco made 28 of them while Sonoma committed just ten.

Belander scored 25 points to lead the Cossacks, followed by LeBrun with 20 and Steve Tiedeman with 17. Jackson hit 10 of 13 field goal attempts to top the Gators with 25 points.

San Francisco — Mulligan 14-19, Drew 7-14, Jackson 10-5-25. Totals: 89-85.

Sonoma — Bristol 3-8, Heien 1-0-2, Fitcher 2-10-14, Tiedeman 5-7-17, Belander 8-9-25, LeBrun 7-6-20. Totals: 76-74.

Embattled Seals Run Under A 'New Regime'

By RON LENT

"The New Regime" has taken over the California Golden Seals but nothing has changed on the ice.

The National Hockey League Western Division tailenders lost Saturday night in Pittsburgh to the Penguins, 7-3, and also in Minnesota yesterday to the North Stars, 7-1. However, there is a revamped front office.

New president Munson Campbell, 50, announced Saturday in Oakland several staff switches, namely:

Veteran defenseman Marshall Johnston has been appointed the new coach, replacing Fred Glover who quit last week.

Former Seal general manager Garry Young has returned as director of player personnel.

All-Star left winger Joey Johnston has been elected captain by his teammates and Ivan Boldirev, Gary Croteau and Walt McEneaney have been selected as alternate captains, and.

Seals public relations director Shep Goldberg has been retained. A staff will be hired to work with him. Until now, Goldberg conducted all PR duties, according to Campbell.

MARSHALL JOHNSTON New coach

In listing these moves effective Saturday, Campbell rapped former club owner Charles O. Finley, who last week sold out to the NHL for an estimated $6 million.

"I believe," Campbell began, "the owner should be seen often (at games) and be heard from infrequently." Finley had told Campbell he had never attended a Seals' contest. And Finley was involved in several highly-publicized run-ins with Seal players and management.

The bespectacled Campbell then promised "total commitment" in building the Seals into a contender. "I'll work 20 hours a day, seven days a week if it will help," Campbell added he doesn't anticipate any immediate trades. Yesterday, it was revealed the Seals will recall four Salt Lake City farmhands: defensemen Paul Shakes and Brent Meeke plus right winger Wayne King and center Larry Pattey.

Campbell, former Seals vice president (1971-72), will report directly to the Oakland Hockey Club Limited. This is a general partnership composed of three NHL franchise lawyers.

They are: Arthur Morse, Chicago Black Hawks; John A. Ziegler, Detroit Red Wings; and James D. Cullen, St. Louis Blues. This group will control Seal operations until the NHL finds a qualified owner.

TROUBLED PROSPECTS

WFL Meeting On Three Franchises

CHICAGO (UPI) — World Football League owners met today in an attempt to settle the future of at least two troubled franchises and to plot strategy for luring name players away from the National Football League.

One franchise with a clouded future, Memphis, had been scheduled to be moved to Portland, Ore., but Portland backers were unable to raise sufficient funds. There was new speculation that the team might be moved to Houston rather than compete with a new NFL franchise being considered for Memphis.

Other interests were seeking to buy the WFL's Philadelphia franchise, which was reclaimed by the league when a group headed by Harry Katz did not meet a deadline for paying the league a $150,000 fee. The possibility of moving the Philadelphia franchise to Portland also was expected to be considered.

Nothing comes close to Club.

French Starts New Tennis Hostilities

PARIS (UPI) — Angered by the deal struck between the International Lawn Tennis Federation (ILTF) and the U.S.-based World Team Tennis (WTT) League, the French Lawn Tennis Federation has launched an offensive against the ILTF.

The French have declared themselves the defenders of "traditional tennis."

"The situation is serious because despite what everybody expected, the International Federation has given in again," French federation president Philippe Chatrier said.

Chatrier announced over the weekend that the French would withdraw from the ILTF and has called on other federations to do the same. He said France would ban WTT players from its big tournaments.

The French have always opposed any recognition of the WTT inter-city league. Last week's agreement between the ILTF and WTT permits the WTT schedule to cut across the summer European tournament season, including the French and Italian open championships.

The West German federation also has banned WTT players and the Swedes and Italians were set to soon decide one way or the other.

"We hope and we firmly believe that continental European countries will follow us in our action in order to preserve traditional tennis as much as possible," Chatrier said.

In a statement echoing the sentiments of his country's foreign minister toward the energy crisis Chatrier went on, "the international federation no longer represents a force."

"I am determined to defend European interests in the place of the ILTF which is not doing the job."

The French fear the WTT, scheduled to begin play this spring, will draw some of the best European players from the continent for the big money in the United States.

DAVE STOCKTON

Campbell Winner May Be Ready As Superstar

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A "new look" Dave Stockton may be ready to claim superstar status in his 11th year on the Professional Golfers Association tour. At least he thinks he's headed in that direction.

"I really feel this will be my best year ever," the former University of Southern California golf team captain said after outlasting the best pro golf has to offer in the $150,000 Glen Campbell Los Angeles Open yesterday.

"I feel so confident on the course now. I've got complete control of myself. The more pressure, the better. I definitely feel I'm going to win quite a few more tournaments this year."

Jack Nicklaus and company won't argue.

In the windy final round over the demanding Riviera Country Club course, the 32-year-old Westlake Village, Calif., pro posted a two-over-par 69 for a two-shot victory over Sam Snead, the hero of yesterday who refuses to give up to father time, and young John Mahaffey.

Meanwhile, the superstars faltered.

Nicklaus shot a 75, Tom Weiskopf a 76, Lee Trevino a 72, Johnny Miller a 73 and Arnold Palmer a 76. Ben Crenshaw, a 23-year-old phenom from Texas, went to pieces and struggled in with a 79, including an eight on a par four on the first nine.

Stockton's 72-hole total of 276 — worth $30,000 — was eight under par for the tournament over one of America's great courses. It equaled the score shot by Rdo Funseth last year and was one stroke over Ben Hogan's record at Riviera, shot in the 1948 LA Open.

His last round included six birdies and four bogeys. For the tournament, he made 22 birdies, 12 bogeys and one double bogey, shooting 68-68-71-69.

Stockton may have let the moment of triumph (his eighth tour victory) carry him away. He called a three-wood onto the green on the 18th hole—the 72nd of the tournament—"the greatest of my life."

SWEET VICTORY — Dave Stockton whooped it up and danced his way off the green yesterday at Pacific Palisades. He had just sunk his final putt for a $30,000 win in the Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open. (UPI Telephoto)

Stockton then calmly sank a 12-foot putt for a birdie.

The 61-year-old Snead and Mahaffey, who started the day tied with Stockton and Weiskopf for first place, had even-par 71s to finish at 278. Each won $13,875. Napa's Ron Cerrudo shot a 72-75-74-79-300.

The tour now moves to the East Coast after seven tournaments in the West but Stockton is staying home. He will miss this week's $260,000 Jackie Gleason Inverrary Classic at Lauderhill, Fla., and the following week's Florida Citrus Open. He plans to rejoin the tour at Miami for the Doral-Eastern Open in three weeks.

Abdul-Jabbar Shows Where Knicks Weak

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

It rather apparent yesterday that the New York Knicks are not likely to repeat as National Basketball Association champions unless they strengthen their position in the pivot.

Abdul-Jabbar magnified the inexperience of John Gianelli as he skyhooked over the New York center countless times for baskets. The Jabbar lesson brought the Bucks a 97-86 victory and increased their lead to three games over Chicago in the Midwest Division as the Bulls lost to Golden State 108-105.

Milwaukee held New York to just 11 points in the final period to outdefend the stingiest point-yielding team in the NBA. On offense, Abdul-Jabbar outscored Gianelli 32-8 and outrebounded him 23-10 as he continually intimidated the curly-haired youngster.

"It was their offense," said, Walt Frazier, who was held to 16 points. "The Bucks started running and getting those easy baskets. It was demoralizing the way we had to work like mad for our shots—which we missed—and the Bucks kept getting the easy ones."

Earl Monroe, who scored a team-high 20 points, led a Knick rally in the third quarter to provide New York with a 75-72 lead but Milwaukee simply wore down the losers in the final stanza.

In other NBA action, Capital downed Boston 99-95, Detroit beat Philadelphia 118-107, Buffalo beat Houston 135-118, Atlanta surprised Los Angeles 113-110, Phoenix pounded Portland 112-100 and Seattle whipped Cleveland 106-97.

Elvin Hayes scored 25 points and collected 20 rebounds to lead injury-plagued Capital past Boston. Phil Chenier suffered a hamstring muscle pull in the second quarter to join Archie Clark and Wes Unseld as members of the Bullets' walking wounded. Jo Jo White paced Boston with 23 points.

Detroit crept to within 1 1/2 games of Chicago in the torrid Midwest race as the Pistons never trailed in their game with Philadelphia. Bob Lanier scored 27 points for Detroit, a figure matched by Steve Mix of the 76ers.

Bob McAdoo, the NBA's leading scorer, scored 38 points to give Buffalo a five-game lead over Atlanta in the battle for the fourth playoff berth in the Eastern Conference. The Braves hit 63.6 per cent of their shots, an output that was too great for Houston as it registered 28 points by Rudy Tomjanovich and 26 from Mike Newlin.

Lou Hudson scored 35 points and Pete Maravich 32 to give Atlanta a 4-0 sweep of the series with the Lakers this season, only the second time in the Lakers' 14-year history in Los Angeles they have been swept in a season series. Maravich scored 16 points in the fourth period. Gail Goodrich netted 35 points as the Lakers lost their sixth game in the last eight starts.

Baskets by Neal Walk and Clem Haskins moved Phoenix out of reach after Portland closed to within four points with three minutes left. Rookie Mike Bantom paced the Suns with 22 points while Sidney Wicks scored a game-high 23 for the losers.

Former Seattle player-coach Lenny Wilkens scored 25 points for Cleveland but it wasn't enough to stifle a balanced SuperSonics' attack led by Fred Brown's 24 points and 22 by Spencer Haywood.

East Germany Wins In Skiing

FALUN, Sweden (UPI) — East Germany captured its second title and Russia its first in the World Nordic Ski Championships today when Olympic champions Ullrich Wehling and Galina Kulakova won the Nordic combination and ladies five kilometer cross country race, respectively.

Wehling, a 22-year-old student, surged to the victory after a perfect tactical performance in the decisive 15 kilometers cross country race. He placed third in the race, won by Jan Legiersky of Poland, and moved from seventh place in the standings after Sunday's ski jumping to first.

Martha Rockwell of Putney, Vt., led the Americans during today's third day of competition by placing 22nd place in the ladies five kilometers race, but was still disappointed.

"Today's frozen course eliminated my edge in strength over speed," she said. "I am stronger than I am quick."

7 OUT OF 10 CAN'T HACK IT

Americans' Sad Physical Shape

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The country is in sad shape.

Few try to deny it, especially on this particular day and in this particular city where telling a lie no longer is looked on so much as a sin as an absolute outrage.

When you get right down to it though, who really makes up the country?

The people in it, of course, and right there you have the nub of the whole problem.

CAN'T HACK IT
Physically speaking, seven out of every 10 persons in the United States of America simply can't hack it, according to one survey conducted by a group of insurance companies. This is an astonishing figure, and it jumps to a fraction better than nine out of 10 when you count only those over 28.

Male and female both are included, so one can't point at the other.

Their stomachs protrude, their muscle tone generally is somewhere between so-so and poor, they puff after walking up two flights and they couldn't run 500 yards, much less a mile, if their lives depended on it.

TRAILING FIELD
Based strictly on their physical condition, Americans are far from world beaters. If standings were kept, we'd be trailing the Japanese Islanders, West German Giants, African Aces, Russian Red Wings and even the Arab Oilers at this point.

Most of the exercise many of our citizens get every day is switching on their TV sets or angrying up their blood pressure against Richard Nixon and others in public office.

At least that's the way it looks to me.

The whole thing reminds me of this big, fat fellow I once saw so greatly agitated at a minor league ball game in Springfield, Mass.

He was hollering at the home plate umpire, who was also huge, but at least 50 pounds lighter, and all game long this fan kept shouting:

"Hey, whalebelly, when are you gonna get in shape?"

A LAUGH
I remember that making me laugh. So does James Brown, not the ex-football player, but the soul singer, who says:

"Anybody with a waistline bigger than 33 can't sing in my group."

Well, as a non-exercising, 52-year-old World War II retiree who barely manages to get inside James Brown's legal limit, I ventured my opinion that the majority of Americans are out of shape to C. Carson Conrad.

rad, executive director of the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports, and you know what he said?

He said: "I agree."

C. Carson Conrad is not Johnny-Come-Lately to this business of physical fitness.

CONRAD BACKGROUND

He came here four years ago after spending 17 years as chief of California's program for physical education, health education and athletics involving five million school kids.

Conrad couples lack of exercise and smoking as two of the nation's chief drawbacks to physical fitness.

"If a person had any respect for himself, if he simply wanted to cut the risk of coronary heart disease in half, he could do it just by quitting smoking," Conrad says.

ANOTHER SUBJECT

Much of the mail directed to the Council of Physical Fitness, however, addresses itself to another subject.

"We get 5,000 letters a week," says Conrad. "Most of those writing the letters are concerned with weight control. The women seem far more concerned about it than the men."

"I'd say our biggest problem, among the people in the country, I mean, is the lack of exercising to burn off the calories. It's really a simple arithmetical formula. You take in the calories by eating and then work them off by exercise, at least 30 minutes a day."

"The point is you can't burn off the calories with a few minutes of isometric exercises or a few minutes of calisthenics

PRACTITIONER
"I'm looking at it as practitioner. I work at it every day and I'm 62. I find this — there are more people exercising the way they should than I've ever seen in my lifetime. At the same time there are more people doing less. More people are sitting and watching TV. It seems to be one of those 'either-or' situations. Some people are exercising more. Unfortunately, too many aren't bothering at all. They're simply doing nothing to burn off the calories, and you know what happens then."

Of course. We become a nation of Fatso's.

Now and then, there is a shaft of light.

Two years ago, says C. Carson Conrad, the Board of Education in Philadelphia sought to eliminate athletics in high schools while the city was building a multi-million dollar stadium for the Eagles and Phillies, the professional football and baseball teams there. The plan was voted down although the stadium was built anyway.

"Believe me," says Conrad, "if you want to really see some trouble in this country, just turn loose hordes of vigorous high school kids with no place to vent their energy."

C. Carson Conrad doesn't have to say any more. I'm fully convinced.

Volunteers Sought For Softball Loop

Adult and teenage volunteers are being sought to serve as coaches, managers and umpires in the Corte Madera Recreation Department children's softball league.

March 15 is the sign-up deadline for adult volunteers and for the players, who must be in the fourth through ninth grades. Signups are held at the Town Hall. Fee is $2.

Melinda Qualifies For City Golf Field

SAN FRANCISCO — Melinda Bailey of Novato shot an 81, two strokes higher than medalist Pam Palmieri of Santa Rosa, to qualify for the championship flight of the 1974 San Francisco Women's Amateur tournament.

Mrs. Bailey, five-time runner-up for the City title, will be among 16 gals competing at Harding Park course when the tourney begins March 10.

Petaluman Wins Semi-Marin Race

SANTA ROSA — Merv Sartori of Petaluma won the 12-lap semi-final and Chuck Ross of Santa Rosa won the 25-lap main event Saturday night in BCRA indoor midget auto racing at the Sonoma County Fairgrounds.

Ross became the seventh driver in seven races to win top honors at the Santa Rosa track.

Trout Stocking

Phoenix Reservoir, south of Fairfax, and Stafford Lake, west of Novato, will be stocked with catchable size trout this week, it was announced by the Department of Fish and Game.

11 Tars scored including five in double figures. Besides Garner's 27 points and Donnellan's 18, Norman put in 12 points, Channell 11 and McFerrin 10.

Perhaps the most exciting moment in the game came in the last few seconds as the Tars led 98-81. With most of the 500 fans on their feet screaming, three shots and several consecutive tips missed the Tar basket until Guy Perry recovered an errant tip at the free throw line and threw in a shot as the buzzer sounded.

The 100 point total is the first time that the Tars have broken the 100-point barrier in conference play this season. The victory leaves Marin 21-3 on the season and 9-3 in the CNC.

Cagers Popped Out The String

Tomorrow night's games will hold little significance for local high school basketball teams; after them, there will be only one more contest before a long and unsuccessful season ends. All games start at 7 p.m. unless otherwise noted.

Petaluma (3-9), in a last-place tie in the North Bay League with Napa after two consecutive losses, will host the fifth-place Vallejo Apaches (6-6). The last time the teams met, the Trojans bowed, 47-46.

Rancho Cotate (6-6), the most successful local team with a fourth-place standing in the Sonoma County League, will be looking for a repeat triumph over visiting Piner of Santa Rosa (5-7).

Casa Grande (2-10) will try to snap a nine-game losing streak and a last-place tie with El Molino (Forestville) in the SCL with a victory over the visiting sixth-place Sonoma Dragons (4-8). In the first round, the Gauchos suffered a last second, 47-46, setback.

St. Vincent (3-4), its hopes for a North Central League II title shattered, can gain some revenge over second place host Calistoga (6-2), which beat the Mustangs, 49-36, earlier this year.

Tomales (2-6), despite its record, is playing some of the best ball in the NCL II at the moment. Last Friday, the Braves knocked Calistoga from the top, and in their previous game took league-leading Point Arena (7-1) to the wire before losing. The fifth-place Braves will visit third-place Kelseyville (4-3) tomorrow night.

6 Marin Wrestlers Compete

Six Marin County prep wrestlers will be competing in the North Coast Section finals Saturday at Alhambra High in Martinez.

The six qualified by finishing in the top six placings of their weight classes last Saturday in the Division I meet at Mount Eden High, Hayward.

In the 123-pound class, Greg Shaughnessy of Tamalpais High School defeated Terra Linda's Mark Egide for the first time in four years of wrestling each other in dual meet and tournament competition. Shaughnessy was third because of the victory and Egide fourth so both advanced to the North Coast finals.

In the 114-pound division, Tamalpais' Greg Ford qualified by placing second and Terra Linda's Farhad (Joe) Sariaslani made it by placing fifth. Other two qualifiers from Marin were Drake's Mike Feeney, sixth in the 106-pound division, and San Marin's Tim Lessley, fifth in the 168s.

Sonoma '9' Gets Lesson In Walks

TURLOCK — Sonoma State College got a free lesson in baseball theory against Stanislaus here Saturday: a walk is as good as a hit.

Sonoma's Walt Sweeney allowed just three hits in the opener, but gave up nine walks and absorbed the 3-1 loss. In the nightcap, Sonoma received three ninth-inning walks and edged the Warriors, 5-4, for a split of the non-league double header.

The win bill split gave the Cossacks a 1-3 non-league mark.

The ninth inning of the second game climaxed a comeback which saw the Cossacks score four times in the last three frames to rally from a 4-1 sixth-inning deficit.

Dale Lyster led off the ninth with a double, and then Stanislaus intentionally walked Rich Garretson and Ron Petron, Greg Sherman was unintentionally walked for the winning run.

Perry Kozlowski went the distance for Sonoma in the nightcap, giving up just three hits while fanning eight.

Marin Peewees Get Lone Win

One win, one loss. That was the record yesterday at Raydine's Ice Rink in Corte Madera where the Marin Amateur Hockey Club hosted Sun Valley.

Maurice Gamboa scored with five minutes left to give the Marin Peewees a 1-0 victory. Assists went to Kip Cameron and Greg Ramsey.

Sun Valley blanked the Marin Bantams 3-0.

Combined AP & UPI
DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — It was Richard Petty's kind of day. That could be any day when there's stock car racing and Richard is winning.

He drove off with the $36,600 first prize yesterday in the richest stock car race ever run, the $275,000 Daytona 500, and ran his career winnings above $1.5 million.

Who cared if it was shortened to 450 miles as a gesture to the energy crisis? It didn't prevent 95,000 people from getting to Daytona International Speedway, almost as many as last year's record 103,000. It was Petty's fifth Daytona win — a record. He averaged a rather slow 140.894 miles an hour.

Cale Yarborough, winner of his first two races of 1974, finished second.

Boxing

PHILADELPHIA — Heavyweight boxing champion George Foreman said yesterday that despite a divorce suit that's kept him inside a courtroom and out of the gym, he will meet Ken Norton in a title bout March 26.

Golf

NAPLES, Fla. — Carol Mann, with a final round three-under-par 69, yesterday captured the $38,000 Naples Women's Golf Classic.

Bowling

NEW YORK — Larry Laub of San Francisco yesterday rolled to a 258-237 victory over southpaw Dave Davis in the finals of the $85,000 U.S. Open Bowling Tournament.

Track — Field
SAN DIEGO — Tony Waldrop yesterday shattered the world indoor record for the mile with a time of 3:55.0, bettering the old mark of 3:56.4 held by Tom O'Hara and Jim Ryun, at the San Diego Indoor Games.

For the women, Francie Larrieu became the first female to break the 10 minute indoor-barrier with a time of 9:39.4 for the two-mile run and also cracked the world mark in the 3,000-meters in 9:02.4. Patty Johnson of La Jolla, Calif. tied her own world record in the 60-yard hurdles, stopping the clock at 7.4 second.

Tennis
TORONTO — Tom Okker of the Netherlands yesterday bested Romania's Ilie Nastase 6-3, 6-4 and won the Toronto International tennis tournament.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Jimmy Connors yesterday swept to a 7-5, 6-2 victory over Sandy Mayer in the International Indoor tennis tournament.

Will Wall Street Of Future Include Small Investor?

(EDITOR'S NOTE — The small investor is disappearing from Wall Street, driven off by falling prices and a feeling he's not wanted. Does Wall Street really care? The brokers say they do. But the rules they work by seem to favor the big institutional investors now dominating the stock market.)

By DEBORAH M. RANKIN
NEW YORK (AP) — The small investor, already a shadow of his former self, may become an even fainter presence on Wall Street with the closing of one of the huge brokerage firms that served him.

Gone is the bull market of the 1960s, which convinced so many families to invest their savings in stocks. DuPont Walston, Inc., the nation's second largest brokerage house, specialized in these little investors. Its closing late last month, after a loss of $10 million in six months, "is going to cast a pall over public confidence," says Stan West, director of research for the New York Stock Exchange.

A recent NYSE survey concluded that the small investor — the man who owns under $5,000 in stocks and trades what the market calls odd-lots of less than 100 shares — feels like "the forgotten man" on Wall Street.

That and the drop in stock prices are pushing many small investors off the stock market.

During a one-year period, the number of Big Board shareholders declined 800,000 to 31.7 million, according to the latest NYSE statistics, issued in October.

The question is: Does Wall Street really care whether the small investor stays or goes?

The big institutional investors are replacing him. These are the banks, the pension funds, the insurance companies and the mutual funds. They trade in blocks of 10,000 to 100,000 shares, owning $250 billion of the Big Board's stocks. That's roughly one-third of the NYSE's total issues.

The institutional investors account for 70 per cent of the Big Board's trading volume; small investors, only 30 per cent. A decade ago, the percentages were reversed. It was the little investor who did 70 per cent of the trading.

Even on the American Stock Exchange, his traditional stronghold, the little investor has been losing ground. He traded 85.3 per cent of all stocks in 1966, but this dropped to 70 per cent last year. The institutions doubled their volume, going from 14.7 to 30 per cent in those years.

The brokerage fee system, modified in 1972, has helped drive off little investors. The percentage the small trader pays in broker fees can be twice that of the investor who buys or sells in blocks of 5,000 shares or more. For trades above $300,000, the fee is negotiated for the portion over $300,000.

A change is due in 18 months under Securities and Exchange Commission regulations. At that time, brokers must begin to negotiate commissions on all stock transactions. The ruling is designed to help the little man.

Neither the institutions nor the small investors seem to have won on Wall Street in 1973. The value of stocks on the Big Board fell by $150 billion to $721 billion at year's end. The average price of a share was $29.10 on Dec. 31, down from $36.30 a year earlier.

"It was disastrous for everyone," complained a businessman who lost recently on the stock market. "But at least the big institutions had enough money so they could spread some of it into other, more secure areas. The little man didn't have that safety valve."

The small investors began to sell out in 1969, during a recession. About 100 brokerage houses, mostly small outfits, closed in the next two years. One of the big failures was Goodbody & Co., taken over in 1970 by Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith.

That has been eclipsed now by the dismemberment of duPont Walston, second in size to Merrill Lynch. The firm's 143 branch offices and 300,000 customer accounts are being absorbed by other firms.

H. Ross Perot, a Texan who made millions in the computer business, owned duPont Walston. He announced in 1972 that he would lure the small investor back to Wall Street.

A recent survey by pollster Louis Harris found that the public has less respect for stockbrokers than for 10 other professions, including politics and advertising. "To put it bluntly, there is a credibility crisis for Wall Street today," says Harris.

The disillusionment of the individual investor is summed up by a lawyer who inherited money 20 years ago and invested it in stocks. His portfolio has grown to $1 million, but he is unhappy with his brokers.

"In the 1950s," he said, "everything was going up, and you could pick a stock blindfolded and know that you would do okay. "But I don't think it's possible for the average guy to survive today. I'm still down from 1969.

"I've been through five different investment advisers since I got the money. The first one I had for seven years, and I just got tired of him.

"The second one was a big mistake. The third went out of business; but I got out early, fortunately. The next one did abysmally. The place I'm with now is the only one that can handle me and my anxieties."

And 1973 did plenty to bring out anxieties. Among the factors that kept the public from the market were:

A rising inflation rate, which reduced the amount of income people had available to spend on stocks.

Record high interest rates, which made bonds, time deposits and government securities more attractive than stocks. Last year, odd-lot sales exceeded purchases by $28.8 million. Much of this money apparently was reinvested outside Wall Street.

The collapse of Equity Funding of America Corp., a giant conglomerate. Its stock was held by small investors and institutions and was worth $3 billion in mid-1973. By year's end, the stock was nearly worthless. The NYSE has charged that the financial analyst who discovered Equity Funding's shortcomings first told selected institutional investors, then made his findings public.

Huge blocks of stock were sold suddenly, driving down the price until the federal government stopped trading in the issue.

This dramatized another complaint of the small investor: The big institutions have inside market information unavailable to him.

The uncertainties spawned by Watergate and the Middle East oil crisis haven't helped to revive a market described as running 50 per cent on psychology and 50 per cent on economics.

Despite the grim news from Wall Street, many small investors remain.

"I have no choice but to invest in the stock market," said one. "Real estate is even more difficult because you have to know almost as much as the developers themselves to make an educated guess. Art is interesting except that there's no return and you have to pay high insurance premiums besides.

"Scotch whisky as a way to hedge for the future," he laughs. "Well, I like the taste."

Gonzales Hacienda To Double Capacity Through Expansion

Gonzales Hacienda Mexican restaurant at 809 B Street in San Rafael will double its capacity by expanding into adjacent space formerly occupied by Salin Printing.

Owner Robert Gonzales, who has operated the Hacienda for 11 years, will install old Spanish archways in the south wall of his present restaurant, expanding the dining area to Second Street. The expansion, to be completed by April, will increase seating capacity from the present 72 to 150 so that it can accommodate banquets and luncheons by civic and fraternal groups.

Gonzales Hacienda will feature avocado salads, dips and tostadas in addition to its regular Mexican menu.

Gonzales said he will install tortilla and tamale machines in the restaurant so he can distribute these wholesale to other retail stores. The expansion will be accompanied by some redecorating, "but we will keep it a family restaurant where everybody can feel at home," said Gonzales.

The corner of B and Second streets is undergoing extensive face-lifting.

THE COUNTRY BLUES, a new store selling recycled denim clothing, will open this week, probably tomorrow, at B and Second, kitty corner from Gonzales Hacienda.

Country Blues is headed by president Marlene Robbins and vice president Bruce Dzieza of Sebastopol, who operate a similar store in Sebastopol called The Funky Experience. Country Blues will sell everything in recycled denims from cowboy jackets and shirts to bikinis. The shop will also carry Hawaiian, corduroy, and wool shirts; women's antique dresses, jackets and sweaters.

Manager of Country Blues is Jenny Jukoff of San Anselmo, who was an employee and later partner in the Sheba Kiddo shop in Fairfax for about a year and a half.

XANADU, a new store that sells artifacts from ancient Egypt and South and Central America, has opened in San Anselmo at 609 San Anselmo Avenue, former site of the Regeneration antique shop, next to the new Electrolux outlet.

Owners of Xanadu are Jeanne Negin of Ross, a model at the Grimmer Agency in San Francisco for five years and a long-time collector of artifacts; and her cousin, George McWilliams of San Francisco, who has been collecting artifacts for more than 20 years.

Xanadu carries pre-Columbian (1000 to 1500 A.D.) artifacts; Egyptian relics from 1500 B.C. such as mummy cloth taken from ancient tombs; old lithographs and prints; and antiques from Central and South America.

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL, C.P.A.

Medical Expenses Deductible Over 3 Per Cent Of Income

Medical expenses are deductible to the extent they exceed 3 per cent of your adjusted gross income. You can deduct any sums that you spent for "... the diagnosis, cure, mitigation, treatment or prevention of disease, or for the purpose of affecting any structure or function of the body (including amounts paid for accident or health insurance), or for transportation primarily for and essential to medical care."

You can deduct half of the premiums you paid for medical care and hospitalization insurance, but not more than $150.

Costs for drugs and medicines count to the extent they exceed 1 per cent of your adjusted gross income. The balance of medical insurance, drugs and medicines are added to the other medical expenses and all are subject to the 3 per cent limitation. Almost anything is deductible as a medical expense if prescribed by your doctor.

Costs of travel, transportation, rental of special sickroom equipment, etc., as well as doctor bills, nurses, hospital costs and other expenses directly connected with your illness or accident are deductible. You can claim 6 cents per mile for the use of your car for transportation to secure medical care, plus parking, bridge tolls, etc.

Deductible medical expenses can be for yourself or any dependent. A dependent must have been your dependent whether at the time the costs were incurred or at the time they were paid. You can deduct medical costs you paid for a dependent even though you may not be able to claim the dependent as a tax exemption because the dependent had income over $750.

It does not matter when these costs were incurred. They are deductible in the year paid. You cannot deduct costs that you owe. They must be paid to get the deduction. If part of your medical costs were reimbursed by your insurance company, then you can only deduct the part you actually paid and that was not reimbursed to you.

Merchant Marine Bonds Rate High For Safety And Income

By ROGER E. SPEAR
Q. I have $15,000 to invest in bonds that are government guaranteed. These bonds must pay a minimum of 8.5 per cent. Your help would be greatly appreciated. — E.H.

A. U.S. Treasury bonds and notes are trading to yield 5 per cent to 7.4 per cent currently, well below your income objective. World Bank Bonds, which are government guaranteed, are trading on a somewhat better yield basis, 6.4 per cent to 8.2 per cent. The higher interest rate is available on the August, 1995, issue bearing an 8 per cent coupon. Another series of bonds which have government backing under the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, are issued by U.S. Lines. Two bonds: U.S. Lines 8.70s of 1989 and U.S. Lines 8.8s of 1991 trade above par to yield 8.45 per cent and 8.4 percent currently, a rate of return more consistent with your requirement. Timely payment of principal and interest on these AAA-rated securities is guaranteed by the U.S. government.

Q. Through a Keogh plan I have acquired 1,639 shares of Massachusetts Investors Growth Fund. I am retired and would like to switch to Massachusetts Investors Trust or Income Development for greater income. Would I be wise to wait for a better market to make the change? — C.M.

A. Since you are now retired, an exchange of mutual funds is possible. However, prior to that time Keogh plan allows the participant only to freeze one plan in order to start anew with another fund. Massachusetts Growth has an above-average 10-year performance record in the decade through 1973, although the 20 per cent decline in 1973 was only average.

For retirement income, Massachusetts Income Development Fund, currently yielding 8.3 per cent is a better vehicle.

Chamber Visitors Bureau Seeks More Conventions

Marin County has hotel and banquet facilities that should be drawing many more conventions than it is doing, in the opinion of Esther M. Dearth, tourism chairman of the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau.

With that in mind, Mrs. Dearth has circulated a tourism questionnaire aimed at making Marin residents aware of the various facilities that Marin has to offer.

Almost everyone in Marin who is employed goes to some meeting or conference during the year, said Mrs. Dearth. "During one of those meetings, had you been asked if Marin County could host the meeting next year, what would have been your answer?" That is one of the key questions asked in the questionnaire.

Mrs. Dearth said her tourism committee hopes to compile a booklet listing Marin's facilities including hotel accommodations, meeting rooms and banquet space so that Marin residents can tell outsiders: "Yes, we have accommodations for 500 here, and yes, we can put up 100 overnight guests there."

STATEMENT OF POLICY REGARDING POLITICAL ADVERTISING

Any political advertisement that is not clearly the personal appeal of the elective candidate or candidates involved must show the name of the sponsoring group together with the name or names of one or more persons officiating for such group and their address.

All political advertisements are payable in advance. Charges are figured at the prevailing flat rate.

Advertising deadlines are 4 p.m., two working days preceding publication. Tuesday advertisements must be in Friday by 4 p.m., Monday advertisements must be in the preceding Friday morning by 11:00 a.m. Any intervening holiday advances the deadline by a day.

No responsibility to show printer's proof is assumed under the above schedule.

If a proof is desired, advertisement must be submitted substantially in advance. Corrections, if any, must be ordered by 4 p.m., two working days preceding publication. Any changes from original copy will be charged for on basis of printing work involved.
